F.D.R. SAYS PRICE AND PAY CONTROLS HAVE HELD LINE TO BAR INFLATION

Stabilization Program an Unprecedented Success, He Asserts—Task Will Be Harder This Year, His Aids Report.

'COST OF LIVING SLIGHTLY LOWER'

President Indicates De Gaulle Committee Will Not Be Sole Agency Dealt With After Invasion of France.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—President Roosevelt announced with obvious satisfaction today that his hold-the-line price and wage stabilization order, which will be a year old tomorrow, had been an unprecedented success but warned that the inflationary gap would be larger this year than it was in 1943.

The announcement was made at his press conference, the first in 10 days. Beyond a lack of color in his face, he showed no ill effects from the bronchitis which forced him to suspend his usual calling list. His cough was gone and his voice was clear.

In the course of the meeting, he declined to comment on Wendell L. Willkie's withdrawal from the Republican presidential race, praised the current Russian campaigns from the Ukraine, particularly around Odessa, and indicated that the French National Committee of Liberation would not be the sole agency recognized or dealt with after the invasion of France.

Stabilization Statement.

The announcement on the stabilization program was in the form of a joint letter, which he read, from Fred M. Vinson, Economic Stabilization Director; Chester Bowles, Price Administrator; Marvin Jones, War Food Administrator, and William H. Davis, chairman of the National War Labor Board. He made running comments as he read from what he described as a really interesting and really important report.

The letter disclosed that since April 8, 1943:

1. The cost of living "has been held without change of any consequence," although it was rising at the rate of ¾ per cent a month before the hold-the-line order was issued. "Indeed," the letter said, "the cost of living as a whole is slightly lower than it was a year ago today. This record—one year of stable living costs—is unprecedented either in this war or in the last war." The President added that it was

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

NEW ORLEANS, April 7 (AP).—Richard Bienvenu, practically blind all his life, now can see by means of an eye given to him by a stranger, Mrs. E. E. Johnson of Marrero, La.

Mrs. Johnson, hearing that the 33-year-old broommaker might be able to see through the transplanting of a live cornea to his left eye, donated her right eye, sight of which she lost at the age of 8 by being accidentally struck by a rock. The surgeon who performed the operation here lifted Bienvenu's bandage yesterday and found that sight had been restored.

Bienvenu was overjoyed. And so were his wife and their 5-year-old son, Richard Jr. The three went to Marrero and thanked Mrs. Johnson for the gift.

CONCEDES SINGING MIGHT HAVE CAUSED HOWLS FROM DOGS

Whether beginning voice students in the Musical Arts Building, 459 Boyle avenue, disturbed the dogs of a neighbor, William W. Blankenship of 4308A Olive street, or whether the dogs disturbed them was the subject of expert testimony today in the Court of Criminal Correction.

Beginning voice students, it was explained by Mrs. Emma Becker, a singing teacher, have difficulty getting proper tone when dogs are barking. Blankenship's hound and his English terrier were barking on Jan. 25, the day on which the police charged they disturbed the students, she asserted.

Under cross-examination by Blankenship's attorney, Mrs. Becker conceded she knew that a dog's sense of hearing is keener than that of a human and that it "might have been possible that the dogs wanted to correct some variation in tone detected by their finely tuned ears."

Blankenship, who previously had been fined $5 in Police Court and who had appealed, said he moved the larger dog to other quarters after his arrest and that he since has kept the smaller dog inside his home. Judge David W. FitzGibbon discharged him with the statement: "I'm going to establish some new law; I think every dog is entitled to bark occasionally."

POLICE SUMMON 331 DRIVERS WITHOUT CITY LICENSE TAGS

Motorists Fined $1 If Tax Receipt Is Shown Within Three Days at Police Headquarters.

Police have issued summonses to 331 motorists since early yesterday for failure to have 1944 city automobile license stickers, Capt. Raymond Dowling of the Traffic Division announced today.

Dowling said the motorists could appear at the Traffic Violation Bureau at Police Headquarters within three days, and upon presentation of a receipt for a license pay a fine of $1. Summonses returnable in Police Court at the end of three days incur at least $3 court costs.

FIRING OF GARBAGE WORKER IS UPHELD BY MERIT BOARD

The Civil Service Commission this afternoon upheld the action of the city in dismissing William Hicks, Negro foreman at the garage of the garbage disposal headquarters, finding he had been discharged for just cause and not for union activity.

Immediately following the announcement of the unanimous decision, Director of Streets and Sewers Arthur C. Meyers sent an ultimatum to each of the 123 employes of the section, who have been on strike since March 25, directing them to return to their duties no later than Monday morning. Those who do not return, he stated, will be regarded as having resigned.

Meyers' warning to the strikers called attention to the serious public-health problem faced by the city as a result of the work stoppage that halted all municipal collection of garbage. All employes returning to work, he stated, would be accepted without prejudice.

Hicks, in appealing to the Commission, asserted he had been discharged as a result of his activity in the CIO State, County and City Municipal Workers of America.

The commission, however, found that he had been discharged for insubordination in countermanding an order given to an employe by the superintendent of the section.

Hero's Mother, Going Blind, Asks F. D. R. to Let Her See Son Again

PITTSBURGH, April 7 (AP).—"Commando" Kelly's mother, deaf and her sight fast failing, has appealed to President Roosevelt to allow her son to come home to visit her for a few days. Tech. Sgt. Charles E. Kelly, recently awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor in Italy, is but one of seven sons the widowed Mrs. Irene Kelly has in service. Two other sons, 16 and 11 years old, are home.

Last night, by the light of an oil lamp, she dictated a letter to Roosevelt saying she was "going to offer up another prayer that you will make a lonely mother's heart light and happy by letting her see Charles soon." Her 16-year-old son, Howard, did the writing with a pencil. Mrs. Kelly cannot write because of her poor sight.

"Dear Mr. President:

"I am writing this letter for my mother who is deaf and whose sight is failing. Doctors told Mom that she may never hear again and it is only a matter of time before her eyes fail her completely.

"Mom wants to thank you for the very nice letter you wrote to her about Charles. She is lonely these days, and your letter made her very happy.

"Only three of us are home now, Mom, Danny, 11, and myself. I am 16. We were sitting in the kitchen the other night while Mom was brewing a pot of tea and got to talking about Charles. Mom told me how lonesome she was and how happy she would be if she could see Charles.

"Mom would like to ask you to do her a favor, Mr. President. She knows you are very busy these days, but she would be grateful to you for the rest of her life if you would let Charles come home on a furlough for a few days.

"Mom said tonight when she goes to bed she is going to say a prayer for you and ask God to protect and guide you and give you strength to carry on your heavy burden, until victory is won.

"Mom said she was going to offer up another prayer that you will make a lonely mother's heart light and happy by letting her see Charles soon."

Kelly was decorated by Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark for his "one-man blitzkrieg" in which he singlehandedly killed about 40 Germans while acting as a rear guard for withdrawing troops.

G. O. P. HEADS FOR LETTING COCHRAN RUN UNOPPOSED

Berger, Republican Boss of 13th District, One of Those Advocating Clear Track.

STEP IS DEFENDED AS SMART POLITICS

Nolte Comments on Folly of Trying to Beat Him —Two Past Opponents Say They'll File.

Republican leaders were unanimous today in saying that John J. Cochran, veteran Democratic Congressman from the Thirteenth District, should be permitted to run unopposed for re-election in the district he has served since 1926.

During this term of Congress, Cochran suffered from a disease which necessitated amputation of both legs. He now gets around in a wheel chair while he learns to walk on crutches.

Henry L. Berger, chairman of the Republican Thirteenth District Committee, said Cochran's physical condition won't permit him to make an active campaign this year and "I'm in favor of giving him the job."

Cochran has served the district faithfully and without partisan consideration, Berger said, and it would be smart Republican politics to let him run unopposed.

"Every time Cochran has opposition," Berger said, "his Republican friends come to the polls in hordes and vote a straight Democratic ticket."

Against Opposing Him in '42.

Berger said he advocated two years ago that the Republicans put up no opposition to Cochran. "I had to take a lot of nasty digs from members of my party who said I wasn't a good Republican," he said.

"When the returns were in, Cochran had won by 14,000 votes and it was obvious that if we hadn't any opposition to him, many of our candidates would have received at least 5000 more votes than they did. That would have been enough to elect in North St. Louis at least eight more Republicans—three Justices of the Peace, three Constables and two State Representatives—than were elected."

Veteran Comptroller Louis Nolte, Republican and for many years a close personal friend of Cochran's, pointed out that it was on the same theory that the Democrats declined to place a candidate in the race against Nolte last time he ran and withdrew their candidate at an earlier election.

"It would be presumptuous of me to advise the Republican party what to do in this congressional

PLANT KEPT GOING BY STONING DUCKS AWAY FROM PIPE

A vigilant employe hurling rocks at migrating ducks was all that was keeping the Stanard-Tilton Milling Co. of Alton in production today.

It was the first day this week the plant was enjoying uninterrupted production because it was the first day northward-migrating ducks have been kept from landing in the Mississippi River near the plant and being drawn into the plant's water intake pipe, clogging it.

Early in the week the company erected a scarecrow to frighten away the ducks, but they were not frightened. They kept right on swimming up to the intake pipe and stopping the works. Then the company assigned Richard Washington, a Negro, and gave him a supply of rocks.

ASKED ABOUT SUPPORTING DEWEY, WILLKIE JUST SMILES

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP).—Cheerful but non-committal on his political future, Wendell Willkie came home today from a campaign tour on which he staked and lost his bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

As he stepped from his train at 8:15 a. m. into the rush-hour crowd of Grand Central Station, Willkie declined to add anything to the statement he made in Omaha in which he said he was withdrawing his candidacy because "it is obvious I cannot be nominated."

To all questions asked by reporters as to whether he would support the candidate of the Republican national convention and, specifically, whether he would support Gov. Thomas E. Dewey should he be the nominee, Willkie merely smiled.

"I made my statement in Omaha," he said. "It was completely comprehensive and I don't want to add to it."

By JAMES F. KING

WITH AN AMERICAN INFANTRY DIVISION SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, April 7 (AP).—Lt.-Gen. Omar N. Bradley of Missouri told American officers preparing for the invasion of Europe today that "this stuff about tremendous losses is tommyrot."

"The success of the whole war depends on this operation and I have no fear of its outcome," the commander of American ground forces in the United Kingdom assured officers who will lead the doughboys into action.

"When the time comes you will be surprised by the naval gunfire and airpower we have.

"Some of you won't come back, but it will be very few.

"In the Tunisian campaign we lost only an average of three or four men to 1000 and certainly seeing a show like this ought to be worth that chance.

"They say Barnum & Bailey had the greatest show on earth, but that will be only a sideshow compared to the one you will be in. When your men get up to fight you will be scared, but it will be up to you to get up and lead your men in attack.

"Put your men in the right frame of mind. You can't surrender in warfare. Fight it out to the last ammunitions. The enemy might be as bad off as you are. It is much better to do that than to be made prisoner."

"I have heard rumors that 90 per cent of us wouldn't come back," he continued.

"That is tommyrot. I think you are lucky to have this opportunity and I am happy to be with you. We have the best soldiers and best equipment and more of it than the Germans ever dreamed of. After a few days of it you won't have anything to worry about."

He urged the officer not to "condemn your men too quickly if they show fear in the early stages" but to "exert your leadership and lead them forward."

Warning that "the German will play dirty," Bradley said: "I know of cases where he has booby-trapped the dead. Don't trust him very far. Sometimes they will come out waving white flags and then open fire on you."

U. S. ACE CLAIMS 27 PLANES DESTROYED, EIGHT ON GROUND

A UNITED STATES FIGHTER BASE IN ENGLAND, April 7 (AP).—Capt. Don S. Gentile, 23-year-old Mustang pilot from Piqua, O., today claimed the destruction of 27 enemy planes—at least eight of them on the ground.

Gentile had 22 victories when he took off Wednesday for a fighter sweep over Berlin. When he climbed out of his plane a few hours later, he submitted reports of five more planes destroyed on the ground. Three of these he claimed for himself, the other two he shared with his wingman, Lt. Johnny Godfrey of Woonsocket, R. I.

Gentile's claims are now before the judgment board. It is possible that all five claims will be disallowed and Gentile will find himself back with only 22 victories.

Twenty-seven planes would be one more than the record established by Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker in the first World War and equaled by two Marine flyers in the Pacific in this war.

The crediting of planes destroyed on the ground toward ace ratings is a new practice, if officially established. The assignment of credit for shared kills varies. In the Pacific, half and third credits are given. At least one command in Britain gives each pilot sharing a plane a full credit.

HERSHEY SAYS U.S. NEEDS BIG FORCES FOR VOICE IN PEACE

Men of Draft Age Split Into 3 Groups, Boards Told to Ease Calls on Those 30 to 38.

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP).—With the announcement that the Army now is at its planned maximum strength of 7,700,000, Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, draft director, indicated last night that large monthly quotas of men will be drafted almost indefinitely and that demobilization must be slow.

He said 150,000 men a month—"a very conservative estimate"—would be required merely to maintain the Army and Navy at full strength in wartime, and he hinted that many inductions might be required even after the war is won.

If his estimates are right, Hershey said in a speech approved by the State Department, we must be prepared to draft at least 150,000 men a month "until such time as the international picture indicates that this nation can support its vital national interests with a smaller number."

"Our voice in the establishment of peace will be heard only as it is backed by military strength," he asserted.

Men Divided Into Three Groups.

Men of draft age were divided into three age groups today and local boards were instructed to go easier on the men inthe 30-to-38 bracket, following out a policy laid down by Hershey in a speech Tuesday. The 6400 local boards got their latest instructions on job deferments in a memorandum sent by mail.

Although dependency as a test for deferment has long since yielded to job essentiality and age, the boards were told that prewar fathers 26 and over, in cases where

STETTINIUS, AIDS IN BRITAIN TO TAKE UP POLICY ISSUES

Talks May Pave Way for F. D. R., Churchill, Stalin Meeting — Boundaries a Topic.

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

LONDON, April 7 (AP).—Edward R. Stettinius Jr., United States Under Secretary of State, arrived today for a series of important foreign policy conferences with British officials—meetings which may prepare the way for another Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin roundtable discussion.

Stettinius' arrival came at a time of mounting criticism and uncertainty in the House of Commons and Congress over British-American foreign policy and the degree of co-operation between London and Washington and with Moscow.

His talks with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Foreign Office experts are expected to cover a wide range, including the prospects of Finnish peace, negotiations with Spain, and Allied efforts to wrest the Balkan satellites from Hitler's grasp.

Secretary of State Hull, Stettinius' superior, has said the purpose of the "informal and exploratory" talks here is to consider matters of interest to the United States and Britain at this time.

With Stettinius also are H. Freeman Matthews, deputy director of the State Department's Office of European Affairs; Wallace

Horse Carriage Service to Link Campbell House, Old Courthouse

An ancient barouche—one of those horse-drawn, four-passenger carriages with a driver perched on a box—will go into service Sunday afternoon hauling visitors from the Campbell House at 1508 Locust street to the Old Courthouse near the riverfront, and vice-versa.

John A. Bryan, president of the Campbell House Foundation, said that if the public response Sunday warranted, the carriage likely would be used to haul visitors between those two historic spots regularly.

"We have long felt the need of transportation between the Campbell House and the Old Courthouse," Bryan said. "No direct car line connects the two, and many out-of-town visitors have trouble finding their way from one to the other."

No charge will be made Sunday, but those using the carriage will be expected to tip the driver. The service will be maintained from 1:30 to 5 p. m.

The barouche to be used was once owned by the late Hugh Campbell, oldest son of Robert Campbell, fur trader who first owned the house. The present owner of the vehicle is Claude R. Tobin, 2548 Hebert street, a North St. Louis tavern operator, who is donating the services of the carriage and a horse.

RUSSIANS PRESS FOE BACK TOWARD THE SEA DESPITE COUNTERATTACKS

Nazi Tanks Lashing Out in Attempts to Relieve Tarnopol Garrison and Trapped Forces in Scala Pocket.

LONDON, April 7 (AP). — The Red Army reached to within 10 miles of Odessa today and captured more than 60 additional places on that front, a Soviet communique announced.

The Russians announced formation of a third trap of German forces 40 miles northwest of Odessa, in which "the remnants of five or six divisions" were encircled and were "being wiped out."

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, April 7 (AP). — The Germans have rushed special units into line with orders to defend Odessa at "any cost" and are battling on the close approaches to that Black Sea port from favorable positions behind the many lagoons and lakes protecting the stronghold, dispatches reported today.

While the Nazis struck out in strong counterattacks from their hard-pressed base, Russian Stormovik planes and bombers pounded at the city's defenses and lines of communications.

Inside the tightening Soviet arc, harassed Germans and Rumanian troops were being herded closer to the shores of the Black Sea and their last remaining escape corridor across the Dniester estuary, 20 miles southwest of Odessa.

Nazis Hit Back at Tarnopol.

Three hundred miles to the northwest the Russians engaged in stiff battles against large groups of enemy tanks, infantry and self-propelled guns sent to relieve the besieged German garrison at Tarnopol in old Poland. The attack was launched southwest of Tarnopol, and came after troops of Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First Ukrainian Army had captured more than half of the city. Street fighting has been reported going on since Monday.

Attempts to lift the siege yesterday were repulsed with heavy losses, the Soviet command announced, but it added that fierce fighting was continuing.

The Germans, it appeared, were attempting to rescue both the Tarnopol garrison and the remnants of 15 divisions encircled in the Skala sector, northeast of Czernowitz and west of Kamenets Podolsk, and have thrown formidable forces into the drive to crack the Russian cordons. Zhukov's troops, however, tightened their encirclement near Skala by capturing several strongpoints, including the fortified town of Skala itself.

The Russians announced that war booty captured in the Skala fighting included 29 transport planes and four fighters. The transport planes apparently had been held in readiness to fly high military personnel from the encircled area after delivering supplies to the trapped forces.

15-Mile Gain in Odessa Area.

In the drive on Odessa, one column of Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Third Ukrainian Army yesterday advanced 15 miles in a flanking thrust from captured

HOLLANDIA HIT IN 320-TON RAID, JAPS FAIL TO PUT UP AIR OPPOSITION

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific, April 7 (AP).—Continuing to concentrate their heavy striking power on the western flank of Japan's South Pacific holdings, Allied planes have struck a new, heavy blow at Hollandia in Dutch New Guinea and hammered enemy targets as far west as Koepang on Timor, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique reported today.

The Hollandia attack was carried out by 250 planes which dropped 320 tons of bombs and fired more than 250,000 rounds of ammunition, centering their attention on the town and the harbor. Gun positions and fuel dumps were destroyed and one vessel was set afire, MacArthur's communique said.

Not one enemy plane rose to fight the Allied raiders, testifying to the effectiveness of the 400-ton Sunday attack which was aimed at Hollandia's three airfields. Antiaircraft fire Wednesday, moderate at first, tapered off quickly and no Allied planes were lost.

Kaimana and Sorong, also on Dutch New Guinea, were attacked by heavy bombers.

Meanwhile, more than 100 Thunderbolt and Lightning fighters strafed islands and shipping down the New Guinea coast to Aitape and Wewak.

In other attacks, Allied planes started fires at Dili and Koepang on Timor in the Dutch East Indies; strafed coastal villages on Waterfall and Wide Bays, New Britain; bombed the Buka airdrome and seaplane base on Bougainville in the American-dominated Solomons, and attacked installations on the Hansa-Madang coast on New Guinea.

Truk underwent its fourteenth air attack in the current series to remove it as an obstacle in the westward advance of Allied forces. Fires were started on Dublon in the Truk group by Solomons-based planes.

ARMY BOMBERS HIT WAKE AND PONAPE

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP).—American Army Liberators poured 44 tons of bombs on Wake Island Wednesday night in the second attack this week, damaging storage areas and repair and maintenance facilities for Japanese aircraft.

The Pacific fleet press announcement on the assault also reported an Army bomber attack on Ponape Island in the Eastern Carolines, and air blows on four unidentified enemy positions in the Eastern Marshall Islands.

SKELTON 1-A IN ARMY; NEEDS HEALTH STATEMENT TO MARRY

LOS ANGELES, April 7 (AP).—Comedian Richard (Red) Skelton has a quip for almost every occasion, but when he walked into the Marriage License Bureau yesterday with Muriel Chase, movie actress, the gag was on him. He didn't have the required State health certificates.

However, Skelton and Miss Chase filled out their applications. They were told to return with the certificates before the license could be issued.

"Why I'm in A-1 condition, or at least 1-A," was the immediate Skelton reaction. He explained that he recently passed his Army physical examination.

Miss Chase, known professionally as Muriel Morris, met Skelton while playing showgirl parts in his movies. He said they had been acquainted about two years, but decided on marriage only about an hour before going to the License Bureau.

RED PLANES DROP 1000 TONS OF MATERIAL TO ONE UNIT

MOSCOW, April 7 (AP). — The Soviet's smart little U2 planes have played a big role in supplying the advancing army, the Army newspaper Red Star said today, in one case dropping 1000 tons of supplies to a unit which had penetrated behind the enemy's rear.

BIG U. S. BOMBERS ATTACK NAZI AIRFIELD AT ZAGREB

By LYNN HEINZERLING

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NAPLES, April 7 (AP).—Heavy bombers of the United States Fifteenth Air Force again attacked a Balkan target yesterday, hammering this time at a German airfield in the Croatian capital of Zagreb as ground action on all Italian fronts remained at a virtual standstill.

Zagreb was vigorously defended by some 120 German planes. Sixteen were shot down in battles over northern Yugoslavia, headquarters announced, and three heavy bombers were lost.

Flying Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by Thunderbolts and Lightnings, took part in the attack. Returning crewmen reported the fight was hot and heavy, but there was nothing here to substantiate German reports describing the battle as "one of the greatest strategical defeats suffered so far" by the Fifteenth Air Force.

Nazi Patrol Routed.

Headquarters said that on the Anzio beachhead a strong German patrol attacked an Allied position a mile and a half south of Carroceto last night, but was driven back by grenades and small arms fire. Fifth Army artillery and tank destroyers blasted enemy gun positions there during the day.

A dispatch sent from the beachhead last night by Associated Press War Correspondent Kenneth L. Dixon said the Germans had ringed the Allied defenses with several huge guns capable of combing the entire beachhead from the front line to the coast.

"These include some railroad guns with a potential range up to 54,000 yards (more than 30 miles), which means that the Germans could literally sit in Rome and shell shipping in Anzio Bay," Dixon wrote.

Although the Germans' artillery outranges the Allied guns at least four or five miles—and sometimes more than 10 miles—the Fifth Army forces outnumbered the enemy both in artillery available and in ammunition, Dixon wrote.

Patrolling at Cassino.

In Cassino, the Germans made a tentative push out of the Continental Hotel, but their infantry was immediately brought under the fire of Allied artillery. Northwest of Cassino enemy patrols constantly are probing Allied lines to keep themselves informed.

While the big bombers were over Zabreg a formation of Spitfires, some carrying bombs, swooped down on the German airfield at Banja Luka, about 80 miles northeast of Sarajevo, and destroyed a large number of planes on the ground.

Medium bombers had a busy day in Italy. Mitchells blasted runways of the Perugia airdrome in northern Italy; a hydro-electric plant at Terni; a railway station as Capronica, 20 miles northwest of Rome; railway yards at Maccarese, west of the Capital and of a rail bridge to the north. Kittyhawks hit a chemical factory at Popoli.

In all air operations yesterday 28 enemy aircraft were destroyed and three Allied medium bombers and four fighters in addition to the three heavy craft were missing.

A naval announcement said three enemy supply schooners were captured in the eastern Adriatic in the past few nights during the course of constant prowlings along the Yugoslav coast to harass German shipping and island garrisons.

ROOSEVELT SAYS ANTI-INFLATION LINE HAS HELD

unprecedented for any war.

2. "Total earnings have increased, due to factors not regulated by wage controls—such as longer hours, higher paying war jobs and incentives to produce . . . the level of basic factory wage rates has been raised less than 1½ cents an hour by actions of the War Labor Board. Wages have been stabilzed.

3. "A year and a half ago the entire stabilization program was in jeopardy. The stabilization line was not only bending—it was breaking in sector after sector . . . the results during the last 12 months speak for themselves.

4. "Stabilization has brought tangible—indeed bankable—benefits to all groups. Corporation profits, both before and after taxes, rose in 1943 even above the record-breaking totals of 1942. The net income of farm operators similarly moved up to the second successive all-time high . . . stabilization has paid off on every hand and in lasting rather than illusory benefits.

5. "It has been of particular benefit to the more than 20 million people among us whose incomes cannot be increased to keep pace with rising prices." The President smilingly observed that it had protected the members of the working press who had not received increases. That was, he smiled, the best thing he could say for it.

6. "The best estimates now available indicate that the gap between the income of the American people after taxes and the volume of goods available from them to buy will be even greater this year than it was in 1943. Pocketbooks and checking accounts are bulging with money which could make it difficult to hold prices down if we went on a buying spree.

7. "The need for continued restraint and continued co-operation with every phase of the stabilization program is evident. Obviously, too, we should cling to the policies and machinery which have served us so effectively thus far."

Wage Formula Question.

After the President had finished reading, a reporter asked whether the letter could be interpreted as an answer to demands for amendment of the Little Steel formula. The CIO steel workers, in their efforts for more pay, contend this formula is outdated.

The President replied sharply that the report was not an answer to anything—it was a statement of facts. In reply to another question, he said he had not received the report from WLB Chairman Davis on cost of living figures, being made at the demand of labor leaders who argue that the Bureau of Labor Statistics index is inadequate for present times.

About French Committee.

The President, when asked for comment on the status of the French National Committee, replied that question came down to this: What is self determination? How do the people of France feel about the committee?

On the question of self-determination, he continued, he could write several columns. Neither he nor anybody in the room, he said, knew how the people in France felt because none had been there recently.

"Does that mean," a reporter asked, "that you think the French Committee does not represent the people in France?"

The President said that he did not know whether the committee accurately represented the feelings of the people in France and neither did his inquirer. In answering the question of self-determination, he said, would you have that question settled by persons who are not in France. Wasn't that question, he asked, rather difficult.

Comment on Russia.

Disclaiming any special knowledge about the Russian fighting the President said that the campaigns were going on extremely well, and that in addition to jeopardizing a large amount of new territory, the Russians were getting into more places where they could strike not only west but south and southwest. This raised the ultimate question, he said, whether Germany had the manpower to occupy the Balkans. He could not prognosticate, he said, about what would happen.

He said that the military situation prevented making public the text of the Italian armistice terms, and when a reporter noted that the reason for withholding this information might be "political" rather than "military security," he replied that this was an error—things had not swung far enough from the military to the other (political) side.

He said the only thing we know about Rumanian peace feelers is that the Rumanians seem to have an agent out trying to make contacts.

He said that he had talked with Secretary of State Hull about the Secretary's broadcast Sunday evening on American foreign policy, but had not seen the final draft of the speech.

RUSSIAN PLANES BOMB NAZIS IN ODESSA BATTLE

The thrust from Razdelnaya, important rail junction 38 miles from Odessa, smashed a fierce Axis counterattack aimed at recapturing that control point for traffic westward into Bessarabia. Malinovsky's troops then pushed down the railway to storm Karpovo, 23 miles northwest of Odessa, and fanned out to take Grosulova, 18 miles northwest of Razdelnaya.

The Soviet command said that from the north another Russian column surged down the banks of the rain-swollen Kuyalnik River for 13 miles to capture Maryanovka, 21 miles from Odessa, while from the northeast a third force swept along the shores of the Black Sea to storm the town of Sverdlovo, 14 miles from the heart of the city.

Dispatches yesterday had reported the Reds within 9 miles of Odessa.

HITLER APPOINTS GOEBBELS AS PRESIDENT OF BERLIN

LONDON, April 7 (AP).—Adolf Hitler has appointed Joseph Paul Goebbels "president of the Reich capital" with final authority over direction of battered Berlin's war effort, a German broadcast said today.

The broadcast added that Goebbels' present posts as Propaganda Minister and Gauleiter would not be affected.

The German news agency DNB reported that Herbert Backe had been elevated to the post of Reichsminister of the Department of Food and Agriculture.

BIDDLE GIVES CIO CLEAN BILL ON POLITICAL ACTION

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP).—Attorney General Biddle said today an investigation of activities of the CIO's Political Action Committee disclosed no violation of criminal provisions of the Federal Corrupt Practices Act or of laws limiting the amount of election campaign contributions.

Biddle's statement was made in a letter to Representative Smith (Dem.) Virginia, chairman of a House Committee to investigate executive agencies.

The Virginian had charged in a letter to the Justice Department that a "flagrant violation" of the Corrupt Practices Act was disclosed by an article by CIO President Philip Murray in the February issue of the American Magazine.

The article, Smith contended, described the political action committee and stated that various CIO unions had made an initial contribution of $700,000 to the work of the committee.

Biddle said he had directed the F. B. I. to investigate not only possible violations of the Corrupt Practices Act, but to look also for any violation of the Hatch Act limiting contributions in connection with elections for Federal office.

"It appears that to date there has been discovered no violation by the Political Action Committee of the criminal provisions of the Federal Corrupt Practices Act, as amended, or of the Federal statute limiting the amount which may be contributed in connection with an election," Biddle wrote Smith.

"Certain expressions in the article in the American Magazine, to which your letter referred, might be subject to the construction that in the future action might be taken by the committee which would not conform to the provisions of the Federal statute; but no such illegal action has been discovered.

If future acts by the committee of a nature prohibited by the act should occur, I can assure you that appropriate action will be taken by this department."

SERVICE FORCES TO TAKE CONTROL AT BARRACKS

Post to Be Transferred Soon From the Authority of the Army Air Forces.

Jefferson Barracks, operated by the Army Air Forces as a basic training center for almost four years, will be transferred shortly to the Army Service Forces, it was learned officially today at Headquarters, A. A. F. Eastern Technical Training Command, 455 Lake avenue.

The Army Service Forces, formerly the Army Service of Supply, has charge of supply for all branches of the Army, as well as induction and recruiting. The A. A. F. personnel now at Jefferson Barracks will be transferred to other A. A. F. installations in the Eastern Technical Training Command, which extends from Sioux City, Ia., eastward to the Atlantic Coast.

A statement authorized by Maj. Gen. Jacob E. Fickel, head of the Training Command, said that details of the change had not been worked out, and that it was not known exactly when the transfer will take place.

The War Department's plans for qthe change have not been received here, but the statement authorized by Gen. Fickel said: "It is not believed that the transfer will result in any interruption of the long career of Jefferson Barracks as an active military post."

Jefferson Barracks was established in 1826, and was operated by the Infantry until Aug. 23, 1940, when it was taken over by the A. A. F., and became the basic training center No. 1 for that branch.

A limited induction center has been operated at Jefferson Barracks, in connection with the A. A. F. program there. The principal function of the post, however, has been to train ground personnel in the first phases of military life, after which they have been sent to other installations for specialized instruction.

REDS SAY NAZIS BURNED 603 TO DEATH IN VILLAGE

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP).—The Soviet Information Bureau broadcast last night the text of an affidavit charging that the German Army had burned 603 men, women and children to death in the village of Malin in the Ostrozhets district of Rovno province.

The affidavit was signed by eyewitnesses and investigators, the broadcast said. The Soviet charge did not give the date.

U.S. Co-ordinating Raids on Balkan Targets With Red Army's Advance

By WES GALLAGHER

LONDON, April 7 (AP). — Military co-operation between the western Allies and Russia, which often has left much to be desired in this war, has taken a sudden turn for the better with American bombers co-ordinating closely with Red Army ground forces in the conquest of the Balkans.

Allied raids on Rumania at Bucharest and Ploesti were carried out with the knowledge and consent of the Red Army, the best informed military sources in London said. The attacks, presently on a rough co-ordinated basis, are being developed by the use of liaison groups into close and specific teamwork, these informants said.

The last assaults have been carried out on what was described as "a broad strategic basis" and the Russian and Allied liaison now is in the "transition stages," working toward operations constructed much the same way as the American and British forces work in direct liaison.

The hard necessities of war are bringing about this teamwork where continuous diplomatic and military missions attempts have failed.

Teamwork Essential.

Now, as the Russians drive into the Balkans, it is imperative that the Allied air effort be co-ordinated with the Red Army advances to avoid conflict in bombing targets—as well as the possibility of bombing advance units of Soviet troops.

If Russian and American planes should elect to bomb the same target at the same time without liaison, the result would be an air melee with a good chance the two forces would mistake each other for the enemy and engage in battle.

The Russians have had military missions in London and in the Mediterranean for some time.

It has not been made known whether American air liaison officers would be allowed to accompany the Red armies in future operations, although this obviously would be desirable.

Zones Overlap.

Close co-operation is becoming increasingly important. While ground forces are not likely to be fighting in the same area for many months, the Red Army blows must be co-ordinated with the western front effort to obtain the maximum military efficiency.

The operations of the air forces already overlap in Rumania and as the Red Army advances it will come into the Allied spheres of operation in many places.

Writing last night from Naples, Associated Press War Correspondent Daniel de Luce said that as yet there was no information whether Allied bombers might undertake shuttle operations between Italy and Soviet-held territory.

The necessity for any such arrangement, he said, appears doubtful, since all Nazi targets in the Balkans already can be hit by bombers based in Italy.

Reds Doing Biggest Job.

De Luce declared that the Mediterranean Air Forces could claim only a fraction of the credit in the event that Germany's grip on the Balkans should be torn loose this spring.

He said that the American airmen "realize they cannot by themselves force a military decision in the East."

MARINE SENDS JAP MONEY, HIS TAX BILL IS CANCELED

CHICAGO, April 7 (AP). — A Marine Sergeant stationed "somewhere in the Southwest Pacific" sent Cook County Assessor John S. Clark a Japanese 50 sen note yesterday as initial payment on his 1942 personal tax.

Staff Sgt. Gerald A. Waindel wrote he had taken the money from a Japanese "who failed to observe" the Marine bayonet, and that if the payment were insufficient he would get some more money from the same place.

Clark commented, "I hope he kills another Japanese tomorrow, whether he's got money or not. I'm also going to see that the assessment is canceled."

"If this payment is insufficient," Waindel's letter said, "there will be another along in a minute with a few Bank of Tokyo notes on him."

NEW TELEVISION VACUUM TUBE

Firm Says It Will Provide Clear Reception on Home Sets.

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP). — General Electric Co. has disclosed development of a new vacuum tube which the firm says can operate home television sets with as much clarity as ordinary radio receivers on regular wave lengths.

The tube is about four inches long and an inch in diameter and, according to General Electric, generates its power at frequencies as high as 1000 megacycles and beyond. At present stations find it difficult to operate efficiently beyond about 80 megacycles, it was said.

1500 STEEL MEN QUIT FOR 'EASTER HOLIDAY'

Granite City CIO Workers Say Company Ignored Seniority in Layoffs.

Production of war material for the Army and Navy was halted this morning at the Commonwealth Division of the General Steel Castings Corporation at Granite City when about 1500 members of the CIO United Steel Workers of America walked off the job for what they termed "an Easter holiday."

The strike, which was not authorized by union leaders, was a protest against the recent practice of the company of laying off men with high seniority ratings instead of dismissing newer employes first, the strikers told a Post-Dispatch reporter. They said they would return to work Monday morning.

Company spokesmen said they had not been informed why the men quit, and declined to comment on layoff methods. The protesting workers comprise the majority of the morning shift at the plant. The plant employs a total of about 4000 workers on a three-shift basis.

War material produced by the plant includes tanks and locomotives. Production activities recently have been curtailed. Last Sunday, for the first time in nearly two years, the plant did not operate.

EISENHOWER SENDS SHOULDER PATCHES TO BOY BOND SELLER

CHICAGO, April 7 (AP).—Leslie Simon, 11 years old, found himself his school's center of attention yesterday when he showed up sporting shoulder patch pads Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower wore in the North African campaign.

The lad sold $4300 worth of war bonds, more than anyone in his class. He also did his bit collecting waste paper to aid the war effort.

These things he mentioned in a letter to Gen. Eisenhower and asked for an insignia "from your personal coat." Eisenhower replied he had no Army insignia to send, but inclosed the patches "that I wore in the North African campaign."

SOME INSPECTION SLIPS MISSING AT CARTRIDGE PLANT

ARMY REJECTED 80,000 IN A DAY

Captain of Military Intelligence Says All Had Been Passed by Company Inspectors.

Testimony that some daily inspection records are missing from the files of the St. Louis Ordnance Plant was given today by Irwin DeGrote, an inspector, at the trial of five former inspection supervisors at the plant.

Among the missing records, DeGrote said, are those of Oct. 16, 1942, the date the Government contends thousands of cartridges were passed by the supervisors without proper inspection. The missing records would show, he added, the number of .50-caliber machinegun cartridges rejected by individual company inspectors on that day.

Under cross-examniation, De Grote said some of the information contained in the daily records was included in the monthly inspection records of individual inspectors. He said the missing records were kept in boxes in the office of Paul E. Thaller, a defendant. They became confused with wast paper and were thrown out by janitors, he testified.

Capt. John M. Curran, military intelligence officer, previously had testified Army Ordnance Department inspectors, who examined the cartridges after company inspectors passed them, had rejected 80,000 on Oct. 16, 1942, for visual defects alone.

Mrs. Rosella Hoer, a former inspector at the plant, testified yesterday that on that day, Miro Brda, Amos Bruce Phelps and Edmund Peter Becker, three of the defendants, attempted to persuade her to speed up her visual-inspection process, disregarding her protests that "this shouldn't be done."

The other defendant in United States District Judge George H. Moore's court is George John Wuigk All are charged in joint indictments with sabotage, fraud and conspiracy in passing ammunition that had not been properly inspected under the terms of the Government's contract with United States Cartridge Co., which operates the plant for the Government.

Phelps and Brda urged Mrs. Hoer to try to increase her daily average of cartridges inspected, she said, and later Becker and Brda asked her to inspect 100 boxes. She said she laughed at their request, because it would mean handling 18,000 cartridges in one day, more than twice her daily average.

She testified she had a mental picture of her nephew, Kenneth Eilermann of 5654 Acme avenue, who was on duty with the Navy in the South Pacific, when she picked up a handful of .50-caliber cartridges, shook them in the face of Phelps and said, "I'm glad my son doesn't have to shoot anything like this." Her son, Marvin, is now 17 years old.

Phelps told her she was suffering from war nerves and instructed her to keep on packing the stuff. "It's all good ammunition," she quoted him as saying as he walked away from her table.

Mrs. Hoer, who lives at 4319A College avenue, said she saw Brda scoop up handfuls of uninspected .50-caliber cartridges, weigh them and place them on skids to which he attached cards certifying they had been inspected and found perfect.

A note in her memoranda book, under the date of Oct. 16, 1942, was read into the court record. It said: "Talked my mind to Brda today." She said the date was easy for her to remember since it was her nephew's birthday.

Five roving inspectors, Eugene Stilker, Joseph E. Oberschmidt, George Lloyd, Beauford Epps and Lawrence Baker, testified they were sent to the second floor of Building 105 on Oct. 16, 1942, to assist in clearing the storage bins, which were filled to capacity. They said inspection started normally enough, but as the day wore on it became progressively more rapid and less exacting under the pressure exerted by supervisors.

Elwood Barbeau, a former move man, whose duty it was to remove boxes of cartridges from inspection tables after they had been inspected, said he heard one of the women inspectors remark to another, "there's some awful inspection going on here today." He said he had noted it was exceedingly fast and at the close of the day, Phelps had said to him, "How's that for a day's work?" To which Barbeau replied, "It will all come back tomorrow, rejected."

COLUMBUS, O., April 7 (AP).—A 24-year-old bride began yesterday the long wait for the man she married two hours before he started serving 25 consecutive life sentences for burglary in Ohio Penitentiary. Under Ohio law, anyone who has served 10 years of a life sentence must be considered for parole. Swain said he would study engineering while in prison.

Dewey Expected to Pick Up Most Of Strength From Willkie Forces

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP).—The difficult road that lies ahead for any dark-horse hopefuls was impressed on Republicans today as a result of Wendell L. Willkie's retirement from the race for the party's presidential nomination.

With Willkie out of the running, a swing appeared underway for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York. Indications developed that Dewey would collect a major share of the support which Willkie renounced after his defeat in Tuesday's Wisconsin primary.

Among these was the prediction of Senator Danaher (Rep.), Connecticut, that most of Connecticut's 16 uninstructed delegates, to be selected next week, would favor Dewey. Willkie's greatest preconvention strength was in New England and it is there that other candidates would have to make inroads if they hoped to transfer his support to themselves.

Hope of Deadlock Fades.

There were some Republicans who had considered it possible that Dewey and Willkie would present almost equal strength on the first ballot. Any such result, they said, might lead to one of those convention deadlocks from which dark horses spring galloping.

This was the frankly expressed hope of Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, who has been saying that the Republicans ought to nominate Gen. Douglas MacArthur. The Southwest Pacific commander, Vandenberg contends, is the only man who successfully could oppose President Roosevelt on what promises to be one of the major campaign issues, the Democratic argument against electing an inexperienced man as commander in chief.

But the surge to Dewey appeared likely to scuttle any such movement, despite the three votes MacArthur picked up in Wisconsin. There was some doubt in various states where Willkie delegates would go, but the professional Republican minority in the South appeared primed to board the New York Governor's bandwagon.

Bricker's Hopes.

Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio generally has been credited with strength in the South, largely on the assumption that his friend, Senator Taft (Rep.), Ohio, could deliver some of the 1940 Southern Taft following to him. Bricker told a press conference yesterday that he hoped a share of Willkie strength would migrate his way, but there were no outward indications of such a trend.

Thus Bricker appeared to be in no position to duplicate 1940's events, when Taft and Dewey came into the convention with the lion's share of the delegates and created the stalemate that permitted Willkie, a political unknown, to walk off with the nomination.

Senator Nye (Rep.), North Dakota, declared it was "unfortunate" that Willkie had sought "to place responsibility for the success of Gov. Dewey in the Wisconsin election at the door of 'organizations such as the America First committee.'"

"Mr. Willkie thereby contributes to the continuing propaganda against so-called 'isolationism,'" Nye said in a statement. "Such propaganda would try to discredit the Republican party, label it as an instrument intending to avoid American co-operation with the world."

Dewey-Warren Ticket Discussed.

Meanwhile, talk in political circles increased of a Republican ticket composed of Dewey and Gov. Earl Warren of California.

Those who predict a Dewey-Warren ticket were arguing this way: In view of the fact that the Republicans have demonstrated much strength in the Midwest and the South is traditionally Democratic, the crucil election battlegrounds this year will be the East and the West. Warren comes from the West's most populous state, just as Dewey represents the biggest in the East.

Moreover, it is argued, the addition of Warren to the ticket might be calculated to attract many voters who supported Willkie because of his international views. Warren has advocated an international police force to prevent future aggression.

Gov. Warren Says His Position Is Not Changed.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 7 (AP). — Wendell Willkie's withdrawal as a candidate "has not changed by position" and has not affected the position of the California delegation of 50 to the Republican national convention, Gov. Earl Warren said at his press conference yesterday.

He repeated that he was not an actual candidate for either the presidential or vice-presidential nomination. Technically, however, he is a candidate, because the only presidential ticket on the May 16 California primary ballot is pledged to him.

Asked if he would consent to run for Vice-President if "drafted" at the convention, Warren said: "I do not care to comment on that. There is nobody representing me and there is nobody I am close to doing anything for me in that respect."

Warren reported that he will not, as he did in 1936 when he also headed the California delegation, release the delegation in advance of the convention.

Stassen Gains Another Delegate, Late Returns Indicate.

MILWAUKEE, April 7 (AP).—Late Wisconsin election returns indicated today that Lt. Comdr. Harold E. Stassen had gained another delegate, raising his total to four who will support his homination for President at the Republican National Convention.

On the basis of returns from 2820 of the State's 3076 precincts, the Wisconsin lineup now stands at 15 delegates pledged to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, four pledged to Stassen, three to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, and two uninstructed, but favoring Dewey.

Stassen picked up his fourth delegate in the Tenth District, where Mabel Gross of Stone Lake, pledged to Stassen, had the lead according to returns from 397 of the district's 403 precincts. She had 5506 votes, only eight more than another Stassen-pledged candidate, Harry Simon of Ashland.

Bricker for Intelligent Self-Interest on Postwar Problems.

CHICAGO, April 7 (AP).—Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio stated today the United States should "exercise intelligent self-interest" in dealing with postwar problems, and should retain strategic bases it has built in various parts of the world.

Campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination, he asserted in an address before the Executives' Club that all nations should approach postwar problems "in mutual, fair understanding."

"This nation, like other participants in the peace, should exercise intelligent self-interest," he added. "Secret commitments have no part in the processes of the republic.

"The retention of strategic bases and installations throughout the world which we have built with our sweat and substance and for which we have fought with blood and the lives of our boys is an absolute essential to our future safety. . . . National prudence tells us we must retain those that are necessary to avoid future attack."

Bricker said American soldiers were not fighting their way to posssesion of Pacific islands "only to have our leaders give them all away with a grandiose gesture at some future conference table."

SOVIET PAPERS CARRY WILLKIE'S WITHDRAWAL; NO KREMLIN COMMENT

MOSCOW, April 7 (AP).

WENDELL WILLKIE'S withdrawal as a presidential candidate was noted with interest today by Russian newspaper readers but there was no editorial comment reflecting the Kremlin's attitude.

Most people here, however, seem to believe President Roosevelt is sure of renomination and, with Willkie out of the running, they figure the campaign is all but over.

Gov. Dewey and other possible candidates, except perhaps Gen. MacArthur, are virtually unknown to the Russians.

'NOT CANDIDATE,' DEWEY REPEATS; SILENT ON DRAFT

Some of Backers Intimate He May Keep Mum Until G. O. P. Convention in June.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 7 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey stuck diligently to his State duties today after indicating strongly that he will not be stampeded into a declaration that he wants or will accept the Republican nomination for President.

In his first press conference since Wendell L. Willkie's withdrawal from the presidential race, Dewey stood adamantly last night on his previous statements that he is "not a candidate" for the nomination.

The 42-year-old New York Governor declined to comment on Willkie's withdrawal, announced Tuesday night after the Wisconsin primary election in which Dewey won 15 to 18 of 24 delegates elected to the Republican national convention and Willkie got none.

The results increased Dewey's already long lead over other possible nominees in delegates pledged or claimed and whipped up widespread sentiment for a declaration of his candidacy. Friends believe he will accept the nomination, if the convention offers it.

But the Governor, announcing that he was not going to comment "on any political question," told reporters: "I am wholly engaged in attempting to dispose, in a 30-day period, of the 900 bills left by the Legislature."

Then he listened smilingly as a reporter asked: "In view of Mr. Willkie's withdrawal from the race and your own long lead for the nomination, will you become an avowed candidate?"

He repeated his "no comment," but amplified it quickly with the assertion that "I have discussed that subject so many times, my position on it is entirely clear."

Dewey has declared repeatedly that he is "not a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination," but has remained silent on whether he would accept a draft-nomination. Some of his backers intimate he may maintain that silence until the convention, which opens June 26.

He said he has "no plans" to make any speeches outside the State, aside from his scheduled appearance late in May before the Governors' Conference at Hershey, Pa.

Two of Oklahoma Delegates Instructed for Dewey.

ENID, Ok., April 7 (AP).—Two delegates instructed to vote for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for the presidential nomination were elected at the Eighth Oklahoma District Republican convention yesterday.

Lew H. Wentz, national committeeman and one of the delegates chosen, predicted that Dewey would be nominated on the first ballot.

Two delegates favorable to Dewey, but uninstructed, were elected in the Sixth District earlier this week. The other delegates of the State's 30 will be chosen in later conventions.

ORDER MADE FINAL FOR WATCHMEN ON 2 CROSSINGS

State Board Also Instructs Wabash to Erect Signals Where 14 Were Killed.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., April 7.—A final order directing the Wabash Railroad to maintain watchman service at the grade crossings of its tracks on Bartmer and Etzel avenues, St. Louis County, from 6:50 a. m. to 10:50 p. m. daily, and to install reflector warning signs at these crossings and at Plymouth avenue, was issued late yesterday by the Missouri Public Service Commission.

The order replaces a temporary order for the watchman service issued by the commission Feb. 9, after a hearing following a bus-train collision at the Etzel crossing Jan. 23, which resulted in the death of 14 occupants of the bus.

The new order directs the Wabash to restrict the speed of its trains over the crossing to not more than 20 miles an hour, when watchmen are not on duty. The former limit, for Etzel avenue only, was 10 miles an hour.

"If the cost is not excessive," the commission stated in its report, "a grade separation appears justified at Bartmer avenue, and its need is evidenced by the use of Bartmer as a major thoroughfare. However, the practicability of the construction is contingent upon the solution of the rather difficult drainage problem."

The commission made no order in connection with the grade separation suggestion, but said Wabash officials recently had conferred with St. Louis County authorities and had prepared a preliminary plan for a grade separation at Bartmer. The commission suggested as an alternative plan the installation of automatic gates at the three crossings, but did not direct their installation at this time.

CARR SQUARE EVICTION CASE IS DROPPED AFTER PROTEST

Eviction proceedings against Cornelius King, Negro, of Carr Square Village, who owed half of January and all of February rent, were dropped hastily today and a crowd of about 75 friends and fellow tenants, who had paraded with signs in protest of his proposed eviction, retired to their homes.

King was served with an eviction notice last Friday, he told a Post-Dispatch reporter, after he had written a check for the full amount of the rent he owed, plus $10 for Justice of the Peace Court costs. The total was $63, he said. The check "bounced," he added, but he did not know why.

A representative from the office of Constable John Ledbetter of the Fifth Justice of the Peace District, said the eviction was canceled after King obtained a certificate from a physician that his son, Kenneth King, 18 months old, was ill with bronchial pneumonia and could not be moved. Residents of the housing project, however, said they would withhold payment of May rent until they have a conference with St. Louis Housing Authority officials.

Second Chimp Ever Born at Zoo To Have Role in Summer Shows

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer

Ape, Now Seven Weeks Old, Will Be Carried Onto Stage by Mother While Father Passes Out Cigars.

Director George P. Vierheller of the zoo in Forest park, who doesn't let many opportunities slip by, announced today his plans to use to an advantage the zoo's newest and smallest baby ape in this summer's chimpanzee shows.

The baby chimp, seven weeks old and the second one ever born at the St. Louis Zoo, will be brought onto the stage of the monkey arena by its mother, Alice, a star of last season's monkeyshines.

Mother and baby will be accompanied by the proud father, Jitter, a long-time favorite, who will pass out cigars to the other chimpanzees in the troupe, a stunt Vierheller figures should wow the audiences.

The baby chimp, a female, was born last Feb. 15, weighing two pounds. It is strong and healthy and has gained weight steadily; it now weighs five and a half pounds.

It was exhibited yesterday afternoon for the first time to a group of reporters and photographers and to Mrs. Aloys P. Kaufmann, wife of the Mayor, who was on hand. Vierheller announced he was naming the baby Margaret, for Mrs. Kaufmann.

Announcement of the birth of the new chimp was withheld until zoo authorities were convinced it would live and do well. The only other chimp born at the zoo died in 1942, a couple of months after birth. Its mother would not nurse it, and although kept in an incubator, the little one died of pneumonia.

Zoo officials, however, say the present baby has a good chance to survive. Alice shows all sorts of mother love for her baby, carrying it about on her shoulder, and sometimes clapping her paws to provide it amusement. She is trying to teach it to walk.

The mother's milk is supplemented by milk from a bottle, and concentrated vitamins. They started feeding the little chimp orange juice yesterday.

POLICE CALLED AS PROTECTION TO DRAFT BOARDS

Friends, Relatives of Fathers and Older Men Demonstrated Against Officials in County.

Policemen have been assigned to maintain order at certain St. Louis County Selective Service boards on several recent induction days because of threatening demonstrations by persons resentful of the fact that fathers and older industrial workers were being called up for military service while agricultural workers remained deferred.

Col. John G. Christy, Assistant Selective Service Director here, told the Post-Dispatch today that such disturbing demonstrations were made by friends and relatives of men reporting to the boards for pre-induction physical examination at Jefferson Barracks. The demonstrators, he said, have taunted draft board officials, accusing them of unfairness and discrimination.

"However," Col. Christy said, "it is unlikely there will be any more such demonstrations. The new regulations governing deferment of farm workers will trim down the list of deferred farmers to those who are absolutely irreplaceable."

He estimated that at the present time about 1000 men under 26 years of age hold agricultural deferments in St. Louis County. This number will be substantially reduced in the near future.

The demonstrations, he pointed out, were entirely unjustified. The draft boards were simply carrying out their instructions. Originally any worker on a farm producing eight or more food units was automatically deferred; last year the unit measure was raised to 16.

New instructions to the boards, he said, have eliminated the unit system. Deferment now is based entirely on the individual worker's essentiality to the satisfactory operation of the farm. The unit system did not distinguish between the various foods produced on farms, but the new regulations require that deferred workers must produce such needed commodities as wheat, corn, meat and dairy products.

The new farm deferment regulations were discussed last night at a meeting of the St. Louis County Selective Service boards and the St. Louis County War Board (the agency which checks farm production) which was attended by Col. Christy and Capt. W. F. Lovett, State director of the agricultural division of Selective Service.

JAPANESE PUSH FARTHER IN INDIA NORTH OF IMPHAL

Infiltration Units Press Toward Railway—Allies Repulse Attacks Near Manipur Base.

NEW DELHI, April 7 (AP).—Japanese troops, with established road blocks along 15 miles of the Imphal-Kohima road, have driven deeper into India and are now infiltrating into territory slightly west of the highway in the direction of the American-operated Bengal-Assam railroad, it was disclosed in a communique of the Southeast Asia command today.

A headquarters announcement said the Japanese had reached positions 40 miles from the railway, a major supply line for Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's Northern Burma offensive and air transport operations into China.

The Japanese were being engaged by Allied troops as they pushed westward, the communique said.

Imphal itself has been cut off since last Sunday by Japanese positions on the 60-mile Imphal-Kohima road, the main line of communications for the Manipur state capital.

Today's communique said the Japanese were continuing to make small, isolated attacks in the Imphal area itself, but all these were repulsed, while British patrols hampered the enemy communications west of the Chindwin River.

(A Berlin broadcast of Tokyo dispatches declared "five powerful Japanese units are closing in on Imphal" and predicted a "major battle on the Manipur plain."

(Another broadcast said Japanese planes repeatedly raided Allied airfields at Silchar, 70 miles west of Imphal, and at Kalats and Nami.)

American heavy bombers attacked the new Japanese-built Burma-Siam railway on Wednesday, destroying three bridges and probably destroyed five others. It was the second attack in a month on the supply line for Japanese forces in the Burma theater.

Other Allied air formations carried out similar missions in Southern, Central and Northern Burma at a cost of two planes.

Synonyms

Common usage is greatly responsible for new words entering our dictionary, and advertising is largely responsible for common usage.

For instance, in the camera and in the phonograph fields, there are two names which have virtually become synonyms for products manufactured in their respective industries. And, you will frequently hear a housewife mention a well-known trade name when discussing electric refrigerators—without actually meaning that particular make. These names, through common usage, are fast becoming general.

In quite a number of sections of our country, particularly in the south and west, the term Bourbon has become almost synonymous with whiskey—American whiskey. In the far west, you rarely hear the word, whiskey. You hear two words—Bourbon for American whiskey, and Scotch for foreign.

On the eastern seaboard, by the same token, the term Rye is used instead of Bourbon—again a synonym for American whiskey.

Surveys have proven that a man who asks for Bourbon in the west, or Rye in the east, is not necessarily conscious of the grains which are predominant ingredients in those whiskies. He just mentions Bourbon, or Rye, because of common usage of those terms in their respective territories.

This writer has frequently heard people say in the east, I like that XYZ Rye, and in the west, I like that XYZ Bourbon. And yet that particular blended whiskey has neither Bourbon nor Rye dominant flavor characteristics. It does have a flavor that appeals to the American taste, because of skillful blending of a number of whiskies which may, basically, be Rye or Bourbon, or both.

If you have found a blended whiskey that makes your particular taste buds happy, ask for it by name. If you merely say, "Give me a Rye," or "Give me a Bourbon," your dispenser will take you literally because he always tries to give you just what you ask for. If you ask for blended whiskey—you'll get it!

And, apropos of blends, a friend of ours recently asked, when we were discussing this subject, "You know the greatest blend of all?" He answered his own question. "It is America—a blend of the cream of the crop of many nations."

And who can disagree with that?

G. O. P. HEADS FOR LETTING COCHRAN RUN UNOPPOSED

race," Nolte said, "but I can say there was some talk about me making the race against Cochran and that I said I wouldn't do it because I didn't want to get beat."

Despite this veteran political advice, two Republicans who were decisively defeated by Cochran in past elections said today that they would file for the Republican nomination for Cochran's post. They are David E. Horn, an attorney, who was defeated by Cochran two years ago, and William Gray, an explosives engineer, who ran unsuccessfully against Cochran in 1926 and again in 1928.

Horn, who lives at 3950 Labadie avenue, is frankly an admirer of Cochran, but doesn't believe the Republicans should let him run without opposition.

"I can't take serious issue with anything in Cochran's record and must admit his acknowledged qualifications," Horn explained. "But I am not convinced that the Republicans should not, at least, have a candidate in the race. Cochran has been ill. I say this with the highest respect for him and with the sincere hope that nothing will happen to him, but if it does, I don't believe we should be caught without a candidate."

Gray States His Position.

Gray, who lives at 5370 Pershing avenue, outside of the Thirteenth District, said he would move into it to become eligible as a candidate.

"I believe that in a democracy no office should ever go unopposed," he asserted.

"If we should agree to let any public officer to run without opposition, it would be only a matter of time until we live in an absolute autocracy."

Outstate Republican leaders, who declined to permit use of their names, also believe political considerations indicate that the party place no opposition in the race against Cochran.

"Cochran's district is a long distance from mine," one of them told the Post-Dispatch, "but I have given it a lot of thought from a State-wide political standpoint. I think it would be better strategy to let him run unopposed and stay in Washington than to place a candidate in the field and force him to come down here to campaign. I'm going to talk the matter over with St. Louis Republicans when I get up there next week for the State convention.

Praises His Record.

"If I were in the district, I should insist that Cochran remain. He's a good Congressman and gets things done even for the Republicans in the district. That's more than could be accomplished by a new Republican Congressman, even if it were possible to elect one."

Another outstate Republican leader said that Cochran should be unopposed, but said he couldn't advocate that position openly. "Cochran's record as a Congressman is almost perfect," he said. "He's watched the veterans' interests and the national expenditures and he hasn't been too partisan. His seniority makes him one of the most influential members of Congress. I don't believe either the Thirteenth District, or Missouri, can afford to lose him."

Chairman Fred Evers of the Republican City Committee said he had considered several times advocating that Cochran be unopposed, but as chairman of the party committee he decided he can't propose such a course. "I know Cochran personally and think he's a fine Congressman," Evers said. "I don't attempt to keep anyone from filing against him, but I'm not encouraging it either."

ORDERS HALT IN G. O. P. SNIPING AT COURT PLAN

Evers Instructs City Committeemen After Protest by Finance Aid.

Republican City Committee members have been instructed to stop attempts to influence delegates to the Constitutional Convention to write off the nonpartisan court plan after it became known that some of the party's biggest contributors would refuse their financial support if such practices continued.

Fred W. Evers, committee chairman, yesterday in a letter to A. L. Shapleigh, a member of the party's finance committee, said he had instructed committee members to observe to the fullest extent the party's pledge of good government and that every member must refrain from attempting to influence or coerce delegates to the convention.

Shapleigh said he made his objections to such sniping tactics at a meeting of the finance committee last week, and informed the group that he would refuse to ask party contributors for money until he was assured such practices were stopped. He pointed out that the people of the State on two occasions have indorsed the court plan by a large majority at the polls. He also said some of the biggest contributors were opposed to any party attempts to influence the deliberations of the convention.

Evers in his letter to Shapleigh said: "In carrying out my promise to you and other members of the finance committee of the Republican party, I instructed members of the City Central Committee in attendance at our regular monthly meeting last Tuesday night to observe to the fullest extent our party's pledge of good government and that every member must refrain, regardless of his personal opinions, from attempting in any manner to use his official connection with our party toward influencing or coercing members of the State Constitutional Convention in their deliberations on matters pending to override the expressed will of the people.

"I am sure that no member of the State Constitutional Convention will hereafter receive any request to support measures inimical to our party's pledge to support good government."

6TH SOLDIER VOTE BILL NOW BEFORE MISSOURI HOUSE

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 7.—The last, and key, bill in Gov. Donnell's series of six measures to liberalize the absentee voting laws for Missourians absent from the State in military service is before the House today for passage. The bills were passed by the Senate last week.

Five of the bills were passed by the House yesterday without a dissenting vote. Four of them are ready to go to the Governor for approval, but the fifth, together with the bill before the House today, must be returned to the Senate for concurrence in amendments.

Most of the amendments adopted by the House yesterday were of minor importance and corrective in nature.

One amendment, sponsored by Representative Woodson Oldham (Rep.) of Webb City, which was adopted by a vote of 75 to 44, requires the military absentee voter to execute an oath, before any officer authorized to administer an oath, that he is a qualified voter, a resident of the county to which he is sending his ballot, and is absent in military service.

Secrecy of Ballot.

To assure secrecy of the voter's ballot and to eliminate influence by a superior, the amendment provides that the voter shall be instructed to seal his ballot in the prepared envelope in which it is to be mailed to the local election officials before taking the oath. The envelope will carry a certificate by the officer that the ballot envelope was presented sealed when the oath was administered.

The bills provide a period of at least 79 days for transmittal of a primary election absentee ballot to an applicant and return of the ballot to local election officials by 6 p. m. of the day following the election, if the application is on file before expiration of the period allowed for printing the ballots. In like manner, a period of at least 69 days is provided for transmittal and return of a general election absentee ballot.

The present law, rewritten in 1943, allows a maximum of only 31 days for application for, transmittal and return of a soldier ballot to local election officials.

The bills do not prescribe any period in which ballot applications must be filed. They provide for acceptance of several thousand applications for military absentee ballots already filed with the Secretary of State under a 1942 Federal act.

Methods of Application.

The absent military voter may apply by postcard, letter, telegram, cablegram or radiogram to election officials of his home county or the City of St. Louis, stating his name, voting address, and the address to which the ballot is to be sent. A request for a primary absentee ballot may be filed at the time of the applicant's induction into the armed forces.

An application for an individual absent in military service may be filed in writing by his father, mother, spouse or next of kin. Such ballots will be sent direct to the designated absentee voter by election officials.

A proposed amendment to strike out the provision for an application by relatives of soldiers, offered yesterday by Speaker Howard Elliott (Rep.) of St. Louis County, was withdrawn by Elliott after it aroused opposition that indicated it would be defeated. Elliott said the purpose of the amendment was to eliminate the possibility of fraud. The amendment was attacked on the ground it would prevent many soldiers at distant foreign posts from voting, due to delays in handling of mail.

Election officials are required to post in a conspicuous place the names and voting addresses of persons to whom war ballots are mailed as the applications are received. This will permit challenges of ballots.

Any military voter authorized to vote under the bills may cast a war ballot without complying with registration laws affecting his home county or city.

The final day for filing declarations of candidacy for party nominations for office in the August primary election is fixed as the last Tuesday in April in years in which primary elections are held. The period for filing declarations now expires 60 days before the primary election, which falls on Aug. 1 this year.

JANITOR FOUND GUILTY IN 14 APARTMENT THEFTS

Wayne B. Danielson, janitor for a group of apartment houses in the 5600 block of Enright avenue, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary yesterday by Circuit Judge James F. Assistant Circuit Attorney James W. Connor told the Court that Danielson had admitted thefts in 14 apartments. He was charged with taking a total of $618 in cash and personal property.

$19,000,000 PLAN FOR CITY POSTWAR WATER SYSTEM

Citizen's Bond Group Is Told 3 Major Proposals Embrace All Needed Improvements.

A comprehensive plan designed ultimately to effect all necessary developments in the city's water system has been completed by Acting Water Commissioner Elton E. Easterday and Director of Public Utilities Thomas J. Skinker. Total estimated cost of the improvements and changes has been placed at $18,941,000.

The plan, which Easterday said incorporates recommended improvements set out in the report of the Citizens' Survey Committee in 1941, contains three major developments: Combining the Chain of Rocks, Bissell's Point and Baden pumping stations by centralizing the facilities of all three at the Chain of Rocks; improvement of the distribution system and remodeling of the purification facilities at the Chain of Rocks.

In recommending adoption of the plan to Skinker, Easterday asserted that all future alterations or extensions of the present system, regardless of size, should be designed to fit into the major plan.

The plan was submitted yesterday to the Water Subcommittee of the Citizens' Bond Issue Committee for consideration in connection with the proposed 36-million-dollar bond issue for postwar public works. Easterday said that probably only a part of the major plan would be undertaken in the immediate postwar period.

"This plan is for the ultimate development of the water system and might not be finally completed for the next quarter of a century," Easterday said.

The plan proposes abandoning all present facilities at the Baden and Bissell's Point stations and transferring the distributive pumping to Chain of Rocks. The old gravity flow masonry conduits, which are termed in the plan a "source of possible pollution," would be abandoned and a pressure tunnel, drilled through solid rock below the old conduits, is proposed to carry the clear water to the Baden and Bissell's Point centers for distribution.

Two reasons are set out by Easterday for centralizing the pumping facilities of all three stations at the Chain of Rocks.

"A combined plant will be much more efficient and economical to operate than three widely separated plants, and use of the old masonry conduits as pure water conduits should be abandoned as soon as safer structures can be built and put in service because of their potential danger."

Estimated cost of combining these three stations is $12,436,000, but the change would result in an annual savings of approximately $305,000, Easterday said.

The second large step in the improvement plan would be accomplished by constructing a new 50-million-gallon storage reservoir in Sublette Park which would divide the present distribution system into definite high and low level systems. Total cost of this step is estimated at $5,583,000.

The third step of the plan contemplates revision of the primary sedimentation basins at the Chain of Rocks, enlargement of a part of the intake conduit, revision of three of the basins for secondary sedimentation and revision of coagulation facilities. All at an estimated cost of $922,000.

At a meeting of the Streets and Alleys Reconstruction Subcommittee of the Citizens' Bond Issue Committee yesterday, Director of Streets and Sewers Arthur C. Meyers presented the proposed plans for postwar development. The proposed program contemplates expenditures of eight million dollars, but only four million dollars of it would come from the bond issue.

Remembers His Horses in Will.

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP).—The will of Edward Pennington Pearson, filed for probate yesterday, stipulated that part of his fortune of more than $800,000 be used to provide humane treatment for "the horses which I have been accustomed to ride." Pearson, who died March 20, directed that the horses be "exercised, ridden and enjoyed regularly" by such equestrians as the executor might permit, without charge.

SELLER OF WEATHER TICKETS FINED AND WARNED BY JUDGE

Joseph John Smith of 8239 Flora avenue, Vinita Park, was fined $100 yesterday on being found guilty of illegal possession and sale of lottery tickets by Judge Louis Comerford of the Court of Criminal Correction.

Patrolman William Fitzgerald of the Police Department gambling division testified he and three other officers arrested Smith Feb. 11 at the New Plaza Hotel, 3301 Olive street, after seeing him hand eight weather tickets to the cigar stand cashier. Smith pleaded not guilty, but offered no testimony.

Judge Comerford warned him the maximum fine provided by law is $1000, adding: "Don't come back in this court." He then stayed execution on $50 of the fine.

EDUCATION BOARD MAY CLOSE SUPPLY COMMISSIONER'S JOB

Office furniture and equipment used by James J. Lee as Supply Commissioner of the Board of Education and later as Comptroller has been moved back to the Supply Department, the School Board Finance Committee was informed at a closed meeting last night.

Mervyn E. Wiethaupt, Secretary-treasurer of the board, said he had taken possession of the furniture and files following Lee's resignation, at the direction of J. Harry Pohlman, president of the board. The board has given no indication it intends to replace Lee, who, before his departure for Navy duty, made charges that board members violated the antipatronage rule and that there had been mismanagement in two departments.

Dr. Francis C. Sullivan, chairman of the committee, said the creation of a new position of senior clerk in the Finance Department, with a minimum salary of $170 a month, had been approved. Wiethaupt said additional acounting work necessitated more assistance.

CHARGES SERIOUS DEFECTS IN 5 OF 9 AIRPLANE ENGINES

CINCINNATI, April 7 (AP).—An army inspector who said he had serviced personal airplanes for Lt. Gen. George H. Brett and the late Lt. Gen. Frank Andrews testified today that "dangerous defects" were found in five of the first nine in a batch of 100 aircraft engines returned to the Wright Aeronautical Corporation for disassembly.

The witness, Melvin L. Hiller, told a court-martial trying three Army Air Forces officers on charges of neglect of duty and conspiracy in inspection work that the 100 enginess were torn down Sept. 6, 1943, at the request of the Under Secretary of War. They were brought here from an army storage depot in Columbus, O.

He said three had cracked master-rod bearings which had been rejected in previous inspection along with lesser defects; another had four bad compression rings and the fifth had a "dangerous defect in a cylinder."

Two of the nine engines were described as in "pretty good condition," and Hiller said defects on the others were not important. However, he said all engines contained parts mutilated in some degree by "careless assembly and use of tools."

Yesterday the defense put into evidence documents it said showed that inspection of airplane engines and parts had been relaxed by the Air Forces 18 months before Pearl Harbor. These included a circular letter sent to the inspection section of the A. A. F. materiel command, dated June 5, 1940, calling attention to the emergency nature of the airplane production program and cautioning inspectors to approach their duties "with a viewpoint much broader than in peacetime as regards finish and other minute details of products," and an A. A. F. directive to inspectors to consider "wastage of time and labor" caused by rejections based on "immaterial deviations from specifications . . ."

EX-ADMINISTRATOR ACCUSED OF HIDING $68,550 OF ESTATE

Concealment of $68,550 of assets of the estate of Robert Sloan, retired St. Louis police sergeant who died in January, 1943, is charged in an affidavit filed yesterday in Probate Court at Clayton.

The affidavit, made by Justin J. Weil, new administrator of the estate, charges that a former administrator, Robert P. Carroll, Sloan's nephew and chief beneficiary under Sloan's will, has concealed and has in his possession $14,000 in cash and $54,550 in bonds which are the property of the estate.

Sloan's will provided for specific bequests of $4000 to one niece, $100 to another and $1 each to four others. The residue was to be distributed equally between Carroll, who lives at 4044 Cleveland avenue, his brother and his two sisters. Weil replaced Carroll as administrator after a niece of Sloan, Mrs. Elizabeth Mahoney, who was bequeathed $1, filed suit contesting the will. Sloan retired in 1901 after 46 years of service on the police force.

MAN PLEADS NOT GUILTY IN CHILD-BEATING CASE

Joseph Canzoneri, 29-year-old laborer, pleaded not guilty yesterday to a felony warrant charging him with assault to do great bodily harm to the 3-year-old son of a sailor, on duty in the South Pacific. Circuiti Judge James E. McLaughlin set his trial for May 8.

Canzoneri and the boy's mother, Mrs. Alice Bollinger, 20, also face charges lewd and lascivious conduct, a misdemeanor. Trial on this charge is scheduled for next Monday before Judge Louis Comerford in the Court of Criminal Correction.

Canzoneri and Mrs. Bollinger were arrested two weeks ago after Canzoneri admitted he beat Vernon Bollinger, son of Mrs. Bollinger. She and Canzoneri had been living together in a boarding house on Delmar boulevard.

OPA NAMES FOR FISH HOOK CONGRESSMEN

Question Raised on Identity of Scomberomarus and Orcorhynchus.

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP).—A congressional committee wants to find out if the average fish dealer knows the difference between scomberomorus maculatus and oncorhynchus tschawytscha.

In all likelihood, the committee feels, he doesn't, but any fish dealer can distinguish between a Spanish mackerel (scomberomorus, etc.) and a Pacific Chinook salmon (oncorhynchus, etc.).

The polysyllabic tongue twisters crept into hearings before a House Merchant Marine subcommittee which is investigating what effect, if any, OPA regulations have had in hampering the fishing industry.

The fancy names first made their appearance in an OPA order issued last April fixing price ceilings on 60 species of fish and sea food, the order listing the different species by their common names followed by the Latin equivalent.

Subsequently, many amendments were issued, frequently to correct the spelling of a technical name.

For instance, oncorhynchus tschawytscha originally had the "y" in the wrong place, and an amendment, issued in enough copies to advise the trade, was distributed to correct the error.

"Obviously," said committee counsel in a memorandum entered in the records today, "if it is the business practice of the fishing industry to designate sea foods by their Latin or scientific names, it was perfectly proper for OPA to do so, and, if not, the required use of such terminology by OPA is a violation of section 2 (H) of the Price Control Act."

Conceding it was "quite possible" that the OPA "may hereafter show the committee that it does not require fish dealers to keep the kind of records indicated" by the regulations, the memorandum said in that event "the care with which OPA has amended its regulations with respect to the scientific names of certain species has the net result of wasting Federal funds and causing needless confusion to the fishing industry."

JAPANESE-AMERICAN HERO GUEST OF MRS. ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP).—At the personal invitation of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Capt. Jack Mizuha of Hawaii's famed 100th Infantry visited the White House yesterday for a social call on the first lady.

Mizuha, who led Hawaii's Japanese-American soldiers in the spearhead attack at Cassino, first received Mrs. Roosevelt's invitation in a letter written to him at an Army hospital when he was recuperating from wounds received in the Italian campaign. Yesterday, when he arrived in the capitol, he carried the well-worn letter.

His presence here, was made known by the office of Delegate Farrington of Hawaii and he again was invited to visit Mrs. Roosevelt, arriving at the White House in the late afternoon, shortly before he entrained for Chicago for further treatment at Gardner General Hospital.

JUDGE REMITS FINES OF 23 ARRESTED IN GAMBLING RAID

Three Negroes were fined $25 each and 20 others were fined $5 each on gambling charges today by Police Judge George J. Grellner after members of the police gambling squad testified they found the Negroes participating in a Bokeno game, a variation of lotto, in a room at 2001A Biddle street on March 27.

Those fined $25 were Sam Jones, 1521A Biddle street, described as the operator of the game; Nellie Gills, 2318 Carr street, an employe of Jones, and Edna Dempsey, occupant of the room in which the game was conducted. Payment of fines of all defendants was later remitted by Judge Grellner. The three who received the larger fines were placed on probation for six months.

PASTRY FIRM RESTRAINED FROM VIOLATING OPA CODE

A permanent injunction restraining the Diedrich-Melsheimer Pastry Shops, 5729 Delmar boulevard, from further violation of Office of Price Administration food rationing regulations was issued today by United States District Judge George H. Moore in accordance with an agreement between the company and OPA officials.

In a suit filed March 30, the OPA charged the company traded 325,000 meat ration points and 139,700 processed food ration points for sugar ration points with which it obtained 11,600 pounds of sugar. John Hichew, OPA attorney, told Judge Moore the company had agreed to repay the sugar out of its next regular allotment in July.

TAVERN LICENSE REVOKED

The liquor license of the Barn tavern, 100 West Broadway, East St. Louis, was revoked yesterday by Mayor John T. Connors, acting East St. Louis liquor commissioner, but it was announced the tavern would remain open pending appeal to the Illinois State Liquor Control Commission.

The revocation followed a hearing Wednesday in which it was disclosed that the bartender, Max Kopman, whose wife, Mrs. Marie Kopman, is operator of the tavern, was arrested Sunday on a charge of selling liquor to two St. Louis teen-age girls. Kopman's attorney contended the girls misrepresented their age.

Baby Saved by Brakeman.

ROSEVILLE, Cal., April 7 (AP).—Brakeman "Tug" McDaniel jumped from the front step of a locomotive yesterday and snatched to safety a baby that an instant later would have been killed. The freight training, going down the Sierra Nevada slope, was moving so fast that it could not have been stopped before it would have hit the child on the track. McDaniel was able to outrun the slowing train.

EVICTION OF CHINESE REFUGEES PROTESTED

(Picture in Everyday Magazine)

DETROIT, April 7 (AP). — A neighborhood improvement association's attempt to evict a half-Chinese mother and seven of her 16 children, refugees from Shanghai where the father and two eldest sons are still prisoners of the Japanese, caused a protest last night.

Frank J. Mahoney resigned from the association in what he called a protest against "subjecting a refugee to the very thing she came here to escape." George Steffan let his membership lapse, two others said they would resign immediately and other neighbors were critical of the move.

The Association sought to evict Mrs. Joseph Bell and the children on the ground that their continued presence might be construed as a waiver of restrictions which limit occupancy of Blackstone Park subdivision, in northwest Detroit, to persons of unmixed white blood.

Both Mrs. Bell and her husband are American citizens. Both were the children of mixed marriages. Four of their sons are in the armed services of the United States. Their youngest child, who lives with Mrs. Bell, is 10 and the oldest son is 33 years old.

all other factors are equal, will normally be accorded job deferments in preference to non-fathers. Draft officials, commenting on this provision, said cases where all other factors are exactly equal may be few and far between.

Army and Navy announcements, issued last night, through the Office of War Information, indicated that around 200,000 a month—roughly the rate of the last few months—must be taken between now and July 1.

Even then, no tremendous slackening in the induction pace could be foreseen. Accurate estimates of how many men will fall in invasion operations were impossible. Gen. Hershey said he thought 150,000 men a month would be required to fill gaps resulting not only from battle, but from "normal" discharges due to accidents, disease and disabilities.

The present strength of the Navy including Marines and Coast Guard was not announced, but 300,000 inductions between now and July 1 or 100,000 a month will bring it up to 3,500,000 on that date, at the same time providing necessary replacements.

Then the Navy's net strength, not counting replacements, will be raised another 100,000 by Sept. 1, to the planned maximum of 3,600,000.

Urges Force to Back Demands.

"To maintain the results for which we have fought," Hershey said in addressing a conference on war veterans' problems, sponsored by the CIO United Automobile Workers' of America, "depends to a very large degree upon the evidences we possess that we are prepared to back with force our recommendations. Many of us, regret that force is the ultimate court of appeal. Certainly America, with possessions unusual in this world, cannot afford to shut her eyes to the fact that this world leaves to a nation only those things for which it is not only willing to fight, but for which it is constantly prepared to fight.

"Then we have a principle to recognize in demobilization — the principle that our reduction in forces will be made as it can be without losing a peace after winning a war.

"Adherence to this principle will mean that we evolve a permanent system for our armed forces that will provide at all times adequate military strength sufficient to insure the maintenance of our national interests. At the same time we are working with other like-minded nations toward the creation of an effective system of general security."

War Department's Statement.

The War Department statement follows:

"The Army of the United States has reached its planned strength of 7,700,000 officers and enlisted personnel, the War Department announced today.

"Inductions through Selective Service must continue, however, with the emphasis on young men who are needed to replace losses due to combat and to normal attrition resulting from accidents, disease and disabilities. It is essential that from 75,000 to 100,000 men be inducted into the Army each month to maintain the strength of 7,700,000. This means that the Army will need from 700,000 to one million men during the remainder of 1944.

"As future calls on Selective Service will be for replacements, it is imperative that new men inducted into the Army be young and physically qualified for the rigors of combat duty.

"During April the Army will slightly exceed its planned strength in order to start now the training of men who will be required to meet anticipated losses. Men inducted into the Army in April in excess of planned strength thus will be available at the time they most probably will be needed.

"A reduction of the Army's calls on Selective Service to maintenance requirements will begin some time in May. The size of calls thenceforth will be determined by existing conditions, with the strength of the Army fluctuating either slightly over or slightly under the 7,700,000 figure.

"It is emphasized that there can be no diminution of the efforts of local Selective Service boards to deliver the maximum possible number of men in the lower age groups within the Army's calls. This will require continuous pressure on industry and agriculture to eliminate all but the vitally essential deferments between the ages of 18 and 26."

'Task of Stopping Rise in Prices Has Thus Far Been Carried Out'

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP).

THE following report to the President on the first anniversary of the administration's "hold the line" economic stabilization order, made by the Office of Economic Stabilization, Office of Price Administration, War Food Administration, and the War Labor Board, was made public today by President Roosevelt:

One year ago tomorrow, April 8, 1943, you issued Executive Order 9328, the "hold-the-line" order directing that the stabilization line be strengthened and held. You stated, "The only way to hold the line is to stop trying justifications for not holding it here or not holding it there."

On this first anniversary of the issuance of the "hold-the-line" order, we can report that the task of stopping the rise in prices has thus far been carried out. The stronger controls provided by the congressional legislation of October, 1942, have been put into effect. As a result, the cost of living, which before the "hold-the-line" order was rising ¾ per cent a month, has for a solid year been held without change of any consequence.

Record 'Unprecedented.'

It is true, as everyone knows, that there have been increases in some items, clothing, for example. But these increases have been fully offset by decreases in the prices of other items, notably foods. The general level of the cost of living has not been permitted to rise. Indeed, the cost of living as a whole is slightly lower than it was a year ago today. This record—one year of stable living costs—is unprecedented either in this war or in the last war.

On wages, too, the record is clear.

Under the strict standards imposed upon the National War Labor Board by the "hold-the-line" order, some wage adjustments have had to be made to correct gross inequities, to eliminate substandards of living, and to give effect to the Little Steel formula. The general effect of our policy has been to increase the earnings of low-wage groups, or some of those which lagged behind the general upswing of wages.

Total earnings have increased, due to factors not regulated by wage-rate controls—such as longer work hours, higher-paying war jobs, and incentives to produce. Had the policy been to restrict working hours, thereby limiting "take-home" pay, the result would have injured the war effort. The record production of war materiel could not have been made. The nation's basic wage structure has remained substantially unchanged during the period of wage stabilization. The level of basic factory wage rates has been raised less than 1½ cents an hour by actions of the War Labor Board. Wages have been stabilized.

'Decisive Action.'

A year and a half ago the entire stabilization program was in jeopardy. The stabilization line was not only bending—it was breaking in sector after sector. Prophets of disaster freely predicted an inflationary rout. Only by decisive action to halt the rise in the cost of living could we defend our wage-stabilization policy. Only by decisive action to halt the rise of wages could the pressure of costs on prices be kept within manageable limits. The legislation of Oct. 2, 1942, and the "hold the line" order provided for decisive action all along the economic stabilization front. The results during the last 12 months speak for themselves.

The stronger stabilization measures now in effect have succeeded because they have had the support of the American people. Throughout this period, to be sure, voices have been raised against one part or another of the program and even against the entire policy. Those voices have become fewer and have been heard less frequently. Today, on its first anniversary, the "hold the line" policy stands approved by the overwhelming mass of the American people.

'Benefit to All Groups.'

Stabilization has brought tangible—indeed bankable—benefits to all groups. Corporation profits, both before and after taxes, rose in 1943 even above the record-breaking levels of 1942. The net income of farm operators similarly moved up to the second successive all-time high. While basic wage rates have been firmly held, average weekly earnings have moved up to new high ground. With the cost of living stable, these earnings have not been frittered away by rising prices. Stabilization has paid off on every hand—and in lasting rather than illusory benefits.

It has been of particular benefit to the more than 20 million people among us whose incomes cannot be increased to keep pace with rising prices. The families of our fighting men, the low-paid unorganized workers, the school teachers and other Government employes, the persons living on old-age and retirement pensions—all these have found in the hold-the-line policy the protection which was promised them in the Stabilization Act.

We must not jeopardize these gains by any change of policy or relaxation of effort in the critical months ahead. All the underlying conditions which could cause a sharp rise in prices are still present. The best estimates now available indicate, for example, that the gap between the income of the American people after taxes and the volume of goods available for them to buy will be even greater this year than it was in 1943. Pocketbooks and checking accounts are bulging with money which could make it difficult to hold prices down if we went on a nation-wide buying spree.

The need for continued restraint and continued co-operation with every phase of the stabilization program is evident. Obviously, too, we should cling to the policies and machinery which have served us so effectively thus far.

Sincerely yours,

FRED M. VINSON, Director Office of Economic Stabilization.

CHESTER BOWLES, Administrator, Office of Price Administration.

MARVIN JONES, Administrator, War Food Administration.

TEACHERS' PAY RISE ISSUE IN BELLEVILLE ELECTION

Belleville school district voters will go to the polls tomorrow to elect two school boards, one for the township high school, whose present members are unopposed, and a grade school board, where a contest has developed among seven men for the four-member board. The polls open at noon and close at 7 p. m.

Unopposed for election to the high school board of education are President J. Paul Moeller, running for a one-year term, and Irvin L. Klamm and Joseph W. Adam, to be elected for three years. President Charles P. Hamill, president of the grade school board, is opposed by Carlton P. Crispin, while incumbent members Thomas T. Wright and W. A. Hettenhausen are opposed by Earl Wangelin and F. Cortland O'Neal and George Keller.

The issue of higher salaries for grade school teachers has been raised in the lower school election. The AFL Grade Teachers' Federation is supporting Crispin, Wright, Keller and O'Neal. The administration is backing Hamill, Wright, Hettenhausen and Wangelin, with the candidates opposed to the proposed increase on the ground that the district cannot afford it. Wright has disclaimed the federation support and says he is backing the administration.

'UNLEAVENED' TIME IS OVER FOR ALLIES, GEN. CLARK ASSERTS

Bread of Victory Rising, He Tells 5th Army Jews at Passover Service.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, April 7 (AP).—The Passover, commemorating deliverance of the Jews from Egyptian bondage, was observed tonight by thousands of Jewish men and women of the Fifth Army. Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, Fifth Army commander, was a guest.

"Tonight you are eating unleavened bread, just as your forebears ate unleavened bread because the exodus came so quickly the dough had no time to rise," Gen. Clark said:

"There was a time of 'unleavened' bread in this war—time when it looked as though we might not have time to rise—time to raise an army and equip it, time to stop the onrush of a Germany that was already risen.

"But the bread has begun to rise. It started at Alamein. It was rising higher when the Fifth Army invaded Italy. It is reaching the top of the pan and soon the time will come when it will spread out and into a finished product."

ORDER NEXT WINTER'S COAL, MAYOR URGES

Fuel Supply Becoming More Critical, He Says in Proclamation.

Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann, concerned by indications that an even more straitened coal supply situation is in prospect for next winter, today proclaimed the remainder of April "Order Your Coal Now Month."

His proclamation urged all householders to order suitable coal as soon as possible for immediate delivery "so that we will have plenty of fuel on hand when next winter comes."

The coal supply situation, he said, is "rapidly becoming more critical and the wartime need for coal is increasing monthly." Moreover, he added, a decrease in production has been predicted because of man power shortages affecting mines and transportation facilities.

Detailed plans to assure the success of the campaign to encourage early buying will be made at a meeting at 4 p. m. Monday of the Smoke Elimination Committee and the Citizens' Wartime Fuel Committee, the Mayor said.

In emphasizing the probability of a more severe shortage next winter, Mayor Kaufmann announced that receipts of low volatile coal here from March 1, 1943, to March 1, 1944, totaled 1,049,838 tons, compared with 1,167,575 tons in the corresponding period a year ago.

Flashes of Life

By the Associated Press.

An Unlucky Find.

NEW YORK — A depositor found $500 on the floor of a bank, returned it to the owner and received a $50 reward. He figured a celebration was in order. The festivities were barely over when he found himself in jail—charged with assault, dangerous driving, driving while intoxicated and passing a red light.

And there was nothing left of the $50.

Quick Fitting for Brides.

PHILADELPHIA — Eight prospective brides had a fast fitting at a dress shop yesterday.

The girls were trying on their bridal gowns when smoke began pouring into the shop from a fire in the basement.

By the time firemen arrived the young women had changed into street clothes and fled to safety.

Forgets to Remember.

She signalled a motorist who gave her a lift and overtook the car. She retrieved her purse, then remembered:

She had left her fur coat in the stranger's car.

Cards and Browns Break Camp, Open 7-Game Series Here Tomorrow

Birds Are A Team of Veterans

Returning Birds Find Difficulty in Getting Lodgings

MEMBERS of the Cardinals, drifting in today by automobile from their spring training camp at Cairo, Ill., put in the afternoon trying to find lodgings, no small problem under present conditions. The athletes visited the club offices at Sportsman's Park, where the staff gave some tips on vacant rooms and apartments, and where there was a heavy run on the telephones.

By J. Roy Stockton

Baseball, facing its third war year with determination mingled with misgivings, will make its 1944 bow at Sportsman's Park tomorrow afternoon, when the Cardinals of Billy Southworth, champions of the National League, will meet the American League Browns of Luke Sewell in the first game in a series of seven, theoretically to decide the city championship.

While the Cardinals have made a large contribution in man power to the armed forces, they are still able to present a lineup made up almost entirely of veterans, and they will be favorites, no doubt, over the Browns, who have not been so fortunate in finding replacements for players lost in the draft.

The Cardinals lost Terry Moore, Enos Slaughter and Johnny Beazley, among others, before the 1943 season started, and since baseball made its bow a year ago Howard Pollet, Jimmy Brown, Al Brazle, Harry Walker, Lou Klein, Ernie White, Howard Krist and Murry Dickson have answered calls to the colors. And yet when the Cardinals take the field tomorrow there will be only two new faces in the starting lineup. One will be Emil Verban, second base replacement for Klein, and the other Al Jurisich, who has been named by Southworth as his probable starting pitcher. Otherwise all positions will be occupied by Cardinals who were regulars on the 1943 team, which won the league pennant.

Seven-Ninths the Same.

There has been a change in the outfield, with Johnny Hopp taking over right field and Stan Musial shifting to center, but they, along with Left-Fielder Danny Litwhiler, were members of Billy Southworth's fly-chasing squad last year.

Except for Verban, the infield will be just as it was through the 1943 season, with Ray Sanders at first base, Marty Marion at short, and George Kurowski at third base. Walker Cooper, widely regarded as baseball's best catcher, especially since Bill Dickey was called, will be behind the plate for the National Leaguers.

Naturally, the Cardinals are not in as good condition for this spring's city series as in prewar years, when they were able to spend six weeks or more in Florida sunshine. But they probably are farther advanced than any other major league club. Training at Cairo, the farthest south of all the wartime spring camps, they ran into colder weather than that of a year ago, but they missed outdoor work only four days and played six intrasquad practice games and two exhibitions with Sgt. Brown's Fourth Ferrying Group from Memphis.

Batting eyes are not as keen as in prewar years and the athletes badly need the work that the seven-game spring series offers. The squad practice games furnished exercise, but did little to sharpen the competitive zeal that ball players must have to give an impressive show.

Many Classified 4-F.

As of the moment, the Cardinals, as indicated by the team they can field in the series with the Browns, are in good strategic position to carry on and probably win another pennant. Unless players classified 4-F are taken into the Army or forced into industry, the Cardinals have a nucleus of a dozen players who can be expected to remain available through the season.

Pitchers Harry Brecheen, Bud Byerly, Morton Cooper, Sylvester Donnelly and Ted Wilks have been rejected by the Army, to form a strong nucleus of a pitching staff. Others in the same category are Catcher Ken O'Dea, Infielders Sanders, Kurowski and Verban and Recruit Outfielder Bergamo. Also available are Johnny (Pepper) Martin, over the service age limit, and Pitcher Al Jurisich, with a medical discharge from the Navy.

The shadow of the draft, however, and of a change in attitude toward the 4-F athletes hangs over the Redbirds, as over all baseball clubs. The situation can change overnight. Hopp. Litwhiler and Recruit Infielder Ora Burnett received calls while in the Cairo camp to report for physical examinations. They have requested transfers to St. Louis. Shortstop Marion and Catcher Cooper also are vulnerable. They have been examined, accepted for limited service and told to await call. They may be summoned for duty at any time, and all other Cardinals except those in 4-F, over age or with medical discharges are subject to call at any time.

Many Likely to Be Called.

Several of the players worked in war plants during the winter, but have been or will be reclassified 1-A now that they have reported for baseball.

The team's bright prospects, made brilliant by the man power of the moment, would become very much on the drab side if the armed forces were to call Marion, Walker Cooper, Stan Musial, Litwhiler, Hopp, Max Lanier, Harry Gumbert, George Munger and Fred Schmidt. And most of those mentioned are likely to go during the season.

Despite the draft outlook, however, baseball expects to carry on. The Cardinals have an advantage over most other clubs. If their players in major league uniforms are called, they can reach out for replacements at Rochester and Columbus to keep in step with the policy outlined for baseball by Commissioner Landis, that "We will carry on as long as we can put nine men on the field."

"I'm not figuring on what we'll do next month or next week," Manager Southworth said this morning as the team broke camp. "I'm going to use today the players I have today and meet tomorrow's problems tomorrow. I think that's the safest way to avoid staying up every night worrying. I am confident baseball will carry on and that the Cardinals will meet all problems."

Redbirds Are Home Club.

The Redbirds will be the home team for the first game of the spring series and will occupy the dugout behind third base, wear their white at-home uniforms, while the Browns will sport their traveling gray and take the first turn at bat when Umpire Ziggy Sears of the National League, handling the opening game behind the plate, gives the order to play ball.

The teams will alternate as the home team, the Browns taking over as hosts for Sunday's contest.

In the final workout at Cairo yesterday, Mort Cooper pitched five innings for Southworth's Scrubs and was pounded by the Regulars for nine hits and six runs. He wasn't bearing down, but he made no excuses and said after the workout that he was glad there were so many good hitters who would be on his side henceforth. He was out there for the drill, as he is in line to pitch part of Sunday's game and also to be the Cardinal hurler in the first game of the season, when the Pirates call at Sportsman's Park, April 18.

Charley Burley Wins California Title

HOLLYWOOD, April 7 (AP).—Charley Burley of Pittsburgh held the California middleweight title today by virtue of a knockout victory over Jack Chase of Denver.

Burley battered the titleholder around the ring for most of eight rounds and finished him off after 18 seconds of the ninth round. The fight was scheduled for 15 rounds.

Wakefield at Iowa City.

IOWA CITY, Ia., April 7 (AP).—Cadet Dick Wakefield, batting and outfielding star of the Detroit Tigers last season, has begun a three-month physical, military and academic training course at the Navy pre-flight school here, it was announced today.

SHORT WAVES

BOBBY PERMANE is the hottest jockey riding today. The apprentice booted home five winners to boost his total for the Tropical Park meeting to 40. He will ride Equinox in the Tropical Handicap. Permane will lose his "bug" after Aug. 31.

PERMANE

GIL DODDS, the Boston divinity student and holder of the world indoor mile record, will not run in a special mile event at the Penn Relays, April 29. Dodds said his ankle, sprained at Cleveland March 24, is not responding to treatment and that he could not possibly get into condition in time for the Penn meet.

JOHN CAMBRIA will operate the revived Williamsport Grays in the Eastern Baseball League for at least three years under an agreement signed with the Williamsport Community Baseball Association, which acquired the Springfied (Mass.) franchise. Cambria, who is looking for a manager, said the team would train at Baltimore for the opening of the season May 3 against Elmira. The Grays have a working agreement with the Senators, who already have assigned nine players to the new team.

A Davis Cup flavor was added to the recent tennis show for the Chinese Relief Medical Fund at New Delhi, India, put on by GIB SANDEFER, former Hardin-Simmons graduate manager. LT. HAL SURFACE of Kansas City defeated FRANJO KUKULJEVIC, former Yugoslav Davis Cup player, 6-1, 6-2, and then teamed with MAX ELLMER of Switzerland to win a doubles match. Ellmer also won a singles set from W. C. CHOY, Chinese champion, 9-7.

A year ago—The National Pro Football League cut its club limit from 33 to 25 players because of shortage of manpower.

Three years ago—BOBBY RIGGS, who was named field representative and assistant publicity director at Presbyterian College, said he would continue tournament tennis play.

Spring Series Batteries and Rival Managers

FRANK MANCUSO, new Brownie catcher and younger brother of the former Cardinal, Gus Mancuso, now with the New York Giants.

Durocher at Second, Walker Third Base for the Dodgers

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP).—Naturally it may have been just one of those things, such as a golfer making a hole-in-one his first time on a course, but Vince Di Maggio got two hits and behaved himself flawlessly in the field yesterday, the first day he has been with the Pittsburgh Pirates this spring.

DiMaggio came to terms just a few minutes before the Bucs went on the field to drop a 6 to 3 decision to the Cleveland Indians.

Nick Strincevich and Max Butcher shared the mound labor for the Pirates yesterday, and Mike Naymick, Ed Klieman and Harold Kleine pitched for the tribe. Ken Keltner connected for a home run.

News of other major league clubs:

BROOKLYN DODGERS — It's Infielder Dixie Walker now. Manager Leo Durocher has decided to play the veteran outfielder at third base, while Durocher himself will handle the second basing job.

BOSTON BRAVES — The Braves enjoyed a complete holiday today. Con Ryan got greetings yesterday and orders to take his physical at Boston, April 10. Jim Tobin also got greetings and has wired asking permission to take his physical at Boston.

BOSTON RED SOX—The Sox game with the Brooklyn Dodgers originally scheduled for today has been called off. The teams will meet tomorrow, with Johnson, Terry and Wood slated to pitch for Boston.

CINCINNATI REDS—The Reds will get more workouts today in preparation for their week-end games with the Chicago Cubs and Louisville. The Reds still are in the dark as to the ability of Chucho Ramos. He played three innings in the outfield against Indianapolis yesterday, didn't get a chance in the field and was safe on an error on his only trip to the plate.

DETROIT TIGERS—Manager Steve O'Neill has stuck to his regular lineup for the game today with Camp Breckenridge, except that Paul Richards will make his first appearance behind the plate. Chuck Hostetler may replace Roger Cramer in centerfield.

CHICAGO WHITE SOX—Manager Jimmy Dykes will toss Pitchers Johnny Humphries, Ed Lopat and Gordon Maltzberger against the Cubs today at George Field, near Lawrenceville, Ill., as the Sox try to make it two straight over their city rivals.

CHICAGO CUBS—Paul Derringer, Bill Fleming and probably Paul Erickson are scheduled for mound duty against the White Sox today. Derringer has been late in working into form, having sprained an ankle in the first workout of the season.

NEW YORK YANKEES—The world champions, in the throes of a losing streak, face more trouble today when they entertain Connie Mack's undefeated Philadelphia Athletics. Hank Borowy and Lefty Johnson were expected to work on the mound for the Yanks.

NEW YORK GIANTS—Manager Mel Ott has another "youth" who looks like a comer. He is Louis Polli, 40-year-old pitcher who worked three innings against Jersey City yesterday and held the Little Giants hitless. He is the property of Jersey City, but Ott is giving him the once-over. Polli was with the St. Louis Browns 12 years ago.

WASHINGTON SENATORS — Early Wynn and Roger Wolff, allowing only two wind-blown safeties, hurled the Nats to a 1-0 victory over Baltimore yesterday.

PHILADELPHIA PHILLIES — It was good hit, no field for the Phils as they defeated the Boston Red Sox yesterday. Manager Freddy Fitzsimmons' crew connected for 11 safe blows, but made three errors.

Soccer Manager Now 1-A.

BROOKLYN, April 7 (AP).—Duncan Othen, manager of the Brooklyn Hispano club which won the national challenge soccer cup last season, was classified 1-A by his draft board today and ordered to take his physical examination April 22. His team meets a still-to-be-determined Western opponent for the 1944 national crown on Sunday, May 14.

French Flyers' Soccer Team to Oppose Rafterys

A team of soccer players made up of members of the French Air Corps, in training at Scott Field, will oppose the Raftery club of the Municipal League, as an added attraction on Sunday's program at Fairground Park.

El Reys oppose Schumachers in the principal part of the card, meeting in a replay of their 3-3 tie of last Sunday, the winner to take the city and State championship.

The Scott Field French flyers, under Lt. Charles DeGramont, are rather an unknown quantity since they have played few games. They have proved much too good for the teams of American soldiers they have faced at the post but few of those boys had any previous soccer experience. Les Hatchard, Municipal League referee, who watched the Frenchmen in a practice game this week, said they looked strong enough to give the Rafterys a close match. The French center forward, says Hatchard, is especially adept at first-timing his shots while on the dead run, in the Bert Patenaude manner.

Meanwhile, the Royal Air Force team at Lambert Field stands by for a crack at the survivor of the Ely Rey-Schumacher series. This special attraction will be offered Friday, April 14, under the lights at Public Schools Stadium.

Police Juvenile Final.

Pleasantly surprised already by the fine showing of the Fifth District team, soccer fans will see more of the fine results of the work of the Police Juvenile movement when First District opposes Twelfth in the league final, a preliminary game on Sunday's program at Fairground Park.

Fifth, which defeated St. James for the Muny Junior championship, had a lot of trouble winning its first round match from First, 1-0. Twelfth District is the team that knocked strong St. Philip Neri out of the Junior playoffs. Their meeting should make a fine attraction.

Loses on Low Blows.

DETROIT, April 7 (AP).—Izzy Jannazzo, 153, of New York, won a 10-round decision over Ossie (Bulldog) Harris, 160, of Pittsburgh, in the main event of a boxing show at Olympia here last night. Several rounds were taken away from Harris for low blows. There were no knockdowns.

Sewell's Infield Is Strong

By W. J. McGoogan
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., April 7.—Only the Browns' infield will present a familiar appearance tomorrow when the team takes the field at Sportsman's Park for the first game of the spring series.

Three brand-new pitchers are scheduled to work, beginning with Righthander Newman Shirley, big, raw-boned Texan, who won seven and lost 11 with the Springfield (Mass.) club in 1943. He is to be followed by Weldon West, slender southpaw, who compiled a record of eight victories and 16 defeats for Memphis last season. Sam Zoldak, who won 20 and lost 10 with Elmira, is to pitch the last three innings.

Behind the plate will be Myron Hayworth, up from Toledo, where he hit .278 in 1943, and Frank Mancuso, who was in the Army last season.

In the outfield will be either Frank Demaree, a Cardinal last year, or Al Zarilla, who played with the Mudhens and the Browns. Either is to play left field, depending upon whether the Redbird pitcher is a righthander or a southpaw.

An All 4-F Infield.

George McQuinn on first, Gutteridge at second, Vernon Stephens, shortstop, and Ellis Clary will form a veteran and 4-F infield.

The Browns left here today after 19 days of training which could not be called entirely satisfactory. The weather was too cold generally for outdoor work, with the result that most of the time was spent indoors. Fortunately, the location was a good one and enabled the men to get into pretty good physical condition, but that doesn't take the place of actual play out of doors.

Then there was quite a bit of illness. Pitchers Al Hollingsworth and Nelson Potter, Catchers Frank Mancuso and Joe Schultz and Infielder Ellis Clary were at various times incapacitated by colds.

A number of the players were late in reporting, and because of the shortness of time that was not beneficial.

Far from Best Shape.

So it will take plenty of practice before the season opens, if the team gets a break in the weather, to fit the Browns for the American League race. They are certainly not ready for their best baseball now.

Losses to the armed services have been serious, particularly in the pitching department, and more undoubtedly will follow.

Bob Muncrief, Dennis Galehouse, George Caster and Sid Peterson have not reported at all. Steve Sundra, greatest winner for the club in 1943, with 15 triumphs, is on hand, but has already passed his physical examination for the Army and is liable to call at any moment. Caster, excellent relief hurler, has remained in his war job on the Pacific Coast so far and may choose to stay out of baseball.

In the outfield the most serious loss is Chet Laabs, power hitter, who has been accepted for military duty and has not reported, while Mike Chartak plans to stay in his war job and forego baseball for the season. Barney Lutz, a recruit of whom much had been expected, also has been accepted for military duty.

Other Losses Anticipated.

Hal Epps has passed his physical examination and, like Sundra, may be called at any time. Mike Kreevich, veteran gardener, is 1-A, although he has not been asked to report for his physical as yet and may not be called all summer. Zarilla had a war job where he was classified 2-B, but since he has joined the Browns his draft board, no doubt, has put him in 1-A.

So there are going to be further losses, perhaps very soon.

Should Manager Luke Sewell be able to hold onto enough of the players he now has, he believes the team has an excellent chance to finish in the first division, because he realizes that other teams have suffered, too, some of them more seriously than the Browns.

The catching definitely should be better than last year, because in Mancuso and Hayworth the Browns have two younger and more energetic receivers than were Rick Ferrell and Frank Hayes. How the two will hit in the big league, naturally, is problematical, but Ferrell and Hayes didn't burn up anything.

The outfield, as now constituted, does not contain a power hitter, unless Demaree should have a big year, and that department probably will leave much to be desired.

The pitching staff is very "iffy." Some real help for the club could come from some of the youngsters like the three who are going to pitch tomorrow. All have shown enough to justify hope that they will come through, but you know how that is.

Right now the nucleus of the staff will be Sundra, Hollingsworth, Potter and Jack Kramer, who has been particularly pleasing this spring.

After a brief workout this morning the team departed for St. Louis, most of them by bus, others traveling in cars of players who had driven here for the training period.

Trautman Urges Baseball Clinics For High Schools

COLUMBUS, O., April 7 (AP).—George M. Trautman, president of baseball's American Association, said today a group of high school athletic commissioners was drafting a set of recommendations by which organized baseball might help promote the sport in high schools.

Trautman is a member of a committee which met in Chicago last week to figure out what can be done to stimulate the sport in high schools. Other members are Jack Zeller of the Detroit Tigers and Warren Giles, general manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

The Association president said a half-dozen high school athletic commissioners met with the committee and agreed to recommend a program. Any plan, however, would have to be submitted to organized baseball as a whole.

Trautman said there appeared to be little indication on the part of the high school commissioners to ask for a subsidy, although they asserted the expense item was an important factor.

He felt attendance at high school games would take care of itself "if more schools played the game."

"There is a feeling that organized baseball may be able to help, particularly in the coaching phase," he added.

"There are any number of coaching clinics at which ideas are exchanged on teaching basketball and football, but never any on baseball."

Trautman expressed belief that any program developed would look more toward the postwar period than the present.

Devil Diver and Apache Top List In Jamaica Race

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP).—Fourteen thoroughbreds, including Mrs. Payne Whitney's Devil Diver and William Woodward's Apache, were named today for the $7500 Paumonok Handicap of six furlongs, feature of racing's northern 1944 debut at Jamaica tomorrow.

Both Devil Diver and Apache will carry 130 pounds and are the co-favorites in the early betting. The Woodward charger was victor in one division of the race a year ago when a huge entry list forced officials to run off the event in two sections.

Other nominees are: Tom Heard's Boysy, at 112 pounds; the Howe Stable's Cassis with a 120-pound package; the Millsdale pair of Alex Barth and Swimmin Hole; Mrs. B. Digiorgio's entry of Flak and Mettlesome; the Havahome Stable's Eurasian and Eye-for-Eye; Bill Sickle, Brownie, Go Gino and Dartaway, the latter carrying only 102.

The track, although covered with snow two days ago, promises to be fast, and Secretary John B. Campbell said he anticipated a crowd of at least 25,000.

Vera Cruz Wins Without Hornsby

MEXICO CITY, April 7 (AP).—With or without the "Rajah," the Vera Cruz baseball team wins. Playing without Rogers Hornsby, who resigned as manager this week and returned to Fort Worth, Tex., the team, led by the crack Cuban battery of Ramon Bragana and Chico Hernandez, took a 3-2 decision from Tampico in 11 innings yesterday.

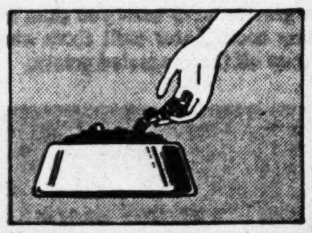
Here's why we make Friskies in cubes!

Way back when all dogs were wild, Nature designed their digestive system for quick, convulsive eating—made it normal for them to digest chunks of food. Dogs' stomachs are still built the same way—so we designed Friskies in cubes, of just the right size for best digestion and appetite appeal.

What's more, Friskies contains 19 essentials of proper, adequate nutrition . . . including needed proteins, minerals and essential vitamins. It's a complete food.

HOW TO INTRODUCE YOUR DOG TO FRISKIES

First, give your dog just a few cubes of Friskies from your hand.



Next, mix a few Friskies Cubes with your dog's accustomed food.

And finally, increase amount of Friskies in successive feedings, meanwhile reducing the amount of his former food, until he's on a Friskies diet. (See package for correct amount.)

Your dog will eat Friskies eagerly, if you follow these rules. If now and then he does not eat Friskies readily, remove his dish and try later. Remember your dog must be trained to sound eating habits.

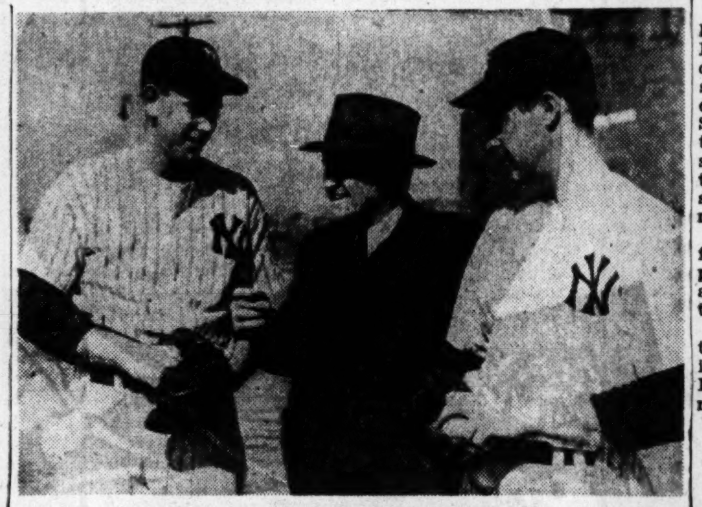
WRAY'S COLUMN

We'll Know More About Managers Soon.



Two of His "Hopes"

JOE McCARTHY, manager of the Yanks, and two of the rookie pitchers on whom he may have to rely this year, in the absence of Chandler, Wensloff, Murphy and perhaps Bonham, veterans of 1943. FLOYD C. BEVENS (left), a 6 ft. 3½ in. 210-pound right-hander, won seven and lost eight games for Kansas City last year. JOHN C. JOHNSON (right), a six-foot left-hander, won eight games and lost five for the same club in 1944.

IT has been said that 1944 will be a pitchers' year in the majors. . . . More likely it will be a manager's campaign. And the pilot who can make the most out of would-be's, has-beens and hangover 4-Fs, will be proclaimed "manager of the year."

The good teams have all been whittled down. . . . The Yanks and Cardinals each have, since Pearl Harbor, lost enough talent to make a pennant winner.

What they do with the remnants available will be watched with interest, in a season so dubious that even Connie Mack believes the long Athletics' pennant hiatus—13 years—will come to an end. The 1944 baseball races are as wide open as the Kentucky derby—some say. . . . That puts them in the realm of guessing contests.

THERE still are those who think the farm resources of the Cards and Yanks will give them a pennant advantage. But Jimmy Dykes, looking at the staggering losses of the Yanks in two seasons, is wondering what kind of a manager Joe McCarthy will turn out to be now.

He'll no longer have Outfielders DiMaggio, Keller and Hendricks to bolster the team. . . . He has lost Sturm, Hassett, Gordon, Rizzuto, Johnson and probably Crosetti from the infield. . . . Dickey, Sears and Hemsley, catchers, have all departed as have Pitchers Chandler, Ruffing, and other mound stars of the 1942-43 champions.

And that's a serious matter because Joe's Kansas City and Newark farms also have been heavily depleted of talent. . . . Looks like McCarthy will really have to pull some rabbits out of his hat to keep up his reputation as a manager of winners.

Three 1943 Men in Yanks' 1944 Lineup.

ACCORDING to Dan Daniel, one of the better baseball authorities of New York, McCarthy will start this season with only three of his 1944 players in the lineup. One of his best pitchers, Bonham, has already passed one induction examination, although he told his board he was suffering from a fractured back. His case may be reopened. With Chandler gone, Wensloff giving no indication of returning from his 2-B shipyards job, Hank Borowy in 1-A, Murphy and Russo departed and other mound losses to make up, McCarthy's pitching seems likewise to have caved under him.

A comparison of the 1943 and 1944 lineups shows:

1944 — Stirnweiss, 2b (4-F); Metheny, rf (4-F); Etten, 1b (1-A); Lindell, cf (1-A); Levy, lf (C. G. discharge); Savage, 3b (4-F); Grimes, ss (3-A); Collins, c (over age); Bevens, p (3-A).

And even 4-F ratings can hardly be considered stable, in these times.

All of which seems to indicate that Marse Joe, whose genius—plus a bench load of stars—has in the past won pennant after pennant and world series by the wholesale, may have to coax into operation all the wizardry at his command, even to beat Connie Mack. . . . Who knows?

Bill Longson Pins Garibaldi in Feature

Bill Longson of Salt Lake City pinned Gino Garibaldi of St. Louis in 30:48 of the feature wrestling bout last night at Kiel Auditorium. The paid attendance was announced as 8799.

Longson used a pair of "kindling" slams and a regulation slam to defeat Garibaldi after a half hour of "rasslin'" which saw Longson repeatedly take refuge outside the ring when Garibaldi resorted to rough tactics.

Other results:

Lou Plummer, Bristol, Conn. (230), won from Verne Baxter, Portland, Ore. (234), with three slams. Time—7:33.

Frank Taylor, Toledo (230), and Warren Bockwinkel, St. Louis (238), went 30 minutes to a draw.

Christman Wins Four Track Events

Henry Christman, football and basketball star, captured four track events as Kirkwood defeated Maplewood, 147½ to 69½, in a dual high school meet yesterday at Kirkwood.

Christman took individual honors as he won the low hurdles, shot put, discuss throw and high jump. Guy Steele led the juniors to a 65-39 decision with firsts in the 50- and 100-yard dashes. The seniors' edge was 82½ points to 30½.

MAYBE . . . a Radiophone in your coming car

BUT . . . OIL-PLATING YOUR ENGINE is like outdoing the future — today

The first changes in new cars might be "miracles"—or moderate. Regardless, no new engines will be free from corrosive acids, always "planted" inside by every engine's explosions—just as in your present car. The more it stands unused, the greater the risk from trapped acid.

This stepped-up risk arrived with rationing. Yet even when steadier heat in unrationed driving ousted acids partly, the prudent motorist still took advantage of all the extra acid-resistance made possible by having his engine OIL-PLATED.

This big advancement—a safely OIL-PLATED engine—can be "standard equipment" in your own car right today, at the mere price of a Spring oil change.

Out with unfit Winter oil! Then change to Conoco Nth motor oil to have your engine automatically OIL-PLATED. The highly advanced synthetic in Conoco Nth oil—patented—seems like "magnetism" in causing inner engine surfaces to attract and hold a layer of OIL-PLATING . . . a corrosion-resisting shield between acids trapped inside and every surface that's OIL-PLATED. Wouldn't that make you OIL-PLATE your Victory car? It can help you to bridge the gap until then, too. Simply change to Conoco Nth for Spring at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station. TECHNICIANS ESCAPE JAPS BY 'UNDERGROUND RAILROAD'

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP).—An "underground railroad," financed in part by CIO and AFL war relief funds, has been in operation between Japanese-occupied and free China since last September, says Irving Abramson, CIO War Relief Committee chairman.

He said the secret line, patterned after the one in this country before the Civil War, has aided 400 skilled technicians to escape from the Japanese.

Chungking is one terminus, he added, while the starting points are in the vicinity of Hongkong, Shanghai and Tientsin.

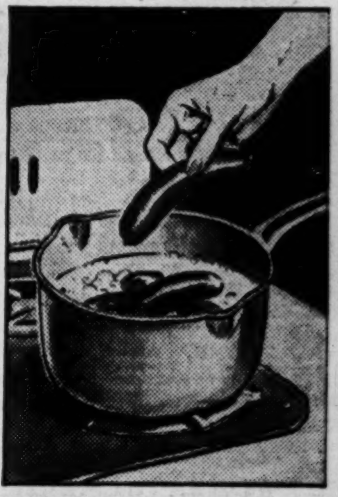
Five Ways to Save Used Fats You May Not Know About

If you've been thinking you just don't have any used fats to save for Uncle Sam, then take a look at these pictures. Here are ways a recent survey has found the average American housewife can save 100% more fat and get twice as many extra red points. Remember, used fats are urgently needed for munitions and medicines. And even a tablespoonful will compound enough vaccine to protect 73 men.

1. FIRST there's the grease left after frying fish or onions. It all yields the crystal-clear material essential for munitions, no matter how dark or smelly.

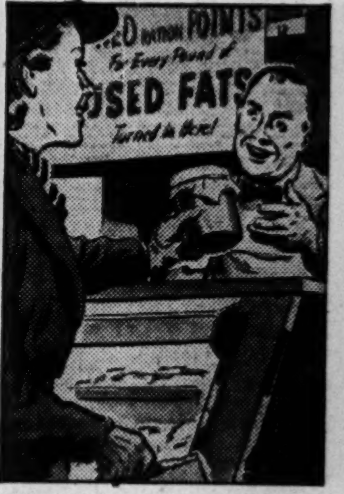
2. THEN there's the fat you sometimes trim from roasts or chops. Keep these trimmings in a bowl. Then once a week melt it down—add it to the fat can.

3. WHEN you make soups, stews, or gravies, save what you skim as they cook. Later chill them and scoop off the congealed grease.



4. WOULD you ever have thought the water you boil hot dogs or sausages in may yield a whole tablespoon of fat?

5. AND those scraps left on the dinner plates as well as the congealed fat on platters—add them to the bowl with the meat trimmings. Once a week, when the oven is hot, melt down the fat.



REMEMBER, any kind of a tin can will do. Keep it handy on the back of the stove. When can is full, take it to your butcher and get 2 free meat points and 4¢ for every pound. Start saving today!

EXPLOSIVE LABOR SITUATION CONFRONTS BRITAIN WITH ITS WORST STRIKE YEAR OF WAR

Walkouts Have Increased Sharply and Steadily Since 1940 With Last March the Peak Month—Clamor for Nationalization of Mines Grows.

By JAMES M. LONG

LONDON, April 7 (AP).

THE whole volcanic labor situation which Britain held in check through the urgency of national need and the machinery of arbitration is erupting in this fifth year of the war with every indication that 1944 will be the worst strike year since the paralyzing 1926 general walkout.

The number of work days lost through strikes has increased sharply and steadily since 1940. Last year was the second worst year for strikes in Britain's history. With more than a million work days lost, walkouts during March, 1944, alone cost more production than the whole year of 1941.

The 200 strikes of September, 1943—up to then the worst month of the war—incolved only 90,000 men. More than that were idle in a single strike this March and in another this month.

Slight Improvement.

There were some signs of improvement in the situation today under intense pressure of public opinion, determined government warnings and union appeals.

Fuel Minister Gwilym Lloyd George told Parliament yesterday that 60 per cent of the Yorkshire coal pits were working and after he and Labor Minister Ernest Bevin conferred with the National Executive Committee of the miners, it was announced that a meeting with the miners' delegates would be held April 12 to seek a new statement of authority to continue wage negotiations with the government.

Five men whose imprisonment on charges of striking illegally precipitated a strike of 30,000 workers in Belfast shipyards, airplane plants and munitions factories have been released on appeal bonds.

After a conference with union leaders, officials said, "we trust this development will permit all those who left work as a protest to resume their employment and thereby assist negotiations at present proceeding for a settlement of the strike."

The walkouts have had this in common: (1) most of them have been unauthorized and opposed by the union leadership; and (2) the coal fields—chief trouble spot of the past two decades — have been the scene of at least half the strikes.

Thus there has developed under the wartime essential works order the seemingly contradictory situation that workers, frozen to their jobs, cannot quit, be fired, or change employment and cannot be late or absent without being liable to fines, but can walk out on strike.

War Industries Hurt.

The immediate result of the strike of 125,000 miners in South Wales and Monmouthshire in March and the walkout of 90,000 miners in Yorkshire which extended into April has been a definite blow to war industry.

Lloyd George told the House of Commons yesterday that the Yorkshire strike already had cost more than one million tons of coal, had stopped all coal export to neutrals and had necessitated a 20 per cent curtailment in gas supply and a 10 per cent cut in electric power to all industries, including war plants.

But as both Lloyd George and Bevin put it, there was another more far-reaching and dangerous result—the potential undermining of the whole structure of national arbitration which for the most part has kept the industrial peace.

"There is one black spot today and that is the miners," Bevin declared in a speech April 4 and added:

"I can stand with my hand on my heart and say that the miners have achieved everything in the last four years that they have fought for since 1912."

Loophole in Draft Law.

Britain's national service system—the military draft—was not broadened to include registration for labor service until the dark days after Dunkerque in 1940. Then 78 per cent of the nation's workers were frozen to their jobs. It took in all men and women between the ages of 18 to 50 and geared the nation to produce as well as to fight. But this system contained no clause relating to strikes.

Other wartime legislation, however, provided a 21-day notice of intention to strike. Under this system, the Ministry of Labor investigates a threatened strike and refers the case to the National Arbitration Tribunal. This group, representing employers and unions, did not become wholly effective in its present form until May 1, 1943.

But coal still is the problem child. Only one week since the setup was completed has been entirely free from strikes and that was the week before the last Christmas.

The only miners' union is the Mineworkers Federation— a part of the nine-million-member Trade Union Congress. Both the federation and the T. U. C. have opposed strikes, urging recourse to the arbitration system. Lloyd George told Commons that the mass of strikers was "completely out of hand and refused to accept the advice of their leaders."

The miners now are in the middle range of wage earners. In the rates recently adjusted by arbitration under what is known as the Porter award, the basic minimum weekly pay is $20 for underground workers and $18 for surface workers. This is boosted on the average of $2 a week by extras for special classes of work. Most coal strikes hinge on disputes over details of these extras.

Living costs have been largely pegged since early in the war and the tightly controlled increase averages 30 per cent up to 1944.

How Wages Compare.

Miners' wages are up roughly 50 per cent in that period. Here is how they compare with other workers:

The average of all classes of unskilled labor is now $18.75 a week.

The average for male factory workers is $22.78, the average for woman factory workers $11.72. On this they pay an income tax of roughly 50 per cent.

This is in a land where wages and living costs run far lower than in the United States—a land where it long has been regarded that a man getting a "clear fiver" ($20) a week above taxation was doing very nicely indeed.

Britain lost just under a million working days from strikes in all 1941, 1,530,000 days in 1942, 1,810,000 days in 1943 and 1,250,000 days already this year.

Britain is plastered with signs, "Save Coal for the Attack." But production has been falling even without strikes. Annual production is 14 million tons below the 220 million required, and the total of miners is 22,000 short of the 720,000 needed. Fuel costs for some industries, such as steel, are one-third greater than in 1941. This is the situation aggravated by the coal strikes.

No Violence Noted.

"We don't do it that way over here," one Labor Ministry official observed.

Firmly resolved to keep the arbitration machinery functioning, the government has authorized Bevin to deal with persons inciting strikes under the war-time Defense of the Realm Act, the same act that applies to any subversive activity. But this act is not to be applied to the strikers themselves.

From many quarters has been rising the cry for complete nationalization of the mines, which are still under private ownership, although controlled in great measure by the Ministries of Fuel and Labor.

The proposal is opposed to the Tory reform committee of 50 conservative members of Parliament, who proposed instead a revision of the industry with a "charter" for the miners that would provide a 37½ hour minimum work week and a year-'round basic wage.

The committee also advocated a sweeping system of mandatory amalgamations which eventually would reduce the 1000-odd enterprises to 40 or 60. This step, it was said, would afford a sounder financial status and permit the purchase of badly needed machinery.

It is the lack of modern equipment which is blamed for the fact that Britain's 700,000 miners produce only 200 million tons of coal a year, compared with the 500 million tons produced by America's 600,000 miners.

NEWS STAFF OF 306 ACCREDITED TO U. S. ARMY OF INVASION

LONDON, April 7 (AP).—The coming invasion of Europe will be given the most comprehensive news coverage of any military event in history.

Three hundred and six American and British newspapermen, magazine writers, radio reporters and photographers have been accredited as correspondents with the United States Army.

Of the 215 representing American publishing and radio interests, the Associated Press leads the field with 35.

While the invasion will be the most completely covered event of this or any other war, only a part of the 306 correspondents accredited to the American forces will accompany the invasion armies.

Because of limited communication facilities, the number of correspondents who will be taken on the invasion will be assigned according to quotas. Roughly, two-thirds of those now listed will be assigned to duties in London on regular news coverage.

Arrangements have been to fly most of the dispatches back to London, where they will be censored and transmitted by cable and radio. Fifteen additional censors have been added to the staff of the Ministry of Information to insure speedy clearance of all stories.

As the invasion progresses censors will be sent to the front to clear dispatches on the spot, according to present plans.

Italian Parties Call on King to Quit Now Instead of After Fall of Rome

(Copyright, 1944.)

NAPLES, April 7.

SEIZING on the encouraging report that Vittorio Emanuele III intends to "retire" as soon as Rome is liberated, opposition political parties today are intensifying their efforts to make the King withdraw now to enable a reorganization of the Italian Government without further delay.

Whether they will succeed, and whether the Badoglio Government would then immediately be supplanted by a cabinet predominated by anti-Fascist parties, are the two big questions of the moment.

At a meeting of the executive commission of the Committee of National Liberation yesterday, Senator Benedetto Croce, noted liberal, quoted the King as stating that he was resolved to name Crown Prince Umberto as Lieutenant General of Italy the day Rome is freed. (The committee represents the six leading opposition parties.) Croce said that the King transmitted the decision to Enrico de Nicola, an intermediary between himself and the opposition parties, indicating that he was willing that it be made public now, but there has been no official or direct confirmation of this yet from Vittorio Emanuele himself.

The typical opposition attitude seemed to be that if the King now at last was resolved to retire, no useful purpose could be served by putting it off because that would only postpone reconstruction of the Government on a more representative basis and—as it is hoped—"unification" of the Italian people.

The pace of Italian politics suddenly broke from a slow walk into a brisk trot on Saturday, after the Communist, Palmiro Tagliatti (Ercoli), proposed the King's withdrawal. This would be followed by the participation by all anti-Fascist parties in the Badoglio Government to try to consolidate the people's efforts to defeat the Germans. The pace has been quickening ever since.

First came the revelation that Alexander C. Kirk, for the United States, and Sir Noel Charles, for Britain, had been appointed as new members of the advisory council. Then on Wednesday, Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons in London that Britain had decided to ask Badoglio to reconstitute his government on a broader basis before Rome falls. Prime Minister Winston Churchill, six weeks earlier, said that the Allies were going to wait until the capital had been taken before reviewing the political situation.

Today Count Carlo Sforza said that the opposition parties were united in the resolve to force the King's retirement and to constitute an administration with the primary objective of helping win the war; that the broader question of what form the Italian Government eventually will take must be left until victory is achieved. This seemed to indicate that the Communists had been persuaded not to enter the Badoglio Government alone and rupture the opposition front, but to wait with the rest of the parties until the King's actual intentions were further clarified.

Sforza, a self-styled independent but usually considered one of the spokesmen for the Action party, warned further acts of Nazi terrorism must be expected as a consequence of changing the Italian Government, but said that was the price of victory. He referred to the recent German executions in Turin of eight anti-Fascist underground leaders after their headquarters in a monastery had been discovered. The victims included Gen. Giuseppe Perotti, Prof. Isolo Bracciani of Turin University, and the writer Brosio.

Sforza said, however, that he had recent information that strong anti-Nazi groups were still operating in the mountains, mostly from the Action party, but including some Communists and others.

Pyle Describes Anzio Dugouts Of Many Types

By ERNIE PYLE

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WITH FIFTH ARMY BEACHHEAD FORCES IN ITALY, April 7 (by wireless).

VIRTUALLY everybody on the Anzio beachhead who is back of the outer defense line has his home underground. We correspondents don't have but that's merely because we haven't any sense. Also, it could possibly be because we're lazy.

At any rate, this beachhead is so dug up that an underground cross-section of it would look like a honeycomb. Even tanks and jeeps are two-thirds buried for protection.

The soldiers' dugouts are made by digging a square or rectangular hole about shoulder deep, then roofing it with boards and logs, piling earth on top of that, and digging a trench out from it with steps leading up.

Digging is extremely easy here, for the soil is almost pure sand. Two men can dig a hole big enough for their home in an hour. Two or three hours more, if they have the timbers ready, is enough to finish the simpler type of dugout.

It's pleasant to dig in sand, but it has its disadvantages. The sides cave in easily. Now and then a man is buried in his dugout. Even the concussion from our own big guns will start the walls of a dugout to sliding in.

Sleep on the Ground.

THE average dugout houses two men. It's just big enough for their blanket rolls, and you have to stoop when you get into it.

A tank crew always digs in just a few feet from the tank, for which they also dig a hole. The boys then run wires from their tank battery into their dugout for electric lights. They have straw on the floor, and shelter halves hung at the entrance.

Most of the men sleep on the ground, while most of the officers have cots. But it's not bad sleep-

Weary England's Future Hinges on Relapse Into Umbrella Mentality Or an Upsurge of Fresh Leadership

Edgar Ansel Mowrer Finds British Sceptical and Somewhat Resigned to Diminishing Role After War, Although Firmly United on Winning It.

By EDGAR ANSEL MOWRER

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND (By Radio).

TO a foreigner returning to this embattled island for the first time since that awful August of 1940 when Britain stood alone, the most outstanding change is the virtual disappearance of the umbrella. For with the umbrella has gone the umbrella mentality that plagued this country between the two German wars.

In this rainswept land where a drizzle is considered almost good weather, the umbrella was a symbol of comfortable, pacific and unadventurous life. Everybody had one and carried it a large part of the time. Neville Chamberlain will go down in history as the man who took his inseparable umbrella and his incurable umbrella mentality to Godesberg when he virtually surrendered Czecho-Slovakia to Hitler. Umbrella mentality made the Munich, pacific, stick-in-the-mud mentality. Dunkerque and the first German blitz blasted that mentality completely. Today you can walk in London parks in the rain and see umbrellaless population, shabby and partly hatless but dauntless with heads high—a population that defied Hitler and got away with it.

Listlessness Pronounced.

Nevertheless, the foreign friends of Britain living here—and almost all foreigners who have lived here through the war years are friends of Britain—are worried about Britain's future. They say the people are overstrained and basically tired. As evidence they point to the fact that the population is far less resigned to new bombings than during the great blitz of 1940. They point to the strang population of the London underground stations, several thousands strong, people who sleep every night on platforms beside the roaring trains under the full blaze of the light, rather than take a chance on being hit by remaining in beds as most Londoners do.

They point to the sort of listlessness about the postwar world which they claim to find. They note the sort of irritated resignation with which many Britishers seem to anticipate a diminished role in the future. They note a growing passion for economic security after the war and a growing scepticism about obtaining it.

Beating the Germans is still primary—there's no relaxation about that in this country where war concentrates everything. But once the Germans are beaten and the raids and rationing gone, they seem to want rest and security above everything else. This—these foreigners say — is exactly what the British and other peoples mustn't love too much. Provided they have the enthusiasm, daring and strength to take it never will the younger generation face a more glorious adventure and a harder task.

One way or another, this earth is going to be organized. Therefore—the thesis runs—if the British are too tired and too unenthusiastic to participate, then unification and organization will be done exclusively by the younger, fresher peoples — conceivably by the Russians.

Russians May Take Lead.

When asked why the British young people even in the armed forces seem cynical, these foreigners state almost unanimously it is because the British know what they're fighting against, not what they're fighting for. Churchill, it is said, has inspired them, for the war failed to inspire them for the equally adventurous and almost equally important tasks of the peace.

This writer finds something true in this description—how much remains to be seen. In his mind a certain parallelism with France in

Gen. De Gaulle Said to Plan to Shelve Giraud

Latter Would Be Given Nominal Title of Inspector General.

By JOSEPH DYNAN

ALGIERS, April 7 (AP).

GEN. CHARLES DE GAULLE, in a new move against the position and authority of Gen. Henri Giraud, may succeed in putting the French commander on the shelf as "Inspector General of the Armies," it was reported reliably today in high French military circles.

Discussions are continuing, but reliable informants in both camps expressed belief that Giraud would accept this new role with decreased powers and prestige. A decision is expected in a day or so.

In no event will Giraud continue as commander in chief of French land, sea and air forces, and unless he accepts the new position, he will step out completely, these informants said. Neither camp expects a resignation.

Under the plan being pushed by De Gaulle and his followers in the wake of an ordinance April 4 designating De Gaulle as "chief of the armies" as president of the National Committee, Giraud would have no successor.

The change thus would leave De Gaulle undisputed commander of the Army, Navy and Air Forces, with active direction of the armed forces left to a newly created national defense general staff, established in the same ordinance of April 4. De Gaulle thus would achieve a tighter grasp on civil and military administrators envisaged for liberated France, under the committee's recently announced plan for governing areas behind the invasion armies.

This would prevent the French armies from dealing with "third parties" outside the National Committee under directives from the Supreme Allied Invasion Commander, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower. The kingpin of the French mili-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Disillusioned Citizen

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I am one of those citizens who followed the suggestion of Miss Geneva Crumb and the Post-Dispatch and attended one of the ward meetings for the selection of delegates to the Republican State convention. As a result, I now appreciate how little our opinions are considered and how completely ignorant is the general public of the processes by which "we" select our leaders.

How many readers understand that the Republican candidate for President will be selected at Chicago by a group of delegates who are being hand-picked by a comparatively small group of politicians at this time? Have any of you had a voice in this selection? When the time comes for the nominating of the Republican candidate for President, will the people's wishes in the matter be considered?

I cannot believe that the public has no interest in this situation. There are too many of us who know how serious a decision this coming election will be. The President of a great country like ours will have enormous influence upon the state of the world during these next four years. The man we select must be a man of fine understanding and great vision. He must have full knowledge of the importance of our relationship with the rest of the world and an appreciation of the true state of things as they exist.

Loyal Japanese-Americans

In the Missouri House last week, Dr. J. A. Gray of Atchison County is reported as having objected to the employment of an American physician of Japanese descent at the Missouri State Sanatorium.

Perhaps Dr. Gray is not aware of the fact that the United States Army's 100th Infantry Battalion, which has suffered casualties amounting to more than one-third of its total personnel at Salerno and Cassino, is composed almost entirely of Americans of Japanese descent; that several hundred Japanese-Americans are fighting shoulder to shoulder with other Americans in the Southwest Pacific against Japan, and that Americans of Japanese descent are subject to selective service procedures like all other Americans.

The notion that persons of Japanese ancestry, or of any other ancestry, cannot be loyal to democratic ideals because of their racial origin, is basically not different from the racial doctrines of Nazism and Shintoism. President Roosevelt expressed the true spirit of America when he said: "The principle on which this country was founded and by which it has always been governed is that Americanism is a matter of the mind and heart; Americanism is not, and never was, a matter of race or ancestry."

KAZUYUKI TAKAHASHI.

The Need for Gardens

Many farmers and amateur gardeners are playing an important part in the war effort. It is their duty to provide wholesome, health-giving food to assure energy for the hard days that lie ahead. Even boys and girls are taking part in this Victory garden campaign. They are raising useful crops on farms, in the city and in community gardens.

Perhaps Victory gardeners can grow enough vegetables to supply the family table, not only in the growing season, but in the late fall and winter as well. If gardens have not been started, they should be started as soon as possible.

ELLEN MUELLER.

To Combat Nazi Atrocities

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Many observers have complained that we produce no "psychological block-busters" in our warfare against Germany. However, a "psychological block-buster" is contained in President Roosevelt's recent statement on aid to Axis victims wherein he called on "every German and every man everywhere under Nazi domination—to keep watch, and to report the evidence that will one day be used to convict the guilty."

To be effective, "block-busters" must be dropped repeatedly and in quantity upon the enemy. This can be done by repeated broadcast proclamations supplemented by plane-dropped leaflets. These proclamations should request all members of the army or people of Germany or her satellites, who have witnessed or been forced to participate in inhuman acts, maltreatment of prisoners and execution of hostages, to note, report and record, if possible, the participants and the circumstances concerning those who gave the orders.

Once this step is taken, a considerable portion of the Nazi party and the many members of the German Army who have participated in such acts will have hanging over them the fear of the testimony of their fellows. They will never know whether or not some of their companions or subordinates are, for various reasons, weaving a noose around their necks.

Test for a Tax Loophole

The United States Supreme Court has agreed to review the Oklahoma community property law, so at last a chance is provided for judicial decision on a measure, now prevailing in 10 states, that has reduced Federal income-tax revenue by millions, has been preserved by the timidity of Congress and has been the subject of a prolonged national debate.

Under this law, man and wife are considered to share all property and all income, of either or both, on an equal basis. This may be fine in abstract theory, but it has worked out to create an undue advantage for residents of the 10 states when it comes to paying income taxes.

It works this way: A husband in one of these states has an income of $10,000 a year. His wife is not employed. Yet this man is privileged to assign half his income to his wife, and she makes a separate tax return in her name. The tax on two $5000 incomes is considerably less than the tax on one $10,000 income, and the difference increases as incomes go up in the scale. Under the 1942 tax rates, use of this device meant a saving of $679 a year on a $10,000 income. Under the 1944 rates, the saving is $761.

The last time Congress rejected the proposal for a joint-return law, in 1942, it cut off an estimated $420,000,000 from the expected tax receipts. Under the present rates, of course, the cost of this special privilege is still greater.

The community property law has been a standby for years in Louisiana, Texas, California, Nevada, New Mexico, Arizona, Washington, Idaho and Oklahoma. Oregon joined the list last year, for a practical reason, expressed by a newspaper in that State as follows: "Why should Oregon men, who rub shoulders frequently with neighbors in California and Washington, not get the same advantages offered to these men?" It was estimated that Oregon citizens saved $8,000,000 on their income-tax bills in 1943 as a result of the new law.

Because the Treasury did not get this amount from Oregon, it had to be made up by taxpayers of other states, or by borrowing. This exposes the essential unfairness of the community property law as it now stands. Either all states should have such a law, in fairness to their citizens, or no state should have it. Since the law is used so often to reduce upper-bracket tax obligations —by perfectly legal means, of course—the ideal solution would be for the provision to be dropped everywhere.

Whenever this is proposed, however, a deluge of objections results—on such varied grounds as constitutionality, states' rights, women's rights; on grounds economic, legal and moral.

For instance, one school contends that compulsory joint returns would mean fewer marriages. This argument is knocked out by the fact that the community property states have a higher average divorce rate than the other states, and that England, where joint returns have prevailed for years, has a far lower divorce rate than this country.

The community property law is nothing less than a special privilege for citizens of certain states, a legally sanctioned loophole through which a great amount of tax revenue escapes. Under what logic can it be contended that a Missouri or Illinois citizen should pay a higher Federal income tax than a citizen of California or Texas, simply because the latter can lawfully transfer half his income (on paper) to his wife when income-tax time rolls around?

The Oklahoma case is a test for this inequitable principle. Equality of tax rates is an American fundamental. The many opponents of this unfair law will welcome its scrutiny by the Supreme Court.

The Three-or-Four Bears

The "brawny man, big heart" theory has gained further credence. Hear, with a cozy smile, the streamlined story of the three bears — and Mamma.

Husky, hardy timbertoppers of Warland (Mont.) felled a tree athwart the home of this happy foursome, putting the family right out in the street, so to speak. Unlike the hard-hearted landlords of fact and fiction, the lumbermen wiped away a tear or two and set about to make amends. They go hungry, they do, pooling their ration points to feed the young ones while Mrs. B. goes house-hunting, thus atoning for bruin's ruin.

It's a beautiful little story. Lumberjacks with hearts of whipped cream. Beneath this gruff exterior, there beats—etc. The only flaw is that the ending can't be written until Mr. B. comes home, loaded for bear, so to speak, and finds he's been dispossessed. It usually does happen that way. When a tough character turns softie, he either gets snickered at or swatted when he isn't looking.

Odessa, Great Lady

Odessa, the white star of the Black Sea, is again besieged. This time it is the Russians of Marshal Konev at the gates of the city, not the Rumanians of Antonescu who conquered Odessa two years ago. The tongues that rejoiced in Bucharest at the beginning are bitten to silence now. There is only a weary weeping in Rumania as they remember all the young men turned to unliving ice as they manned their guns at Stalingrad.

It is Odessa that so many Russians remember. They called her their Paris. She was a city loved, by those who knew her ways and byways and caprices, as a woman is loved. She was one to make a song for, to bring a rose to. She was high and proud and cruel and as old as the Greek "Odessus." The steppes were her skirts, trailed over the Ukraine, and the harbors of the sea were jewels at her throat.

Here was a city of broad streets, cool under the trees, of reeling blossoms as the springs came round . . . and of catacombs beneath them where the famished had died. Here was a city creaking with wealth and commerce, steam cranes and carts of wool and rumbling lumber, pinched at the nostrils sometimes with the smell of glue and glass and metal and salt in the making . . . yet a city scarred with old hungers and the traces of pestilence and such cold that some ancient hands seemed always blue.

Odessa was a Babel, marked from the past by Turk and Tatar, Pole and Frenchman, Greek and German and wanderers from all Balkan lands, and her tongues were tangled. Yet she was a city warmed by a single loyalty. She commanded it—it was given.

All this you could feel of Odessa, looking down the hundreds of steep steps from the plateau of the city to the busy water . . . or up them to the sentinel statute of a great Czar, who had also loved her. Was she Rumanian or German for a few faint pulses of time? She had been so many other things that she could be only Odessa, unbranded, unowned.

The Russians will fire cannon in faraway Moscow, and rejoice when this Paris is their own again. They will remember that when Odessa fell before, peril hung in a red mist over Moscow, Kalinin had fallen, Leningrad flinched under fire . . . and they will be glad.

Is Willkie Through?

"Mr. Willkie apparently recognizes the inevitable." So says Senator Taft. It is a question whether all who set the Old Guard machine in motion against Wendell Willkie now recognize another political fact: The man can cause the Republican party much discomfort. Willkie still has enormous popularity.

He did not say, "I give up." He withdrew his candidacy, but these recent words mean more: "An an individual, I am relatively unimportant. It is what I stand for that is important—what I symbolize." He has never failed to show fight when those principles were at stake.

Willkie has taken his case and credo directly to the people and has found many who believe with him and in him. They are the Republicans who have rebelled against Old Guardism, Hardingism, a return to "normalcy" and the creation of another "Lost Generation." They are the mugwumps who like the cut of his jib, and Democrats who fear a fourth term. He may very will feel that "what I symbolize" has its best chance among them and others if he can wield that influence as a private citizen instead of as a public target.

What Willkie will do now is something for the party powers to think about. He may content himself with working for as liberal a candidate as possible up to the convention, and would probably be extremely pleased with Stassen. He may content himself with trying to inject liberalism into whatever candidate emerges from Chicago, deciding, if it's Dewey, that an utterly uncommitted man is at least good clay. He is not expected, however, to indorse MacArthur, whose backing is too reactionary, or Bricker.

Or Willkie might, if the G. O. P. looks hopeless to him, bolt the party, stump the country and throw his considerable weight against the politicians who have hamstrung his candidacy.

Two things are certain. The first is that Willkie is still a factor in politics. The second is that he has a popular, non-machine following that is, so to speak, a machine in itself—a machine he can and probably will use.

Lines to a Guv'ner

A burning issue fills the air and agitates the State, but nothing's done about it, for the Guv'ner wants to wait. Says he: "I shall take the matter under consideration."

"It's time to act," the people cry, all up and down Missouri. And why don't they get action? The Guv'ner's in no hurry. He says: "This is a subject requiring extensive study."

A crisis spreads its gloomy wings and settles like a pall. The Guv'ner looks it over, and looks and looks—that's all. He issues a statement: "I have no comment at this time."

The Guv'ner's urged to take a stand when knotty problems rise. He takes time out to ruminate, but speaks no Nays or Ayes. Says he: "I must consult the Missouri statutes."

For contemplative statesmanship, the Guv'ner's earned a prize, but when it's offered he'll delay, to probe wherefores and whys. He'll say: "I shall take the proposal under advisement after receiving a full report from the Attorney General."

To Facilitate Registration

The city-wide registration of new voters to be conducted May 23 will meet a situation caused by the movement of many new residents into the city to engage in war work. Although the books are open regularly at the office of the Election Board for enrollment of new voters under the city's permanent registration plan, the pressure of jobs and difficulties of transportation are a handicap to the prompt enrollment of many who are otherwise qualified to vote.

By setting up a registration office in every one of the 784 voting precincts for one day, the Election Board will make it easy for workers and their families all over St. Louis to get their names on the voting lists, if they have lived here long enough. This means that the important right of suffrage will be more widely exercised in the coming elections than otherwise would be the case.

The St. Louis County Election Board would do well to make a similar arrangement for convenience of new voters. The problem is more urgent in the county because its population has grown even more. The tightening of gasoline rationing has added particularly to the difficulty of traveling to the Election Board offices at Clayton from remote parts of the county. Sample surveys made in some sections of the county by CIO unions disclosed a surprisingly large number of unregistered residents. Many will register in the normal way, and all who can should follow that course.

The additional cost of setting up community registration facilities for at least one day is well justified in view of the importance of keeping our democracy working in the fullest possible degree.

Mississippi Muddle

In Mississippi, it is now possible to violate the law by failing to pay taxes for violating the law. The State, which has a 2 per cent sales tax, is attempting to collect it on illicit liquor, and the lower house has voted a special 10 per cent levy on moonshine.

Whenever, therefore, the sovereign State of Mississippi attempts to enforce its prohibition of liquor, it will be proceeding against a crime in which it is a participant and a sharer in the profits.

INVASION HANDICAP

The Claims of Basic English

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Ours is the only important language that can be so simplified, says educator; it enables a few highly useful verbs to be combined with easily-learned nouns; and, he holds, it will be needed after the war because international commerce will require a common tongue.

A Letter to the Editor of the Post-Dispatch

In view of the general misunderstanding of the nature, use and purpose of Basic English—a misunderstanding shared by various comments in the Post-Dispatch, including the editorial, "Basic 2796," of March 20—I believe it would be well to set forth exactly what Basic English is and is not.

Basic English is not a sample of the arrogance of English-speaking peoples, nor has it necessarily any relation to British imperialism. It is a frank recognition of the part that English is likely to play in the postwar world. It is the property of Americans as much as of the British.

The postwar world will probably be dominated by British and American airlines. Certainly for some time after the war, all air transport will be in English-speaking hands. Landing instructions will have to be in English, even if the port is in Arabia, India or China.

A World Language

It is also likely that English will be the dominant world language after the war, altogether apart from imperialistic aims. Hollywood movies, American radio programs, American magazines will be the standard of popularity, if not of excellence. If there is to be any world culture, it may very well be based upon English, not because we enforce it, but because we create it.

The claim that Basic English ought to be the world language, apart from the simple fact that English-speaking peoples are likely to be the leaders of the postwar world, is based upon the simple fact that English is the only important language (if not the only language in the world) that can be Basic.

When the objection is made that we ought to have Basic French or Russian or Arabic or Chinese, this fact is overlooked. What most people think Basic means is a table of words that are used most often; that is, words chosen on the basis of frequency or simplicity. But it should be repeated that Basic English is not built on frequency or simplicity, but on the usefulness of the words chosen. It should be repeated, also, that other languages, cannot be reduced to a working vocabulary of, say, 850 words, in the way that English can.

Few Words Do Much Work

We often forget—in fact, we never learn —just what kind of language English has become. First of all, it has lost almost all inflections. In Latin the words, "Marcus amat Mariam," can be arranged six different ways without changing the meaning. In English, "Marcus loves Mary" becomes entirely different if we write "Mary loves Marcus."

English is becoming a positional language. A chestnut horse and a horse chestnut are two totally different things; so are a garden flower and a flower garden, depending on the position of the words.

Our grammar is very simple. Basic Russian would involve learning six different cases; Basic English has none, apart from the possessives in 's and s', and a few variations in verbs and pronouns.

Basic English is based on useful words like "take." "Take" works harder than any other word in English, with the exception, perhaps, of "get." Match the "operator" word, "take," with the following nouns: a journey, a jump, a kiss, a look, a smoke, a swim, a taste, a test, a walk, a breath, a chance, a cough, a disease, a picture, a bath, a sleep—take bread, breath, care, comfort, control, cover, credit, fire. Thus the Basic student has to learn only one verb that can be matched with a great variety of nouns.

Nouns are easy to learn. Verbs and syntax are not. The fact is that a smart foreigner can learn Basic English in a few weeks without straining himself, and what is equally important, he does not have to unlearn anything as he progresses to regular English.

A Tip to Politicians

Basic English is not a kind of pidgin English. No one is expected to write immortal prose in Basic English, although, frankly, it might be a good idea if our politicians were required to write their speeches in Basic so that we might find out exactly what they mean.

It is not a substitute for English or any existing language. It is intended to be a second language. Because of the peculiar nature of English, it is the simplest language related to any existing language system that can be worked out.

It is not air-tight. It is a foundation only, and expansible from the first. There is now a Basic English dictionary containing 20,000 regular words defined in Basic.

It is not built like "Basic" French or a hypothetical "Basic" Esperanto or "Basic" Russian. Words are chosen for their versatility and usefulness, such as "take" and "get."

Its Widespread Usefulness

It is intended for oral instruction for both literate and illiterate foreigners.

It is planned for the present and the postwar world: trade, commerce, transport, news, science, politics and especially for international air transport, radio and cinema.

I may say that I have no ax to grind for Basic English, and have no connection or acquaintance with any group or individuals sponsoring it. Basic English does seem to me to be a brilliant idea, a recognition of the facts of the present and future, especially the future of the United States of America.

Warning of a German Plot For Starting Another War

"Germany Will Try It Again," by Sigrid Schultz. (Reynal & Hitchcock, New York.)

Sigrid Schultz, considered one of the best-informed correspondents on Germany, contends that even now the Reich is preparing for World War III.

Her basic thesis, not entirely new, is: Germany started preparing for the present war even before the guns ceased firing in 1918, when the crafty Ludendorff organized his unofficial "Secret German Staff." Germany, after losing the air battle for England in 1940, started laying groundwork for winning the peace and launching another war of conquest. Miss Schultz backs up her beliefs with factual material, some not heretofore revealed, gathered in her 22 years as Berlin correspondent for the Chicago Tribune.

Ludendorff and his staff, operating stealthily, aligned many refractory elements of German society against the Weimar Republic. Miss Schultz says many returning soldiers were kept in arms; industrialists were given fat re-armament contracts; Germany set up war plants and trained officers in Russia; capitalists speculated abroad with German currency. Thus, she contends, a militaristic Germany was beyond the embryo stage even when Hitler was struggling for power.

The author says: "The number of Germans who had no part in preparing World War II was heart-breakingly small." In an excellent chapter about German women, Miss Schultz points out that these women have displayed a baleful influence and "lust for conquest" in the rise of the Nazi regime. However, there is an inconsistency here, for in the chapter's conclusion, she says: "There is always the possibility that the women and the young people who have now experienced the real horrors of war on their home soil will come to protest against war."

German arguments, the author predicts, will be the same this time as last: calumnies against the Allies; need for Germany to dispel chaos in Central Europe; Germany champions free enterprise and is an enemy of Communism. "To be fooled once is tragic. To be fooled twice is unforgivable," the writer says.

Miss Schultz would have no occupation of Germany by the Allies. Instead—and she says she gets her plan from "decent and brave" Germans in the underground—the Allies should occupy the countries surrounding Germany, then let the Germans work out their own chaos, and let their Army exterminate the war criminals. Such observers as William L. Shirer have said that this "internal cleansing" plan "would be one way to insure that the militarists come out on top again."

Despite the fact that most readers will find points of disagreement with Miss Schultz, it must be acknowledged that her book is a blunt warning not to let Germany resort once more to her well-worn international trickery.

Official Biography of Lenin

In "Vladimir Lenin: A Political Biography" (International Publishers), the life story of the Russian leader is told, with the credit for authorship given as "Prepared by the Marx-Engels-Lenin Institute." The book is hence an official party biography, with all the characteristics of an authorized and politically-inspired tribute. Many facts about Lenin's life and the Russian revolution are given, and they testify that he was a great historic figure, but use of additional sources is necessary to get the complete picture.

The End of Willkie

NEW YORK.

IT seems a shame to raise even a slight suspicion of doubt to dampen the pleasure of those forces within the Republican party celebrating the defeat of Wendell Willkie in the Wisconsin primary. Leaders of the stop-Willkie movement can congratulate themselves. Whether by their effort or by his own, Willkie has been stopped, all right.

He staked everything on the outcome in Wisconsin. He repeatedly told his audiences that the nation was watching what he said was one of the most important elections in many years.

What effect the outcome in Wisconsin may have on the election in November is another matter. Willkie, in his strenuous 13-day tour of the State, was appealing to the independent and the labor vote. He was appealing to the independents to help him make the Republican party an effective political instrument worthy of support.

An Unheeded Appeal.

The results in Wisconsin show that this appeal went unheeded. Regular Republicans came out and voted for regular candidates — Dewey, Stassen and MacArthur. At the same time, they were voting against Willkie.

It is a revealing sidelight that three delegates running on the designation "against Willkie" — that and nothing more—each received a sizable vote. They were not elected, but enough people voted solely "against Willkie" to add up to a respectable total.

A Sobering Thought.

The vote in the Democratic primary, while much smaller than the Republican, was larger than had been expected, especially in certain districts. The Democrats had no contest, of course, since F. D. R. was their only presidential candidate. Apparently, if the labor and independent vote was recorded at all, it was in the Democratic column.

I think Willkie was right when he said in Wisconsin that to win in the fall, the Republican party must attract at least a portion of the independent vote. That is the thought which should sober the stop-Willkie men who are gloating over Tuesday's returns.

The results in Wisconsin will tend to confirm the belief—especially in the light of Willkie's appeal—that the G. O. P. is the party of extreme conservatives. The largest vote in the Republican primary was cast for Secretary of State Fred Zimmerman, running as a delegate-at-large pledged to Dewey. Zimmerman is America First, a rabid isolationist, a bitter foe of Willkie.

A preliminary survey of the returns indicates, however, that the combined vote for Willkie and Stassen was perhaps greater than the total vote cast for the Dewey delegates. Both Stassen and Willkie have been strong for international co-operation. The Republicans may claim that in rejecting Willkie, the voters of Wisconsin did not repudiate a program of international collaboration.

Dewey Money Was Spent.

In the last few days of the campaign, a great deal of work was done to offset Willkie's tour in Wisconsin. Although presumably working for Dewey and he had no national organization was specifically requested withdrawal of his delegates, at the last minute considerable money was spent for his candidacy.

Just before the election, 220,000 Dewey pamphlets were sent out by mail and time was taken on the radio. It would be interesting to know how this was financed.

Willkie, it is now obvious, was working against the historical tradition of the Republican party. The G. O. P. has always been allergic to strong personal leadership. Teddy Roosevelt was an exception to the Tafts and the Coolidges.

What I said in yesterday's column is today more true than ever. Gov. Dewey appears to be proof against any assault. Having strength, he will attract more strength.

HAROLD J. LASKI

LONDON.

THIS has not been a good season for Churchill on the domestic front. For the first time since he became Premier, he did a broadcast which it is difficult to call a success. Where he dealt with domestic issues, his account of what he had in mind seemed to lack vitality and interest; it was wanting in the drive and energy he invariably brings to matters connected with the war. It sounded not like the voice of a convinced reformer, but a man stung by the opposition into making a dull catalogue of possible changes.

Then came the Government's defeat on a clause in the education bill. Conservative Mrs. Cazalet Keir moved an amendment, the effect of which would have been to establish equal salaries for men and women teachers in state-aided schools. The president of the Board of Education resisted the amendment and he was beaten by one vote in a division in which a number of Conservatives voted against the Government. Had Churchill been wise and magnanimous, he would have said that since the House took this view he was prepared to accept it, not the least since it is just 25 years since the principle of equal salaries had been urged on the Government.

Naughty School Boys.

Instead, with carefully organized indignation, he treated Commons like a pack of naughty school boys who have insulted the master; he demanded a vote of confidence and spoke high words on the need in a solemn hour to show the whole world that his Government was supported by Parliament.

It was a wholly unnecessary exhibition of peevishness and bad judgment. No one is a rival to Churchill for the premiership at least as long as the European war lasts; no one knows that better than Churchill himself. To threaten Commons with the prospect at least of resignation and the possibility of dissolution unless he had his way on one item of a vast bill was more akin to blackmail than common sense. It was evidence that no one is ever uncorrupted by the exercise of great power.

The Whip Cracked.

The House gave him a vote of confidence by an overwhelming majority, 445 to 22. But I think the most universal feeling is that the incident ought never to have occurred. The stability of the Government in the central purpose for which it exists was never in danger, and Churchill knew it was never endangered. He cracked his whip angrily over his followers, Tory and Labor alike, just because he has become so accustomed to having his own way that he has learned to regard not merely opposition but even criticism as a crime.

He had a perfectly straightforward way out if he had chosen to take it. Sooner or later the country has got to decide whether it believes in equal pay for equal work as between men and women. If Churchill had said that this clause in the education bill was merely an illustration of a far wider principle and it was a mistake to deal with a principle as a side issue, everyone would have understood his viewpoint. People of my way of thinking, who believe in the general principle, would have argued as stoutly as Churchill himself that a rule which applies to teachers must apply to public officials of every kind.

When he told the House that a vote of confidence was necessary lest foreign governments underestimate the strength of his position, he was telling it something that not a handful of members can have believed. In the debate itself, indeed, member after member said openly that he would support the vote of confidence but did not regret his vote of the day before. Mrs. Cazalet Keir herself voted against her own amendment after explaining that she had not changed her mind.

I do not believe that Churchill helps either his own reputation or that of Parliament when he drives it to registration of a vote on grounds quite unconnected with the principle involved. On the contrary, such behavior is an example of that lust for power which sooner or later regards members of Parliament as no more than figures in a division list and is careless of any opinion save his own. This is a bad frame of mind for any national leader to develop. It is bound to break the alliances on which he depends. For even a Churchill cannot always be right. It is not difficult to think of many episodes in his career when he has been painfully wrong.

Where His Power Lies.

All know in Britain that we owe Churchill a great debt. Very few people wish to replace him as war leader. But he is our leader by consent. He holds his place, not because he has the authority to compel, but the wisdom to persuade. Once he tries to substitute persuasion by compulsion, he will lose that grasp of what the common man and woman are thinking which has been the secret of the power he has been able to exert.

Once he loses that, not even his great services as Prime Minister will suffice to keep him in office. For the nation will infer from his harsh temper of insistence that he is less interested in what power is for than in its actual possession. That is not an attitude compatible with democratic policy. It behooves some good friend of Churchill to tell him he must conquer his eighteenth-century impulses if he wants to win a democratic victory.

JEWS TO BEGIN CELEBRATION OF PASSOVER AT SUNDOWN

The festival continues for seven days among the reform Jews, eight days for Orthodox Jews. All temples and synagogues in St. Louis will hold vesper services. Services in temples and synagogues will be held tomorrow morning, and at various other times during the coming week.

The National Jewish Welfare Board said more than 400,000 boxes of matzos, or unleavened bread; 7000 gallons of wine, and 190,000 prayer books for Passover had been sent to men in the armed services. Soldiers stationed in the Rocky Mountains got their supplies by parachute, and those in Alaska by dog team. Fifteen Jews are expected to attend services in the jungle on Bougainville.

GOOD FRIDAY SERVICES ARE HELD IN CHURCHES

In observance of Good Friday, three-hour services of prayer and meditation, commemorating the agony of the Cross, were held beginning at noon today in the principal Catholic and Episcopal churches of the city.

Dean Sidney E. Sweet conducted the three-hour service at Christ Church Cathedral, and the Rev. Raymond E. Maxwell officiated at St. Mark's Episcopal Church.

Only Airplane Stamp One for shoes is currently good in Book Three, but other stamps in the book may be designated for use later, OPA said. Book One will be withdrawn from use with the expiration of Shoe Stamp 18, good through April 30.

RUSSIAN CHURCH HEAD DISPUTES POPE'S TITLE

Patriarch in Article Writes There Is No Vicar of Christ on Earth.

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, April 7 (AP). — The Metropolitan Sergei of Moscow, the Patriarch of all Russia, challenged the position of the Pope today as vicar of Christ.

In an article entitled "Is There a Vicar of Christ on Earth?" published in the Journal of Moscow, the head of the Russian Orthodox Church cited Biblical texts to reach a conclusion in the negative.

Recalling Christ's farewell address to the Apostles, "I am with you always" (St. Mark 28:20), Sergei said this meant that, although Jesus had physically abandoned the earth, he never spiritually abandoned the church.

The Patriarch's article, reaffirming the traditional principles of the Orthodox Church, opposed squarely the conception of the authority of the Pope as Christ's vicar.

Sergei said it was conceivable that there might be a central authority to administer ecclesiastic activities or that a union of churches might be formed around a leader as, for example, a president of a universal council of Bishops, chosen from among Bishops of world capitals.

"That might be practical without insisting on the danger of giving any man exposed to temptation such power," he said.

Sergei, now 76 years old, was elected Patriarch of Moscow and all Russia last September. A week later the Russian Church gave its blessing to Soviet rule.

SOVIET EMBASSY ASSAILS CRITIC OF RED POLICY

Says Supply Inspector Who Quit Had Refused to Return to Russia for Army Service.

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP).—Victor A. Kravchenko, who earlier this week was quoted as having said he had resigned from the Russian purchasing commission and that his resignation was in protest against the "double-faced political maneuvers" of his Government, today was branded by the Soviet Embassy as a military deserter and a "liar."

He was identified in the New York Times as being in charge of the metals section of the commission and in a statement to that paper he said:

"I can no longer support the double-faced political maneuvers directed at one and the same time toward collaboration with the United States and Britain while pursuing aims incompatible with such collaboration."

Following is the text of the Soviet Embassy statement:

"The press division of the Soviet Embassy in Washington considers it necessary to give the following explanation in regard to the hostile-towards-the-Soviet-Union statements by V. Kravchenko, published on April 4 in the New York Times and in some other newspapers.

"Kravchenko lies, stating, that he was in charge of the division of metals in the Soviet Purchasing Commission. In reality Kravchenko was neither a member of the purchasing commission, nor was he in charge of the metal division of the commission. Being on military service, sent for temporary work at the disposal of the purchasing commission in the United States in the capacity of one of the inspectors of pipes, Kravchenko had to return to the Soviet Union to continue his military service.

"Two weeks before the date of his forthcoming departure to the U. S. S. R. to serve in the Red Army, Kravchenko betrayed his military duty and became a deserter, having refused to return to his motherland for the military service, and to cover his desertion he made slanderous statements about the U. S. S. R. on the pages of certain New York newspapers.

the last war arises. The French then, like the British now, fought magnificently, but they overstrained themselves, they became psychologically tired, they fell into a super-umbrella mentality, they sought safety first, life without adventure. The results were cynicism and collapse.

If this is true, the British problem is how to prevent the return of the umbrellas, and preserve freshness and enthusiasm. In this writer's opinion, it is a problem of leadership.

Though with the exception of Churchill, the political parties seem to lack bold personalities, the late Gen. Orde Wingate or a young scientific writer like C. H. Waddington show the way. Waddington has written simply "When we win, we shall be forced to make a new world whether we like it or not; the old one will have disappeared." Of Gen. Wingate, accidentally killed just at the beginning of the Burma war in which he would have played a leading part, Michael Foote writes, "The glory of England all over the globe, the act which has allied her name with those of freedom and humanity, the tradition that has made her loved despite the crimes committed beneath her flag, are that men such as Wingate have left these shores and gone forth to make their own the cause of some unhappy people, suppliant in their agony and looking to England as their champion. Without such men, our empire is an infamy. Without such men, we are little better than bloated conquerors, fearful for our spoils. Without such friends abroad, our island has lost half its bulwarks."

Here is the vital truth. This is what the war is all about—or should be. To this writer, the British problem is whether the young generation will continue on its way, bareheaded and umbrellaless, or whether with the return of the umbrella it will succumb to psychological weariness and final cynicism.

DE GAULLE MOVE TO PUT GIRAUD ON SHELF REPORTED

Giraud, under the setup, would remain on the sidelines as a sort of fatherly overseer.

Giraud's followers, in predicting the General would accept this wing-clipping, said his duties would be the same with only the title changed. De Gaullists took a different view. As one remarked: "Giraud would remain as glorified liaison officer to the Americans and British."

BEAT-THE-TAX SALES GAIN UP TO 154 PCT.

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP).—A final pre-Easter buying splurge sent retail dollar volume substantially ahead of last year's levels, Dun & Bradstreet said today in a weekly review of business.

For the country as a whole, the agency estimated sales were ahead of last year by 15 to 19 per cent, but pointed out comparisons were affected by the two weeks' earlier Easter this year.

Consumers bought heavily of seasonal items, the review said, particularly women's apparel and accessories. The heavy buying of taxable items prior to imposition of the new schedules left stocks in some departments somewhat unbalanced, the review added.

"Easter piece goods were well over last year," the agency said. "Wholesale markets were quiet except for last-minute holiday orders. Even where deliveries continue slow, cancelation swere few and post-Easter expectations remained good.'

Concerning the rush to beat the new tax deadline, the review said:

"Spot reports from selected cities indicate the volume of beat-the-tax merchandise moved off the shelves was at least 80 per cent higher in the last half of March than in the last half of Feebruary; individual cities reports gains from 8 to 154 per cent."

New England, 9 to 13; Eastern, 17 to 21; Middle West, 11 to 14; Northwest, 3 to 8; Southern, 19 to 22; Southwest 21 to 25, and Pacific Coast, 20 to 24.

ST. LOUIS RETAIL TRADE

Weekly tabloid trade review of St. Louis area, prepared by Dun & Bradstreet:

The combination of Easter shopping, and last-minute purchases by consumers of luxury goods on which new taxes were imposed April 1, sent retail sales last week above the totals of the week before and of last year. Particularly active were sales of cosmetics, handbags, liquors, jewelry and luggage. At the same time there was the usual pre-Easter rush for apparel. Because of handling virtually all lines for which there was a strong demand, department store sales recorded a greater increase than the remainder of the retail field, volume being well ahead of both the week earlier and a year ago.

Merchants buying last minute fill-in merchandise for Easter needs held wholesale volume above totals of the week before as well as last year. There was strong demand for apparel.

Department Store Sales Jump.

St. Louis department store (five) sales increased 31 per cent in the week ended April 1, the Federal Reserve Bank reported. In the four weeks to Saturday sales increased 17 per cent and in the year to that day were up 3 per cent.

Note—The fact Easter is two weeks earlier this year than last and the beat-the-tax buying before April 1 entered as factors.

CORPORATION REPORTS

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP).—Approximately 65 per cent of the 1944 production of American Locomotive Co. probably will be of regular products, although about half of that output will be under war contracts, the company reported today.

William C. Dickerman, chairman, said that at the end of the year 70 per cent of unfilled orders were war contracts, of which one-half were for regular products, and 30 per cent were commercial contracts.

The company showed a net profit for 1943 of $6,626,515 equal, after preferred dividend and annual sinking fund equirements, to $2.27 on each of 1,383,832 common shares outstanding at the end of the year. The company pointed out that preferred stock sinking fund requirements began only after recapitulation last September and that the amount carried to surplus was actually equal to $2.78 a common share. For 1942 the company had a net of $5,051,593 equal, after preferred dividend requirements, to $3.37 on each of the 767,900 common shares then outstanding.

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP).—Aviation Corporation reported for the three months ended Feb. 29 net income of $1,460,863, equal to 25 cents a share. The earnings are subject to contract renegotiation. In the same quarter of the preceding fiscal year the company earned $1,103,218 or 19 cents a share.

The report said that earnings do not include the corporation's equity in the undistributed earnings of associated companies which are not consolidated. These are Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corporation, New York Shipbuilding Corporation and American Central Manufacturing Corporation, Aviation Corporation. Also has substantial investments in American Airlines, Pan American Airways Corporation and Roosevelt Field, Inc.

CLEVELAND, April 7 (AP).—William J. Sinek of Chicago, president of the City Ice and Fuel Co., told shareholders at an annual meeting the firm's first quarter earnings this year "compare quite favorably" with the same period last year, despite higher taxes.

Although no financial report was issued, Sinke disclosed the firm had reduced idle properties from $3,500,000 in 1941 to $1,400,000, writing off a $500,000 loss last year. He said the company had discontinued its Granite City (Ill.) brewery.

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP).—Paramount Pictures, Inc., estimated its earnings for the year ended Jan. 1, 1944, at $16,077,000 after interest and all charges, or $4.28 a share on 3,752,136 shares of common stock outstanding on that date.

Earnings for the year ended Jan. 2, 1943, were estimated at $14,631,650, representing $4.74 a share on 2,933,717 common shares of stock then outstanding.

The earnings as of Jan. 1, 1944, included $1,552,000 representing Paramount's direct and indirect net interest as a stockholder in the combined undistributed earnings of partially-owned nonconsolidated subsidiaries, as against $1,506,214 the previous year.

Charges allowed for included reserves provided for contingencies and estimated provision for all Federal normal and excess profits taxes.

CONVENTION FOR POPULAR VOTE ON U. S. AMENDMENTS

Adopts Declaration Urging Their Submission Directly to People Instead of Legislatures.

By HERBERT A. TRASK
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 7.—The Constitutional Convention wandered into the field of national constitutional questions yesterday, adopting a provision by which it hopes to induce Congress in the future to submit amendments to the United States Constitution affecting individual liberties, such as the eighteenth (prohibition) amendment, directly to the people.

After intermittent debate for several days, the convention approved a provision declaring as a policy of Missouri that Federal amendments which qualify or affect individual liberties should be submitted to conventions of the people, instead of to the legislature, for ratification.

The declaration admittedly would not compel Congress to submit such amendments under the convention plan, but its supporters asserted it would have "persuasive" value, and would serve as an instruction to Missouri's representatives in Congress to vote for submission of Federal amendments to the people.

Prohibition Repeal.

Under the United States Constitution, Congress may either submit amendments to the legislatures or to conventions of the people in the various states for ratification. Only one amendment to the Federal Constitution was ever submitted under the convention plan, all others having been submitted to the legislatures. The exception is the last adopted, the twenty-first, which provided for repeal of the prohibition amendment.

The Missouri law under which a convention was called in 1933 for ratification of the repeal amendment set up a system which, in effect, gives the people a direct vote on the question of ratification. The law is still in force.

Delegates were not named on the ballots, the people merely voting for delegates favoring repeal or for those opposed to it. Although delegates had been nominated in each of the state's 34 senatorial districts, by precinct, county and district meetings, the vote was statewide, and all delegates favoring repeal were elected. The delegates met in a one-day convention in Jefferson City and formally ratified the amendment.

Reason for Declaration.

A study of that election discloses the principal reason why the Constitutional Convention voted for the declaration of policy. The vote on the repeal amendment was 503,642 for and only 156,961 against, or more than three to one for repeal. Yet 57 counties — half of them — voted against repeal.

In general, the counties opposing repeal were small rural counties, the stronghold of the dry sentiment. The top-heavy vote for repeal was from cities and larger counties.

On a close question, it is possible that a substantial majority of the counties could oppose an amendment although a majority of the voters approved it. Under the convention system all delegates favoring the amendment would be elected and the amendment would be ratified.

If the ratification was left to the Legislature under the same circumstances, it is likely that it would be defeated, because each county in the State has at least one vote in the House of Representatives and the senatorial districts are so crudely gerrymandered that representation is disproportionate.

The convention resumed but did not complete debate on the provision, supported by the Christian Science Church, guaranteeing a right to rely on prayer for mental and physical healing. The debate will be resumed Monday night after the week end recess.

I. F. Boyd Jr. has been elected executive vice-president of the Boyd-Richardson Men's Apparel Co., I. F. Boyd, president, announced yesterday. K. A. Schrader, N. E. Spilker and T. B. Boyd were re-elected vice-presidents. Harvey Kopp, acting director, was elected secretary.

ST. LOUIS POLICE PAY RISE BEFORE SENATE

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 7.—The St. Louis police pay increase bill is ready for action in the Senate today, after it had been reported by the Committee on Municipal Corporations with a recommendation that a provision authorizing three additional police captains and five additional lieutenants be eliminated.

The committee approved the measure last night with an amendment deleting the provision for additional officers, after Deputy Comptroller Ray Schroeder of St. Louis told the committee that the St. Louis Board of Estimate was against increasing the number of captains from 17 to 20 and lieutenants from 32 to 37, as proposed in the House-approved bill.

The committee was told that the extra officers were wanted by the Board of Police Commissioners to staff the gambling squad and the new juvenile division. However, Schroeder said the new city budget had been prepared on the basis of the present police officer strength, and while the Board of Estimate approved the pay increases, it was opposed to creating additional high-salaried positions, in view of the city's finances.

The pay increases, aggregating $408,000 a year, vary from 3.2 to 16 per cent, with the principal increases going to patrolmen and probationary patrolmen. Increases would also be given to captains, lieutenants, sergeants, turnkeys, the assistant Chief of Detectives, superintendent of the Identification Bureau, secretary to the Police Chief and the drillmaster.

The new pay scale proposed by the Board of Estimate was approved by the House over the more liberal plan recommended by the Police Board, which would have cost the city $653,000 a year.

ing on the ground in a dugout, for you keep both warm and dry.

Some dugouts have board walls to keep the sand from caving in. Others use the more primitive method of log supports in each corner with shelter halves stretched between them to hold back the sand.

It takes a lot of lumber to shore up all those thousands of dugouts. The boys rustle up anything they can find out of old buildings. The two most coveted pieces of equipment from deserted houses are wooden doors and wall mirrors. The doors are used for dugout ceilings, and it's a poor dugout indeed that hasn't got a fancy mirror on the wall.

From the basic two-man dugout, which is usually bare except for a shelf, a mirror and some pinup girls, these underground homes run on up to the fantastic in elaborateness.

Dugout Like a Living Room.

BUT the finest dugout I've seen belongs to four officers of a tank company. This dugout is as big as the average living-room back home. You can stand up in it, and it has a rough wooden floor. It has a drawing table in the center, and numerous chairs. The four officers sleep on cots around the walls.

Books and magazines and pipes and pictures are scattered on tables all over the place, just like home. They have a radio, and on the table is a sign listing the bets of various people on when the invasion of Western Europe will come.

The officers brew hot tea or chocolate every afternoon and evening. The dugout is heated to the baking point by one of these funny Italian stoves, which for some reason are always painted pink. The officers chop their own wood for the stove.

To go with the pink stove, the boys dug up from somewhere a huge overstuffed chair covered in old-rose upholstery. They have named their dugout "The Rose Room."

They have several electric lights, and the crowning luxury of this palatial establishment is a Rube Goldberg arrangement of ropes and pulleys, whereby one of the lieutenants can switch off the light after he gets in bed. They even have a big white dog, slightly shell-shocked, to lie on the hearth.

From all this you might draw the deduction that war isn't hell after all. Well, these men can and do go into battle 20 mi utes away, and every day and every night shells and bombs fall around them, and it's an unusual day when somebody isn't killed within their own little village of dugouts.

TILTON QUITS PLANNING BOARD

George F. Tilton, vice-chairman of the City Plan Commission, today submitted his resignation to President of the Board of Public Service Milton M. Kinsey. Tilton, appointed to the commission in February, 1943, said in a letter to Kinsey that he has been elected president of the Central Council of War Dads and that the time and effort he would have to give to that would prevent his participation in other activities.

Tilton is director of public relations and market research for Anheuser-Busch Inc.

U.S. SAILOR, R.A.F. FLYER KILLED AT LAMBERT FIELD

Fatally Hurt When Plane Falls Beyond Runway and Burns — Names Withheld.

The plane fell at noon beyond the end of the northeast runway. Men in the Naval Air Station watch tower at the field summoned firemen and ambulances.

The name of the British cadet was withheld pending notification of next of kin. The crash resulted in the first injury to an R. A. F. cadet since the arrival of 400 British flyers on March 5 to be trained at the Naval Air Station.

COURT ORDER IS MODIFIED TO PERMIT EASTER SERVICE

The congregation of Negro Calvary Baptist Church, 2822 Easton avenue, which was deprived of Palm Sunday services by a court fight to oust the pastor from the pulpit and his wife from leadership of the auxiliary, has been assured of Easter services by partial suspension of a court restraining order.

Circuit Judge William L. Mason yesterday suspended an order temporarily restraining the Rev. I. T. Moore from preaching, but left in force that part of the order restraining the pastor from calling or presiding at any meetings at the church on the subject of his attempted ouster.

The Judge suggested to about 125 church members who jammed the courtroom that each faction select three representatives, and the six call a meeting of the church members to vote on the question of proceeding with the court fight. He expressed the opinion the pastor would not desire to stay if a majority favored his removal. Attorneys for the two factions are to report back April 20.

EX-CONVICT PLEADS GUILTY OF ROBBERY, GETS FIVE YEARS

Robert Newingham, former convict, pleaded guilty of robbery, attempted robbery, felonious assault and grand larceny before Circuit Judge James F. Nangle yesterday and was sentenced to serve five years in prison on each charge, the sentences to run concurrently.

Newingham, 48 years old, who gave an address in the 800 block of Market street, Feb. 16 took $5 cash and articles valued at $31 from a Salvation Army office at 11 North Ninth street. Two days later, he attempted to rob Miss Garnet Morris at St. Peter's Parish House, 224 North Spring avenue, but was frightened away.

On Feb. 21, he robbed Joyce Cunningham, 1635 South Broadway, of $38 in a holdup. A week later, in an attempted holdup at the Bureau for Men, charitable agency in the Paul Brown Building, he struck Mrs. Margaret Siegfried, assistant secretary, with a revolver. He was arrested a few hours later.

WOMAN ENDS LIFE WITH GAS

Mrs. Lorena Winterberg was found dead in the basement of her home at 4327 Oleatha avenue yesterday by police who had been summoned by her husband, Edward Winterberg, after he found a note in the door: "Call police before you enter."

A small gas heater had been turned on, but not lighted. A note addressed to her husband and her son, Edward Winterberg Jr., was in her bedroom. Mrs. Winterberg, 48 years old, had been under the care of a physician for a nervous disorder for about a year.

Postwar Radio

Dishes Will Wait as Phyllis Faces Life

By James Lawrence
Of the KSD News Staff

NEWSPAPER men doubt that radio is here to stay. Radio men, on the other hand, regard their industry's future as an undiluted blessing to all. In discussing the postwar possibilities of radio I hope to take middle ground, diluting the blessing somewhat.

AMADEE

Take television, which you undoubtedly will, and probably within the first postwar decade. It presents problems. Today's housewife can polish her dishware while listening to a serial about "Mother Carey's Children," but tomorrow's housewife will have to take time off to watch the Carey kids on a television screen. Many of the dirty dishes of the future may not get washed. From the production side, there is the question of what to do when "Phyllis Faces Life" and doesn't like it. Radio men will be hunting for an actress who can look as well as sound tearful for 14½ minutes. As yet we don't know whether such talent exists.

RADIO TRADE magazines are full of excessive predictions. Leaders of the radio industry may not believe in a quart of milk for every postwar Hottentot, but they see no reason why a Hottentot shouldn't have a radio.

Television is with us now. Five thousand television receivers serve some 50,000 persons in the New York area. The National Broadcasting Co. is televising dramatic and musical programs and sports events such as basketball games and boxing matches. New York City trained its air raid wardens with the help of television sets in precinct stations. Wardens gathered 'round these sets to learn fire-fighting technique by remote control—a pleasant way to learn it.

TELEVISED PICTURES are as good as one could want except that they are not in color. Engineers hope to attend to this oversight soon. A few weeks ago there was a big argument in the radio industry over whether to hold up popular television until the problem of color was solved. The argument lasted until somebody suggested that after all, the automobile industry didn't delay making motor cars until it could provide windshield wipers.

Hollywood film agencies have approached radio men with a proposal to make picture versions of air shows, to give radio something to work with during television's early years. Some large women's apparel firms also are intrigued by television, because it offers the radio advertiser his first chance to sell products that "have to be seen to be sold." Your television screen may sometimes be cluttered up with vacuum cleaners and Fuller brushes. At least the television advertiser won't be able to stick his foot in your door. You can say "None today" with a button.

BATTERIES OF television projectors will surround baseball games of the future. Television won't be content with a bleachers' view of the game. When Lippy Durocher goes out for a debate with the umpire, television will go along. Of course, it may have to go back again. Radio is a delicate and moral instrument. One friend of mine expects television to solve the mystery of what happens to balls that are hit out of the park. My myopic vision will be satisfied to know what happens to the ball inside the park.

Besides television, frequency modulation (FM) will be a major development of postwar broadcasting, and probably will expand swiftly. FM is a system of sound broadcasting which eliminates static and uses most of the overtones that are left out by present radio sets. FM tone is nearly pure tone. This will be fine for Toscanini enthusiasts, but may have disadvantages when Jack Benny plays his violin.

JUST BEFORE the war, the prices of FM sets were near the popular range. Seventy-seven applications for FM stations are pending now in Washington, including five from St. Louis. O. B. Hanson, NBC's chief engineer, believes that the postwar decade will make room for 2000 FM stations. He also believes that, in the end, television will be the dominant service, with FM providing its audible background. Hanson expects the next decade to produce a market for 25,000,000 television receivers.

Television and FM face two major problems, because of their use of ultra-short or high frequency radio waves. Radio men usually dismiss these problems quickly, with one apologetic eye cocked on radio laboratories. In the first place, television and FM cannot be carried on telephone wires, which, for instance, is the way KSD gets its NBC network programs. Laboratories have devised a co-axial cable—a sort of electrical pipe line—and a radio relay tower to carry television and FM long-distance.

NBC PRESIDENT NILES TRAMMEL recently predicted a postwar television network from Chicago to St. Louis and other Midwestern cities. Another radio authority suggests a series of radio relay towers, about 50 miles apart. These towers will look like mdernistic lighthouses with four bulging windows aiming radio waves in four directions. One industrialist foresees a worldwide chain of these towers, fixing their beetle-eyes on Buddhists, Bohemians and Brobdingnags. The second difficulty facing television and FM is that broadcast range is limited. The range varies up to 100 miles, depending on the power of the station and the height of its transmitter. Radio may become a mountain-climbing contest.

ONE FM STATION already has staked its claim to New England's Mount Washington. Here in Missouri a race may develop for "Tom Sauk or bust!" Yet, with stations everywhere, the matter of distance isn't so important as the problem of crowded air waves. The use of high frequencies means lebensraum for radio.

One other problem has to be solved before we can enjoy the promised developments in radio. It cannot be overlooked in postwar planning. This problem consists of a couple of staticy gremlins named Hitler and Tojo.

DESIGN FOR VICTORY

"Invasion Preview" at Jefferson Barracks

In an elaborate tactical demonstration of modern warfare, put on at Jefferson Barracks yesterday afternoon for about 300 St. Louis guests, members of the camouflage and basic training units gave a "preview" of the invasion of the continent. Above, "German" soldiers in possession of a village in southern France have just received warning that American invaders are about to attack.

American troops pour into the town, wiping out the Nazis, but suffering some casualties in machine-gun, rifle and hand-to-hand fighting. Note V for victory signs of French underground on structure set up by the camouflage unit.

Demonstrating one of the lessons learned from the Nazis in African and Italian warfare, a Yankee squad uses a detector to seek out mines. Booby traps also were dealt with by the invaders.

After victory, the Americans put on a show in celebration. A piano and organ were brought up in trucks, but the group at left appears more interested in a game of chance. Maj. William Pahlmann, post camouflage officer, directed the demonstration.

Wooden Story, Great Technicolor

LOEW'S offering this week, "BROADWAY RHYTHM," is not the great musical that was "As Thousands Cheer," which played Loew's recently. Story defects, over which most musicals trip most unmusically, almost trip this one. Also, the main characters are more than a little of the stock variety, pulled out of a studio's morgue at a moment's notice for another go at active box-office service.

All the same, "Broadway Rhythm," while not coming up to "As Thousands Cheer" in most respects, approaches and perhaps equals that picture in some respects. Those include technicolor, feature "spots," song hits, and the personableness of most of the actors.

The picture's technicolor is seen at its best in a production number called "Brazilian Boogie Woogie." The technicolor actually steals the scene, in spite of the fact that the number includes some of the fanciest limb swinging and singing Lena Horne's yet done on celluloid. Great green fans, huge gleaming black and gold idols background the scene, and the dance floor's a vivid red. Miss Horne's seen in purple and lemon yellow, with yellow magnolia blossoms in her black hair. Without going into detail further, it may be said of the technicolor here that it actually seems born into the film and to glow out from under the film's "skin." Too many technicolor pictures, on the other hand, have seemed to be "stunts" as much as anything else—with the color "painted" over the original black-and-white surfaces.

And Feature "Spots" and Songs

The "spots" include a number of features I'd gladly glut on a second or perhaps even third time if only something could be done about the story and the "plot." There's Miss Horne, of course, with the "Brazilian" and other numbers. There's Hazel Scott, who uses the piano to hand out Harlem citizenship papers in music to F. Chopin and other such aliens. There's Dean Murphy, who does imitations a la mode of Charlie McCarthy, the well-known conversationalist, Ronald Colman, Clark Gable, Bette Davis, Edward G. Robinson, Wendell Willkie, and President and Mrs. Roosevelt. And there are The Ross Sisters, three simply incredible girls who are the closest things, in their acrobatic routines, to snakes this reviewer's ever seen, even in a medical description of delirium tremens.

Other features well worth your time are Gloria De Haven and Kenny Bowers singing "What Do You Think I Am?" and Nancy Walker singing "Milkman, Keep Those Bottles Quiet."

Some of the catchier song hits scattered through the picture are "Solid Potato Salad," by Don Ray and Gene DePaul, as sung by The Ross Sisters; "I Love Corny Music," by Ray and DePaul, sung by Charles Winninger and Tommy Dorsey; "Pretty Baby," by Gus Kahn and Egbert Van Alstyne, sung by Winninger and Miss De Haven; and "Somebody Loves Me," by George Gershwin, sung by Miss Horne.

The screen play, based on the stage musical, "Very Warm for May," by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein II, has George Murphy as a New York playwright and producer, Ginny Simms as a Hollywood star he's trying to get for his new show, Miss De Haven as his "kid" sister whose dramatic talents Mr. Murphy's trying to hide under a bushel, and Winninger as his father. Murphy's trying to put on a musical show that "means something." Winninger, when the play doesn't work out, reminds his son he was born "on a stop between Tulsa and Little Rock, learned his alphabet from Joe Miller's jokebook, and hokum's in his blood."

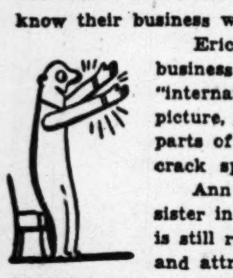
A British-Made Spy Picture

"ESCAPE TO DANGER," the second picture by billing at the FOX but the first in interest, shows that the British still know their business when it comes to making spy pictures.



Eric Portman, one of the best actors in the business on either side of the Atlantic, plays an "international drunk" through two thirds of the picture, which travels from Denmark to various parts of the British Isles, and one of England's crack spy-fighters the rest of the time.

Ann Dvorak, whose part as Paul Muni's sister in "Scarface" of a number of seasons ago is still remembered, remains as youthful-looking and attractive as ever to play a German agent half the time and a British agent the other half.

Most of the rest of the cast are unknown here but excellent. The script was written by Wolfgang Wilhelm from a story by Patrick Kirwan, who wrote "Convoy."

Along Film Row's "Last Mile"

"4 JILLS IN A JEEP," the "first" at the FOX, has an imposing history (it was based on an account of her travels for her country of Movie Actress Carole Landis) and an equally imposing casting (including, besides Miss Landis, Martha Raye, Mitzi Mayfair, Kay Francis, Dick Haymes, Jimmy Dorsey and his orchestra, Phil Silvers, Betty Grable, Alice Faye, Carmen Miranda and George Jessell). All the same, it is largely a waste of time. Miss Mayfair's dancing has class.

"LADIES COURAGEOUS," at the MISSOURI, is billed as "the private and intimate story of the world's most exciting women." Those women, the WAFS—or Women's Auxiliary Ferrying Squadron—are played by Loretta Young, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Anne Gwynne, Diana Barrymore, Evelyn Ankers, and a number of others. But again, as with "4 Jills," its no use. The subject is no doubt a fine one. But the treatment has more of a hypnotic effect than one of entertainment; it kept seeming to say, "Your eyes are getting heavier, your limbs are getting heavier, you're falling asleep . . . sleep."

Tips for the Victory Gardener

THE March planting calendar was on the casualty list! We had to give up the first planting dates for peas, onions, all those hardy vegetables that are the garden shock troops because this has been so far a cold, rainy spring. But corner lots and backyards are finally beginning to have the well-groomed look of spaded and raked soil and here's a "must" in spring digging. Break up the clods as you go along. Then the sunlight and the breezes can do a better job of taking up the extra moisture. Let them work on the soil while you are having a well-deserved siesta before you start raking the seed beds.

The peas are clamoring to get into the garden campaign and no wonder! In St. Louis, plantings made up to about the fifteenth of April have a fine chance to mature before the hot weather. According to the planning chart we made in January, onion sets were to start the season's blitz. Changed tactics for the late season make it much more important to get the peas in. A block of Little Marvels, and of Thomas Laxton are in. The Hundredfold are impatiently waiting in the packet. Peas top the priority ratings now for in-the-garden work. Get them planted!

Last year seed potatoes were almost as rare as silk stockings! This year, good onion sets and plants are almost as precious. Now, don't deluge me with "but I've seen bushels of them at ——." So have I, but mostly, they were soft, large and oversprouted sets. Onions will probably be scarce at the grocer's later on. Those large onion sets usually develop seed stalks, have thick necks and won't store well. Don't sabotage your chances for a good crop. Get the sets that are just a bit bigger than dime size, and firmly solid. Yellow and white Bermuda onion plants show up occasionally at the seed stores and usually leave again in a hurry. If you can't get the onion plants into the garden rows shortly, at least keep them in a cool spot, in the basement, for instance, and loosen the bunch so they won't mildew or rot.

Frost resistant cabbage plants are also waiting in some of the seed stores. "Frost-proofs," they are called, and they certainly can take some pretty rough weather. Charleston Wakefield and Copenhagen Market are the most common. You can figure about 70 days to eating time from the date you set the plants in your garden. The gray weather has been a setback to local flat-grown plants and in ordinary seasons I wouldn't suggest buying "shipped in" ones. A few, at least, to hurry up production figures, are in order this year, I think. Choose the variety according to your taste. Copenhagen is a round, solid type, but for early cabbage I prefer the pointed head, looser, Charleston Wakefield. When you are cutting the crispy cabbage for slaws and salads, it's a bit harder to manage but it is my choice. Because the head is looser, it is greener. That means more of the important vitamins—and maybe it is the eye talking for the tongue, but I think it tastes better.

April's schedules demand that we make the best use of our time. That's how I happened to discover that the so-called Victory Garden weeder is one of the quickest and easiest of soil breaker-uppers. It is a three-pronged or five-pronged, long-handled implement. Especially when the soil is on the damp side, this claw-like tool works much better than a hoe and saves much of the raking time. Later in the season, when weeding begins, it makes short shrift of the green enemies between the rows and right alongside them.

When the soil is loose and yet quite damp make it a "must" to watch your step! And steps as little as possible! After spading and breaking up the clumps, we measure off the rows and put up the markers. From then on we have board walks. Any old planks will do, preferably a length that is easy to toss up ahead and carry on. Raking, opening up the furrows, planting the seed, etc., are all done from the solid footholds of the boards. Footprints in the garden turn into puddles during spring rains; heavy pressure clumps the soil that is dampish; uneveness tends to start "washing." Use a board-walk in your garden!

Does it hurt your feelings to firm down the soil over the seed furrows after the work of loosening it with spade, rake and hoe? A quick survey of the battlegrounds, the morning after, will prove how important it is! In between rows, the loosened soil looks powdery dry. Over the seeds, where you firmed the soil, capillary action is keeping the soil water in action. The earth is a rich, damp brown. Proves you have your campaign well in hand. Seeds need to be in the dark damp to germinate—to start the explosion of growth. Some veterans walk toe-to-heel over the covered seed furrows, keeping their weight forward to prevent heel marks. Some use a wooden tamper, or the flat side of the hoe. Choose your tactics — but be sure the morning after examination proves the soil was sufficiently tamped to bring up the soil moisture.

My Day -o- By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Thursday, April 6.

WE have been back in Washington just a week and two days, and every day I have been looking for spring. The forsythia bush on the White House lawn shows a delicate yellow, the magnolia blossoms are faintly pink, and many other shrubs suggest that the time has come for them to burst into bloom. But the other night we had snow and a sudden clap of thunder, and I begin to agree with one of my friends who wrote me that if we could have two days of the same season, her cold might disappear.

The President hasn't been well, but he is getting steadily better. He has had bronchitis and he has been weary, but I think it is probably as much the weariness that assails everyone who grasps the full meaning of war, as it is a physical ailment. One cannot quite get over it. One can only accommodate oneself to the burden and pray for the day when the war will end victoriously.

I spent a day in New York City and reported to the USO on the clubs which I visited on my trip. I also saw two plays. One, Jacobowsky and the Colonel," is quite a war play which the Theater Guild has produced. The original play was by Franz Werfel. The cast is excellent and the dialogue delightful, but the play never stirred me very deeply. It's probably a very good play for the majority of us to see just now. It brings out the important things that we are apt to forget—that the man of action and the man of ideas can and must live in the world together and each has his particular moment of importance in the march of events.

Then I saw Edward Chodorov's play, "Decision." It left me far more unhappy than the other play, though it dealt with just one phase of our home front. This is a phase which many of us know little or nothing about, but which deeply troubles any of us who have even had a glimpse of it. It shows the Fascist side of our communities, and is very frightening, not because the Fascism exists, but because so few people are aware that it is something we must fight at home. I am delighted that the play is such a success and I particularly congratulate the gentlemen who play the leading parts.

I have spoken on my trip to the National Women's Press Club this week, and also to the business and professional women of the district. In addition, I have enjoyed seeing Mr. W. L. White, who dined with us the other evening. I've had time to read John Hershey's delightful novel "A Bell for Adano." Let us hope that the Major Jopolos multiply and that the General Marvins disappear from our army.

I visited the draft aid center of the Civilian War Services Division here the other day and found it most interesting. I feel sure that something similar should be done in any large center of population. Many draftees need help and information for themselves and their families when they are inducted.

How It Started

By Jean Newton

"From Dan to Beersheba."

"News Dispatch: Yesterday's attack on the Reich was believed to be the start of a literal 'round-the-clock bombing of Germany from Dan to Beersheba. From Dan to Beersheba originally marked the extreme limits of the Holy Land, Dan in the north and Beersheba in the south. In the east, in the west, in the north, in the south, and in all places in between, Germany will be bombed "strategically" — made into a guinea pig.

My Neighbor Says:

War workers, to insure good health, should eat New Orleans molasses because it is so rich in the mineral iron needed to make good red blood. It fits into dozens of dishes and gives them a grand flavor, too.

Three medium onions, two-thirds cup raw rice, one green pepper, five medium potatoes, one can whole tomatoes, four pork chops.

Put into a nine-inch casserole a layer each of sliced onions, washed raw rice, green pepper, sliced raw potatoes and tomatoes. Season each layer with salt and pepper. Arrange the pork chops on top. Add sufficient water to cover the vegetables and bake for two hours at 350 degrees. Turn the chops during baking to brown them on both sides.

TAX, EASTER BOOST STORE SALES 31 PCT. FOR WEEK

The approaching Easter season and buying to beat the Federal luxury tax, which became effective last Saturday, caused sales in St. Louis department stores to be 31 per cent higher by dollar volume last week than in the corresponding week of 1943, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis announced today.

Sales during the four-week period ended last Saturday were 17 per cent above sales for the corresponding period of last year, but the increase for the first three months of this year was only 3 per cent over sales in the corresponding three months of 1943.

Sales in St. Louis for the week ended last Saturday showed the same increase as the national average, which was 31 per cent higher than the corresponding week of last year.

SOME OF CITY TENNIS COURTS WILL BE OPENED TOMORROW

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM deeply devoted to music. I know I am not a genius but I hope to make music my life work. In order to give me means to that end and pursue my own studies I have been giving music lessons to children. After over a year of it I feel about ready for the madhouse and wonder how I am going to continue. Not a pupil I have seems to have any ear for music, they simply butcher things. I'd almost as soon listen to cats yowl on the back fence. I hate to try to be patient with these youngsters, in fact I am getting so I almost hate children. But it seems to be the only way I can make the money to take lessons myself and that's that. After a series of lessons, I am so depressed that I play my own favorite selections for hours before I feel like myself again. I know this is all bad, bad for the children and for me. What shall I do? MUSICIAN-TO-BE.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Try to think back. After all, the near-perfeciton which is now yours wasn't always evident. In the beginning you too must have had to struggle, must have played discords, must have driven the family crazy while practicing. See if you can't remember those days, sympathize with the youngsters more, be less impatient with them. They will learn more quickly if they feel you are patient, really wanting to help, will praise them when they finally get something right. Moods such as you have been indulging in should be at least partially under your control. Perhaps you are concentrating too much on music, need to reach out toward other interests, need more recreation. Why not try, if you don't succeed in overcoming your attitude toward your pupils, to earn money in some other way? Or forget the music entirely for a few months until you get yourself calmer. You will say this will slow up your career that much more, but I can't see that you will be making much progress in it unless you change your present frame of mind.

Dear Martha Carr:

MY DAUGHTER, age 15, refuses to make any friends or go anywhere except with one certain girl. There is nothing wrong with this girl. Her mother and I are friends, in fact, but we are both worried, feel that it is not right for these two to be so entirely each other's whole world. What do you think of this? The girls say we are entirely wrong.

A MOTHER.

At the very period in her life when a girl should be making many friends among both boys and girls, should be learning to co-operate and associate with them, these girls are limiting themselves to one intense friendship. In doing so they are marking out for themselves a future that will be beset with difficulties. They are apt to go from one exclusive friendship to another with periods of loneliness in between, never to become part of the crowd. You will be wise not to try to forcibly break up this friendship. Instead the girls should be sympathetically approached and given some insight into the undesirability of seeing and caring for no one but each other, and opportunities provided for broader contacts.

Dear Martha Carr:

We are twin girls, juniors in high school. We never go anywhere but to school and church. In the neighborhood are two boys who don't go to any school. Mother has always seemed to like them and let us go to church with them. But all of a sudden she says just dare let her see us with them. We've always told mother everything we do, but we're mad and want to keep on seeing these boys. Shall we see them when mother doesn't know it? Do you think she is being fair?

W. & T.

I am sure your mother hasn't taken this attitude just to seem unkind and contrary. Mothers usually have very good reasons for putting a foot down on friendships when they do so. Why not ask your mother what is at the bottom of this new ruling? She must have heard something she does not like about the boys. You are old enough to join a congenial crowd your own age at school, talk this over with your mother, too, when it seems like a good moment to broach the subject. And don't be dating, ever, on the sly.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

THERE is an ancient and quaintly exaggerated rule that requires a would-be courteous host and hostess to copy any mistake made by a guest and even to duplicate an accident. But the story of the hostess who spilled claret on the tablecloth because a guest did, and the host who broke a glass to match the accident of his guest, have always seemed fanciful rather than actual incidents. And so to the group of canteen hostesses who ask me whether they should deliberately spread a whole slice of bread on the palms of their hands or leave their spoons in their coffee cups, just to make an unknowing man feel at ease, the answer is certainly not. But neither should they break the bread or remove the spoon as though they were giving a lesson. Pretending to have bad manners serves no purpose. One who does not know exactly how to help himself to an intricate dish or how much to take, or which implement to use, looks to his hostess to set the example. To show him the wrong way is just what she should not do.

DEAR MRS. POST: Does wedding punch necessarily have to have an alcoholic ingredient in it to make it suitable? I remember one time that you suggested as a champagne substitute for a wedding reception, white grape juice and gingerale. I think your reason was that a "sparkling" drink was better on that occasion than a still one. Will you give me your opinion of the fruit punch—which could be served from a large bowl and would be most practical in our case.

Answer: It is not necessary to include an alcoholic ingredient, but wedding punch is generally at least flavored with sherry or similar beverage because most people think this improves the taste. But it does not have to be. On the other hand champagne is of course especially suitable but very expensive. I am told that some of the domestic brands are very light and very good. Champagne is seen more often than formerly because weddings are so small, that a small amount is all that is necessary for each guest to drink a toast. In answer to your quotation about a sparkling nonalcoholic drink, the more nearly it looks like champagne, the prettier, at a wedding. (The only reason why white grape juice is preferred to purple.)

The Doctor Hears From His Readers

By Logan Clendening, M.D.

1. "Never Morning Wore to Evening but What Some Heart Did Break."

Sir: Did you ever stop to think that there might just happen to be something wrong with the people with headache and dyspepsia whom you classify as the troublesome ones? I went to several doctors and they said there was nothing the matter with me. My husband read your piece in the paper and showed it to me and laughed. Then I thought of tomatoes. I opened a can and began eating. They were just what I needed. Soon I felt better than I had in years. I need acid and none of the doctors found it out. Heaven help the poor troublesome ones.

2. "Page Solomon in All His Wisdom."

Dear Doc: My problem is this, but you are so cruel you do not help me. I must have extensive dental work done, but I am afraid of the dentist. Why don't you tell me what to do?

3. "And From My Ashes Be Made the Violet of My Native Land."

Well, Doctor: After reading what you say about tobacco not being a serious health hazard and not dulling the mind I am enclosing a check for $5,000.00 signed The Tobacco Trust. Can a man such as you be genuine and sincere? Perhaps it would be better if you were to pass on to another world.

Why does every athletic director and coach forbid tobacco?

Why do life insurance companies ask about the use of it?

4. "Lay On MacDuff and Damned Be He Who First Cries 'Hold, Enough'!"

Dr. Glendening: After reading the statements you made concerning migraine headaches I am led to believe that you have had a very limited experience. Or a clientele of wealthy females that have nothing better to do than to wish themselves into one of "my headaches." Or else you have just had no chance to develop that so much needed virtue called compassion.

(Humble query from L. C.: Aren't you getting what I said about migraine headache mixed up with what I said about nervous or worry headaches? I have always said migraine was real enough and a demnition devilish disagreeable customer to have around.

5. "Mr. Thrale (to Goldsmith)—"You Had Better Prove It Before You Put It in Your Book on Natral History."

"Doctor Johnson—"Nay, Sir, I Would Not Have Him Prove It. If He Is Content to Take His Information from Others He Will Make a Very Entertaining Book. But If He Insists on the Truth for Every Statement, It Is Like to Be Dull."

Dear Doctor: A quotation of Mark Twain's will fit what follows—"To be good is noble but to show others how to be good is nobler. And no trouble."

How long will they allow you to keep on with your Questions and Answers if your answers are so trite. They are the truth, but how many people can take things without sugar-coating? Still, if you sugar-coat them perhaps I would not enjoy them so much.

A 16-Year-Old Veteran of the Stage

By Clarissa Start

IF Corliss Archer, that fictional teen-age heroine of magazine stories, stage, and radio, were to come to life she would probably look, talk, and act exactly like Betty Anne Nyman, the stage Corliss in "Kiss and Tell," now at the American Theater. She would probably have the same wide blue eyes, the same feather cut upturned hairdo and upturned nose, and wear the same sort of red tailored suit, wedgie play shoes, sweater, the microscopic hat, with an assortment of costume jewelry which includes a ring inscribed "1940," the memorable date of grade school graduation.

Her conversation would undoubtedly be studded with the same superlatives, especially when concerning movie stars. She might even order the same sort of lunch, a dietary dream consisting of a banana-and-cheese salad, roll and butter, milk, and chocolate pie with meringue.

All of which details are designed to give you the impression that Betty Anne, like F. Hugh Herbert's created Corliss, is a typical teen-ager than which there is nothing more typical. The only thing not typical about her is the fact that she is a career girl, and at the advanced age of 16—"17 this June 15"—she has had 14 years of professional training, and appeared in two major productions, "Best Foot Forward," in which she was the featured dancer, and her present, more dramatic role.

"As soon as I could walk I started to dance," she says, "and then I just kept right on and then I got in 'Best Foot' and now this."

"Don't forget the movie shorts you made," she is prompted.

"Oh that. Yes, I did five shorts for Warner's, but that was when I was much smaller."

In piecemeal fashion, and in constant combat with that abhorrence which the young show for any event that took place longer than 24 hours ago, you manage to squeeze out the facts that she started taking dancing lessons at the age of 2, always wanted to be a professional dancer, was greatly encouraged by her mother—"to whom I owe everything and who's always been just wonderful," that she won numerous beauty contests, once as "Little Miss Lake Hopatcong" at Hopatcong, N. J., and has "about a million silver cups and trays at home," and that she made her first public appearance at the age of 2½.

"That was in a dancing school recital," she explains. "I did a powder puff dance and I stole the show, they say, though I can't imagine how. I've still got my first costume. It's pink satin with rhinestone shoulder straps and it's real teeny—you can hardly see it."

Aside from the movie shorts and another movie test which fell through, Betty Anne's first professional break was in the all-adolescent "Best Foot Forward."

"They'd finished casting the show when I auditioned," she explained, "but Mr. Abbott liked me so well they made a part for me. It was a wonderful show because almost everyone in it was about my own age. We played on Broadway a year and then went on the road the next year.

"When I auditioned for 'Kiss and Tell,' I was working at the Versailles—that's a night club in New York. We went to see the show and I went backstage to see some of the people in the cast that I knew, and they gave me a script and asked if I'd audition for the Boston company. I never dreamed I'd really get it. Mother and my brother, Billy, went along when I auditioned, so they asked Billy to read the role of Raymond, the brat next door in the play, and then told us we could both have the parts."

On the road since August, Betty Anne is starting to get slightly homesick, home being Teaneck, N. J., although most of the time she's too busy for that. A senior in high school, she keeps up with school work either with a tutor or by enrolling in school wherever the show is playing. Here she'll attend Blewett High School.

"I'm taking French, Spanish, English, and Problems of American Democracy, better known as P. O. A. D.," she grinned. "It's a little bit hard going to different schools but I usually get acclimated. The only thing is the way the kids poke each other and say, 'That's Betty Anne Nyman,' it makes me awfully self conscious when I walk down the hall. I used to feel a lot older than the kids my age but now I don't feel so much that way."

In her free time Betty Anne practices figure skating, collects stuffed animals, goes to movies. She thought "Tender Comrade" and "Lady in the Dark" were marvelous and thinks Ginger Rogers is wonderful in anything. She also does a lot of entertaining at service men's hospitals and has some dates, though they're limited in number.

"My dates have to be after the show or for dinner, mostly dinner," she said. "Mother has to meet and approve of them first, but definitely, and my brother has to have his say, too. He's very funny. When I'm supposed to be in at such-and-such a time and I'm not, he says, 'Now, where is she?' He hates girls, calls them dames. I guess he's just at that age."

Betty Anne's ambitions are still a bit indefinite. "Kiss and Tell" is going to be made into a movie, and since author Herbert has written a series of stories about Corliss, the unpredictable, sometimes maddening, sometimes captivating teen-ager, there is a possibility that there may be a Corliss series like the Andy Hardy series. All four girls now playing Corliss, in the New York, the Chicago, Boston and West Coast companies, have been tested for the screen role. Of the four, Betty Anne is closest to Corliss' age, which is supposed to be 15. The others are all older women, 19 to 23 respectively. She thinks the prospects of making a movie would be wonderful, but being in the play is wonderful, too, and she wants to stay at that a while.

"I just want to keep on going—up, if possible," she said. "I'd like to do what I'm doing, only do musical comedy, too. I mean sort of mix the two the way Ginger Rogers does.

"Right now what's on my mind most is taking my finals and graduating from high school. If I graduate in June, I won't have anything in the whole world to worry about."

Your Stars

By Marion Drew

Sun in Aries.

General Tendencies—Here is the full moon tomorrow night, bringing accomplishment of projects which have been started a few days, or even weeks, back. The time is particularly suited to deals involving real estate, heavy materials, older people all things which are dark in color. Do not expect immediate financial returns, for the best conditions for money are still a week away.

If Tomorrow Is Your Birthday.

The next three months will prove the best period of your coming year unless you are engaged in some unusual activity which could not be influenced by average laws. After next August be careful in regard to health, and do not make sudden decisions about changing your status where marriage is concerned, either. You may find friends of long standing assuming new importance in your eyes.

Tomorrow's Watchword.

Intensity is the keynote for tomorrow. This is only a degree of feeling, not an attribute in itself. One can feel as badly about something bad as about something good, and many people do; otherwise, there would be no distress in the world. The answer to any question about the strength of your emotion should hinge upon whether you suffer thereby. If you do, then you are intense in the wrong way.

Bad Defense Let Declarer Make His Bid

By Ely Culbertson

IF the defense is bad enough, the most outrageous contracts can be brought home. That was the case in today's deal.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 no trump	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

North had a good sound pass to one no trump, and even though he did bid two hearts, South was almost equally optimistic in jumping to three no trump.

West led the diamond four and South won with the jack. The heart queen was led and both defenders ducked. The heart 10 went to West's king, but now West was afraid to return a diamond lest declarer still have ace, nine, seven in that suit. West shifted to the three of spades. East took the ace and, maintaining a firm grip on his ace of hearts, led back the diamond seven. South ducked; West won with the eight and returned the king. Declarer won, cashed the two top spades, thus robbing East of safe exit cards, and then led his last heart. Now East found how absurd and costly it had been to hold on to that ace of hearts! He had to return a club, and this lead gave declarer entry to the dummy and its two established hearts. A club finesse then rounded out the remarkable contract.
